REGULATORY INFORMATION SERVICE CENTER

Unified Agenda of Federal Regulations

AGENCY: Regulatory Information Service Center.

ACTION: Introduction to the Unified Agenda of Federal Regulations.

SUMMARY: The Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 USC 602) requires that agencies publish semiannual regulatory agendas describing regulatory actions they are developing. Executive Order 12291 and OMB Bulletins implementing section 5 of the Executive order establish minimum standards for executive agencies' agendas, including specific types of information for each entry, and publication in a uniform format. All Federal regulatory agencies have chosen to publish their regulatory agendas as part of this Unified Agenda of Federal Regulations.

The following separate parts in this issue of the Federal Register are the agency agendas, which together comprise the April 1989 edition of the semiannaul Unified Agenda of Federal Regulations.

ADDRESS: Regulatory Information Service Center, Room 5216, New Executive Office Building, 725 Seventeenth Street, NW., Washington, DC 20503.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For further information about specific regulatory actions, please refer to the Agency Contact listed for each entry. To provide comment on or to obtain further information about the Unified Agenda of Federal Regulations, contact: Mark G. Schoenberg, Executive Director, Regulatory Information Service Center, Room 5216, New Executive Office Building, 725 Seventeenth Street, NW., Washington, DC 20503, (202) 395-6993.

INTRODUCTION TO THE UNIFIED AGENDA OF FEDERAL REGULATIONS

About the Unified Agenda

The Regulatory Information Service Center compiles the Unified Agenda of Federal Regulations for the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, Office of Management and Budget. The Center provides information about Federal regulatory activity to the President and his Executive Office, the Congress, agency managers, and the public.

The Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs is responsible for overseeing the Federal Government's regulatory, paperwork, and information-management activities and for implementing Executive Orders 12291 (Federal Regulation) (46 FR 13193; 3 CFR 1981 Comp., p. 127) and 12498 (Regulatory Planning Process) (50 FR 1036; 3 CFR 1985 Comp., p. 323). Under EO 12498, OMB publishes the Regulatory Program of the United States Government each year.

The Regulatory Program is a policy document and a management tool that sets forth the priorities of the agency head and of the President regarding the Significant Regulatory Actions (SRAs) that will be conducted during the program year to which it pertains.

The Regulatory Program and the Unified Agenda differ in several ways. The Unified Agenda includes more regulatory actions because it covers all Federal agencies that issue regulations and includes almost all the rulemakings they have under development. The 1989 Regulatory Program will cover only 26 of the major Federal regulatory agencies, and will include only the most significant of all the regulatory actions that each agency plans to undertake. The Regulatory Program, however, describes each entry more thoroughly than the Unified Agenda.

Most of the regulatory actions described in the Regulatory Program of the United States Government are included in this Agenda. In general, the Regulation Identifier Number (RIN) for the action is the same for both publications; however, occasionally, several Agenda entries are combined into one Program entry, and a new RIN is assigned to that entry in the Program.

The Unified Agenda provides uniform reporting of data on regulatory activities under development throughout the Federal Government. This edition of the Unified Agenda includes 56 regulatory agendas from all Federal departments, agencies, and commissions that publish agendas. Agencies of the United States Congress are not included.

The Unified Agenda is produced through a computer system designed and maintained by the Center with the advice and assistance of the Government Printing Office. The system was designed to save agencies time and money by automating the preparation and printing of their agendas in a uniform format and to make the Agenda easier to use. In order to further facilitate producing the Agenda, many agencies currently use computer terminals at their offices to enter agenda information into the Center's computer system.

The Agenda contains a Subject Index to help readers locate entries from various agencies that may affect a particular area of interest. The numbers in the index refer to the sequence numbers that appear before the title of each entry in the Agenda. All entries are numbered sequentially from the beginning to the end of the Agenda.

For those agencies that requested it, we provided a computer-produced Table of Contents that appears after the preamble of the agency's agenda. The agency Tables of Contents help readers locate quickly those entries within an agency that may be of most interest to them.

All agendas contain uniform data elements -- regulation title, significance, legal authority, CFR citation, legal deadline, abstract, timetable, small entities affected, government levels affected, agency contact, and Regulation Identifier Number. Agencies also include any additional information they consider important. If any of the data elements is not included, the agency either did not report the information or may provide an explanation in its preamble. For further information, please contact the individual agency.

The Unified Agenda of Federal Regulations is published in April and October of each year. We welcome comments on this edition and suggestions for improving future ones.

Dated: April 1, 1989.
Mark G. Schoenberg,
Executive Director.

How to Use the Unified Agenda

Each agency agenda appears as a separate part in this edition of the Federal Register. The parts are organized alphabetically in four groups: Cabinet departments, other executive agencies, joint authorities, and independent agencies. Departments are divided into agencies, which may in turn be divided into subagencies.

Each agency begins its agenda with a preamble providing information specific to its agenda. Each agency was asked to list its rules in four groups:

1. Prerule Stage -- actions agencies will undertake in the next 12 months to determine whether or how to initiate rulemaking. Such actions occur prior to a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking and may include Advance Notices of Proposed Rulemaking and reviews of existing regulations.

2. Proposed Rule Stage -- actions for which agencies plan to publish a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NPRM) as the next step in their rulemaking process, or for which the closing date of the NPRM Comment Period is the next step.

3. Final Rule Stage -- actions for which agencies plan to publish a final rule or an interim final rule, or to take other final action as the next step in their rulemaking process.

4. Completed Actions -- actions or reviews the agency completed or withdrew since publishing its last agenda. This section also includes items that were begun and completed between issues of the Unified Agenda.

An agency may use a subheading to identify regulations that it has grouped according to a particular topic. When these subheadings are used, they appear above the title of the first regulation in the group.

A bullet (●) preceding an entry indicates that the entry appears in the Agenda for the first time.

The Agenda Sequence Number preceding the title of each entry identifies the location of the entry in this edition of the Agenda. The same number is used in the index to enable readers to find entries on specific subjects. Those agencies that chose to provide a Table of Contents at the beginning of their agendas also use the sequence number in their Table of Contents. Sequence numbers should help readers easily locate items of most interest to them, either by agency or by subject.

The regulatory activities included in the agency agendas are those currently planned for the next 12 months. The agendas do not include regulations excluded from review under EO 12291 such as military regulations and regulations related to internal agency management.

Entries describing regulations in the Agenda should contain, at a minimum, the following information:

- Title of the Regulation.
- Significance -- an indication of the significance of the entry that appears when:
  a. The action will be included in the Regulatory Program of the United States Government for the 1989 program year, or
  b. The agency otherwise considers the action a priority.

The Significance heading appears only if the entry is a significant action.

- Legal Authority -- the section(s) of the United States Code (USC) or Public Law (PL) or the Executive order (EO) that authorize(s) the regulatory action (agencies may provide common name references to laws in addition to USC or PL references).
- CFR Citation -- the section(s) of the Code of Federal Regulations that affects or will be affected by the action.
- Legal Deadline -- an indication of whether the rule is subject to a statutory or judicial deadline, the date of that deadline, and whether the deadline pertains to an NPRM, a Final Action, or some "Other" action.

- Abstract -- a description of the problem the regulation will address; the need for a Federal solution; and, to the extent available, the alternatives that the agency is considering to address the problem and the potential costs and benefits of the action.
- Timetable -- the dates and citations (if available) for all past stages and at least the next future stage of rulemaking. If a date appears in this section as 00/00/00, it means the date of the action is presently undetermined. Similarly, 04/00/89 means the agency can predict the month and year the action will take place, but not the day it will occur.
- Small Entities Affected -- indicates whether the rule is expected to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of "small entities" as defined by the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601) and, if so, whether the small entities are businesses, governmental jurisdictions, and/or organizations.
- Levels of Government Affected -- indicates whether the rule is expected to affect levels of government and, if so, whether the governments are local, State, and/or Federal.
- Agency Contact -- the name, title, address, and phone number of a person in the agency who is knowledgeable about the regulation.

Some agencies have provided other optional information at their discretion.

Data Limitations

Agencies prepared entries for this edition of the Unified Agenda to give the public notice of their plans to review, propose, and issue regulations. They have tried to predict their activities over the next 12 months as accurately as possible, but dates and schedules are subject to change. Agencies may withdraw some of the regulations now under development, and they may issue or propose other regulations not included in their agendas. Agency actions in the rulemaking process may occur before or after the dates they have listed. The Agenda does not create a legal obligation on agencies to adhere to schedules within it or to confine their regulatory activities to those regulations that appear in it. The information in this edition is accurate as of February 24, 1989, in the judgment of the submitting agencies, except as otherwise noted in individual agency preambles.

List of Abbreviations

The following abbreviations appear throughout this edition of the Agenda:

ANPRM -- An Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking is a preliminary notice that an agency is considering a regulatory action. The agency issues an ANPRM before it develops a detailed proposed rule. The ANPRM describes the general area that may be subject to regulation and usually asks for public comment on the issues and options being discussed. An ANPRM is issued only when an agency believes it needs to gather more information before proceeding to a notice of proposed rulemaking.

CFR -- The Code of Federal Regulations is an annual codification of the general and permanent regulations published in the Federal Register by the departments and agencies of the Federal Government. The Code is divided into 50 titles and each title covers a broad area subject to Federal regulation. The CFR is keyed to and kept up-to-date by the daily issues of the Federal Register.

EO -- An Executive order is a directive from the President to an executive agency, issued under constitutional or statutory authority. Executive orders are published in the Federal Register and in Title 3 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

FR -- The Federal Register is a daily Federal Government publication that provides a uniform system for publishing Presidential documents, all proposed and final regulations, notices of meetings, and other official documents issued by Federal departments and agencies.

FY -- The Federal fiscal year runs from October 1 to September 30.

NPRM -- A Notice of Proposed Rulemaking is the document an agency issues and publishes in the Federal Register that describes and solicits public comments on a proposed regulatory action. Under the Administrative Procedure Act, an NPRM must include, at a minimum:

- A statement of the time, place, and nature of the public rulemaking proceeding;
- A reference to the legal authority under which the rule is proposed; and
- Either the terms or substance of the proposed rule or a description of the subjects and issues involved.

PL -- A Public Law is a law passed by Congress and signed by the President or enacted over his veto. It has general applicability, as opposed to a private law that applies only to those persons or entities specifically designated. Public laws are numbered in sequence throughout the two-year life of each Congress; for example, PL 97-17 would be the 17th public law of the 97th Congress.

RFA -- A Regulatory Flexibility Analysis (RFA) describes the impact of a proposed rule on small entities, as required by the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601). An RFA describes why the agency is considering the action; the objectives of and legal basis for the proposed rule; an estimate of the number of small entities that could be affected and the compliance requirements they would have to fulfill; any other duplicative, overlapping, or conflicting Federal rules; and alternatives to the proposed action. When required, an initial RFA accompanies an NPRM and a final RFA accompanies a final rule.

RIA -- A Regulatory Impact Analysis is required by EO 12291 for all major rules and other regulations designated by the Office of Management and Budget. An RIA is prepared to determine whether a proposed regulatory action meets the requirements of section 2 of EO 12291, namely that it:

- Be based on adequate information concerning the need for and consequences of the action;
- Not be undertaken unless the potential benefits outweigh the potential costs to society;
- Maximize net benefits to society;
- Entail the least net cost to society of the alternatives considered; and
- Take into account the condition of particular affected industries, the national economy, and contemplated future regulatory actions.

RIN -- The Regulation Identifier Number is assigned by the Regulatory Information Service Center to identify each regulatory action listed in the Agenda.

USC -- The United States Code is a consolidation and codification of all general and permanent laws of the United States. The USC is divided into 50 titles and each title covers a broad area of Federal law.

Abstract: This action would amend the regulations to allow export credits for crushing sound mature kernels (SMK) and sound split (SS) kernels. This action is needed because current regulations do not provide non-physically supervised handlers an alternative market for SMK and SS kernels other than the export market. An alternative market is needed when the export market is lost or when the peanuts become ineligible for export due to aflatoxin contamination.

Alternatives considered are: (1) Permit a one-time switch to physically supervised crushing of SMK and SS peanuts, regardless of quality, (2) permit prorated credit (based on ratio of contract additional peanuts purchased to total peanuts purchased) for peanuts crushed due to aflatoxin contamination, (3) permit a one-time switch to physically supervised crushing of peanuts that meet edible export standards. Legal Authority: 7 USC 1312(a) et seq; The Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, Sec 312, as amended

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, March 1, 1990.

Abstract: Marketing quotas and acreage allotments are required by legislation for these five kinds of tobacco. The purpose of quotas and allotments is to balance supply with demand at levels that assure stable supplies for domestic and export use at prices that are fair to producers. Marketing quota and acreage allotment determinations are based on 10-year average marketings adjusted for trends to yield optimal supplies.

The marketing quota and allotment program is expected to result in net Federal receipts of approximately $15 million in FY 1990.

Additional Information: ADDITIONAL ABSTRACT: The research guidance will be published as a notice in the Federal Register rather than as a proposed rule. The notice will contain research guidance consisting of general guideline principles and a handbook of recommended procedures for field testing biotechnology-modified organisms. USDA plans to promote adherence to the biotechnology research guidelines and handbook by requesting researchers to agree to adhere to the guidelines and handbook as a condition for accepting USDA research funds. This will be implemented by amending the USDA regulations on general provisions for grants and cooperative agreements (7 CFR 3015.205), competitive research grants (7 CFR 3200.4) and special research grants (7 CFR 3400.4) as needed. The timetable for amending these regulations has not yet been set.

Abstract: Create a new Subpart D to cover liquidation of Single Family Housing (SFH) loans, and management and sale of SFH inventory property; and revise existing Subparts A, B, and C to have them apply to all programs other than SFH. Costs to create new subpart and revise and/or amend existing ones is minimal and would enhance all programs' ability to revise and/or amend the regulations with reduced clearances and provide personnel with clearer and simpler regulations to follow and implement. Will avoid "tie-up" of the regulations for one program subject to changes mandated by legislation or court order for another program, such as SFH changes being held up subject to Farmer Program changes being completed as has frequently been the case.

VOL 54 ISS 77 AP 24 1989 UMI

Abstract: The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) proposes to revise the regulation for the recapture of subsidy granted on Section 502 Rural Housing Loans. This action is necessary because of an accounting system change resulting from the September 1987 congressionally mandated rural housing asset sale. The intended effect of this action is to adjust the formula to coincide with the revised method of applying monthly subsidy to interest credit accounts. In addition, this action will also shorten and simplify the recapture process.

These revisions are needed so as to provide more complete guidance to field staff and borrowers on the topics discussed above. PL 100-233, Sec 711, states: "Within 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall develop and promulgate final regulations to implement this section (cont)

Abstract: Legislation mandates that the Secretary develop procedures to facilitate, administrate and promote secondary market operations for FmHA guaranteed farm loans. It is suggested that the Secretary, directly or through a market maker, provide for the pooling of guaranteed loans and the issuance and sale of certificates backed by those loan pools. Through this procedure, secondary market activities could be promoted and expanded, thereby increasing the supply of loan money in rural areas -- allowing rural banks to increase their lending activity to farmers, rural businessmen and residents. Obtaining the services of a private agent to act as a central registry and fiscal agent -- coordinating fund flows from lenders to pool investors; handling pool formations and executions, issuance and ownership of pool shares, and monitoring of loan payments -- is the favored alternative expected to successfully meet the legislative mandate. FmHA would act as the facilitator, arranging for the creation of this private market activity, (cont)

CFR Citation: 7 CFR 275

Retroactive for Fiscal Year 1985 Quality Control payment error rate liability claims.

Abstract: This regulatory action is required because the Hunger Prevention Act of 1988 (PL 100-435) revised the Food Stamp Act of 1977, as amended, specifying that Food Stamp Program quality control (QC) payment error rate (PER) liability appeals by State agencies be conducted by Administrative Law Judges. The use of Administrative Law Judges replaces the current appeal process which is conducted by the State Food Stamp Appeals Board. Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: PL 100-435, Sec 602; PL 100-435, Sec 604(1)

CFR Citation: 7 CFR 275

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, October 1, 1985.
Most of the changes are retroactive for Fiscal Year 1985 Quality Control payment error rate liability claims.

Abstract: This regulatory action is required because the Hunger Prevention Act of 1988 (PL 100-435) modified the Food Stamp Program quality control (QC) system provisions of the Food Stamp Act of 1977, as amended. Section 602 requires that State agencies be charged interest on unpaid QC payment error rate (PER) liability claims from the date the billing is received by the State agency, unless the State agency appeals the billing. If the State agency appeals, interest will begin to accrue from the date of the appeal decision or 2 years from the date the billing is received by the State agency, whichever is earlier. Section 604 revised the provisions for paying State agencies enhanced administrative funds for low PERs. It also revises the threshold for State agencies' liabilities for excessive payment error rates. Finally, it provides that PER liability claims will be assessed based on a State agency's total allotments issued, rather than as a percentage of administrative costs. (89-001)

Abstract: The rule reorganizes existing regulatory provisions for clarity and ease of reference. This rule outlines the responsibilities of the Food and Nutrition Service and State agencies concerning the distribution of USDA-donated foods acquired under various legislative authorities. The rule prescribes the terms and conditions under which donated foods may be obtained through distributing agencies for use in schools, child care institutions, nonprofit summer camps for children, charitable institutions, nutrition programs for the elderly, and otherwise in the assistance of needy persons. A number of provisions to strengthen and improve the State Processing Program were separated and published in a final rule July 1, 1988. (51 FR 23719) (FNS 84-513)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: The Food Stamp Act of 1977, as amended; 7 USC 2011 to 2029

CFR Citation: 7 CFR 273.1; 7 CFR 273.7

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed rule will clarify several aspects of the Food Stamp Program Employment and Training Rule published December 31, 1986, and will accomplish minor corrections in other portions of this rule. The clarifications and corrections are the result of program experience gained through the initial operations of a program component entirely new to the Food Stamp Program as a whole.

The Department is concerned that current regulations may be inequitable to State by mandating that they use the full October 1988 count of mandatory E&T participants in computing the base on which the Fiscal Year 1989 first reporting period 35 percent E&T placement standard will be applied. This procedure inflates State placement obligations for this period and makes it difficult for them to meet these obligations. The Department is also concerned that current regulations permit States agencies some latitude in counting individuals as "placed" in E&T programs for performance measurement purposes. This results in individuals being counted as "placed" in E&T programs more than once and inflates State placement success rates. This proposed rule implements (cont)

CFR Citation: 7 CFR 271; 7 CFR 272; 7 CFR 273; 7 CFR 275; 7 CFR 277

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory, October 1, 1988.
Deadline for interim final rule

Abstract: This rule establishes procedures for State agencies to use to participate in the Systematic Alien Verification for Entitlements (SAVE) system. As required by IRCA, the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) implemented this system. IRCA requires the Food Stamp Program (FSP) and certain other entitlement programs to use SAVE to verify the immigration status of aliens applying for benefits. Such use is mandatory by October 1, 1988, and this addresses use during that period. The rule also provides guidelines for Federal reimbursement of administrative costs. In addition the rule implements nondiscretionary provisions of IRCA requiring all household members to attest to their citizenship or alien status and certain requirements relating to documentation of alien status. Legal Authority: 21 USC 601 et seq

CFR Citation: 9 CFR 301; 9 CFR 303

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Federal meat inspection regulations to exclude specific products and classes of products containing meat, meat byproducts, and/or meat food products from the definition "meat food product" and thereby would exempt these products from Federal inspection. The proposal identifies two broad conditions for exemption: (1) products containing 3 percent or less of raw meat or other portion of any carcass, or less than 2 percent of cooked meat or other portion of any carcass, and (2) products that historically have not been considered by consumers as products of the meat food industry. This proposal would replace current informal standards for exemptions with formal, codified exemptions.

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the regulations to permit use of an approved method for examining swine for evidence of trichinosis. The Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) has been petitioned by a manufacturer of serological tests to amend the Federal meat inspection regulations to approve the use of immunoassays for the examination of swine for evidence of trichinosis infection. FSIS has reviewed the performance of the petitioner's assay in a laboratory where sera prepared by the Agency were tested by a precisely defined procedure and has concluded that immunoassays can effectively detect evidence of trichinosis in swine.

Legal Authority: 21 USC 601 et seq

CFR Citation: 9 CFR 318; 9 CFR 320

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Federal meat inspection regulations to establish specific requirements concerning processing procedures used in the production of semi-dry and dry fermented sausages. Currently, the Agency has only general requirements concerning the processing procedures for these products. This proposal will provide that a manufacturer of semi-dry and/or dry fermented sausages use either a model good manufacturing practice (GMP) procedure with specified or described critical control points, process control limits, and monitoring activities; or an approved processing procedure from a processing authority who would define the critical control points, process control limits, and monitoring activities for each processing procedure. In addition, the proposal requires that all processes for semi-dry and/or dry fermented sausages comply with a set of validation criteria to assure the product is not adulterated. The proposed rule provides the necessary processing requirements to assure that the production of fermented meat food products does not result in adulterated products.

Legal Authority: 21 USC 451 et seq

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the poultry products inspection regulations to permit the use of added water in turkey ham. The new standard provides for several categories of products that are delineated according to the protein content on a fat-free basis. FSIS was petitioned by the National Turkey Federation, Reston, Virginia, to establish protein fat-free values for turkey ham to promote product standardization and permit producers of turkey ham to compete more equitably with pork producers. This proposed rule would replace the current provision which limits the amount of added water and other substances contained in turkey ham products by requiring the weight of the finished product to be no more than the original weight of the turkey thigh meat used prior to curing.

Legal Authority: 21 USC 451 et seq; 21 USC 601 et seq

CFR Citation: 9 CFR 317; 9 CFR 381

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Federal meat and poultry products inspection regulations to define a system whereby industry labels will have an automatic expiration date upon approval. The purpose of this action will be to prevent approved labels that are no longer in use from remaining in the data base unnecessarily. This will benefit both the public and the agency by improving our responsiveness to label inquiries and enforcement of changes in labeling regulations.

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Federal meat and poultry products inspection regulations to remove labeling requirements and use limitations required for certain binders in sausage, breakfast sausage, frankfurters, cheesefurters, bockwurst, similar products, and poultry rolls. This proposed rule would also request information from interested persons as to whether granting the petition would result in false or misleading labeling or permit the use of binders in excess of what is needed to "bind" the products.

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Federal meat inspection regulations to reorganize the table of approved substances in an alphabetical order by the substance name rather than by class of substance, to include substance approvals not listed as well as amend individual product standards, and separate those substances approved for use as processing aids into a second chart. This proposed rule will assist the user in locating a substance more quickly and provide more consistency in using the table, update the regulations to reflect existing policies and current industry practices, and provide clarity to the chart of substances.

Legal Authority: 21 USC 451 et seq; 21 USC 601 et seq

CFR Citation: 9 CFR 327; 9 CFR 381

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Federal meat and poultry products inspection regulations by restricting the movement of imported product to within one of five geographical port areas where the product is unloaded. FSIS is also proposing to amend the regulations to require that such imported product be transported directly to an import inspection establishment from the place that the product is unloaded and that such product be reinspected within 30 days of its arrival in the United States. These actions are expected to increase FSIS's ability to gain and maintain control over imported meat and poultry products prior to their reinspection by FSIS.

Abstract: This advance notice of proposed rulemaking was intended to gather information from interested persons regarding FSIS's retail store exemption provisions. FSIS is conducting a review of the retail store exemption provisions of the Federal Meat and Poultry Products Inspection Acts, and the regulations promulgated thereunder, as a result of a District Court decision and as a result of requests from certain members of the industry. This review also includes an examination of FSIS's longstanding "two-stores" policy which allows an exemption from Federal Inspection requirements for any retail operator that owns only two retail stores and prepares meat and/or poultry products at one of its retail stores for sale to consumers in normal retail quantities at both stores.

Legal Authority: 21 USC 451 et seq; 21 USC 601 et seq

CFR Citation: 9 CFR 318; 9 CFR 381

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Federal meat and poultry products inspection regulations to require establishments to treat certain dried, ready-to-eat meat and poultry products to eliminate microbial contamination. Past food-poisoning outbreaks from dried meat products confirm that present processing requirements do not assure that the finished product is free from contamination by salmonellae. Treatment would assure the destruction of infectious disease bacteria, such as Salmonella, often present on the raw ingredients. The proposed rule would cover all dried ready-to-eat meat and poultry products except fermented sausages and dry cured hams and pork shoulders treated by one of the processing methods in section 318.10(c)(3) (ii), (iii), or (iv) of the Federal meat inspection regulations. The required treatment would either be a lethal heating step, a combination curing and heating process, or an alternate processing method which establishments have shown to be effective. The proposed rule would also contain provisions to prevent contamination of treated product by direct or indirect contact with untreated product.

Legal Authority: 21 USC 601 et seq

CFR Citation: 9 CFR 309; 9 CFR 320

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Federal meat inspection regulations to permit an alternate method of ante-mortem inspection of disabled animals. This method would allow a transport vehicle to be an extension of an official establishment's premises for purposes of ante-mortem inspection of disabled animal(s) that are within the vehicle. FSIS received a request from the Western States Meat Association, Oakland, California, to allow ante-mortem inspection of disabled animals to be performed on a transport vehicle. This proposed rule would (1) specify establishment responsibilities for maintaining control over the transport vehicle, for providing proper ante-mortem inspection facilities, for complying with the veterinary disposition, and for providing assistance to the veterinary Medical Officer when performing the ante-mortem inspection; (2) prescribe the facility requirements needed for safe ante-mortem inspection of disabled animals; and (3) provide the requirements for the written request for this inspection.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 21 USC 451 et seq; 21 USC 601 et seq

CFR Citation: 9 CFR 327; 9 CFR 381

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Federal meat and poultry products inspection regulations to provide administrative procedures whereby a foreign country may petition FSIS to be exempted from certain specified inspection requirements. FSIS has received several requests for exemption from specific regulations and procedures to assure that the foreign inspection program will maintain its eligibility to export product to the United States. Present meat and poultry products inspection regulations do not contain a procedure that advises how such requests should be made. Exemption requests are received in various forms and with a variety of information included, and as a result unnecessary time and effort is expended to develop an exemption request in the proper form for consideration. This action will provide a procedure for the submission of exemption requests from countries exporting product to the United States and to permit a timely Agency response.

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the poultry products inspection regulations to merge the requirements for the new turkey inspection system, new line speed inspection system, streamlined inspection system and traditional inspection into two mandatory methods to be known as streamlined inspection system-poultry and streamlined inspection system/partial quality control-poultry. The finished product standards for carcasses and giblets would be amended to include all classes of poultry. Legal Authority: 21 USC 601 et seq

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Federal meat inspection regulations to provide export certification of all meat and poultry products exported to foreign countries. Domestic inspectors certify that the product is USDA inspected and passed, and that all foreign requirements have been met. In 1988, the Agency conducted a pilot test to determine the feasibility of streamlining export certification procedures by centralizing control; utilizing contemporary communications technology; establishing plant review criteria; and modifying stamping requirements. The export certification project, of which the pilot was a part, will continue in 1989. FSIS will review the current regulations and determine what, if any, changes should be considered from the outcome of this project.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 21 USC 601 et seq

CFR Citation: 9 CFR 307; 9 CFR 310

Abstract: This rule will improve post-mortem inspection procedures for cattle which will result in maximum inspection efficiency and increased productivity. By modernizing cattle inspection procedures, FSIS would increase its inspection productivity while assuring that only wholesome meat enters domestic commerce.

It is anticipated that the meat industry will experience a net gain if this system of inspection is implemented in spite of the initial costs of facility modifications which may be necessary in some establishments. Savings to the industry as a whole should occur because of increased productivity and reduced overtime.

Legal Authority: 21 USC 601 et seq; 21 USC 451 et seq

Abstract: This rule will amend the Federal meat and poultry products inspection regulations to better define which substances should be permitted to be labeled as "flavors," "natural flavors," or "spices" on packages of meat and poultry products. This rule addresses the use of substances which are often added to products for the purpose of serving as flavor enhancers, emulsifiers, stabilizers, binders, extenders, and as nutrients. Most of the substances that would be affected by the proposed rule are proteinaceous materials, having nutritional value, and which may be considered foods, in their own right. This rule will require that these substances be identified by their common or usual names, thereby informing consumers of the origin of these materials including the species and specific animal tissues from which they are derived, if animal in origin.

Legal Authority: 21 USC 601 et seq

CFR Citation: 9 CFR 309; 9 CFR 310

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will require specific certification language, advise certifying parties of the consequences of false statements, and include custodians as well as producers as parties to certification. These changes will improve the effectiveness of the voluntary certifications by providing uniformity to certifications and warnings about false statements. Because of increasing high levels of antibiotic and sulfonamide residues found in young veal calves, the Food Safety and Inspection Service in 1984 initiated intensified inplant testing procedures to prevent adulterated meat from entering consumer channels. These procedures provide for a voluntary written certification program that allows for less intense testing of calves certified as not having been treated with drugs, or if so, that prescribed label directions were followed. More recently the Office of the Inspector General recommended that the Agency develop a standard form for the certified calf program.

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Federal meat inspection regulations and the poultry products inspection regulations to reflect a variety of changes in how Federal inspection coverage would be provided by FSIS in establishments that prepare meat food products and/or process poultry products beyond slaughter and evisceration under a 1986 amendment to the Federal Meat Inspection Act which authorizes increased Agency discretion in determining the frequency and manner of such inspections. The proposed regulations would provide for modifications primarily to rules governing agency organization, procedure and practice, revision of incompatible terminology in existing regulations, and the addition of rules describing the essential criteria to be used by FSIS in determining the conditions and methods of inspection coverage in such processing establishments.

Legal Authority: 21 USC 451 et seq

CFR Citation: 9 CFR 381

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule would amend the poultry products inspection regulations to permit the use of a binder matrix in ground and formed poultry products. The matrix consists of a dry mixture of sodium alginate, calcium carbonate, calcium lactate and lactic acid and has been previously approved for use in meat products. FSIS has been petitioned by the Colorado State University Research Foundation, Fort Collins, Colorado, to approve these substances as ingredients which, in combination at specific ratios, have the technical effect of binding ground poultry pieces together to produce formed poultry products. FSIS is amending the regulations to add these substances to the table of approved substances as requested by the petitioner.

Abstract: This rule will provide processors of fully and partially cooked, and char-marked, uncured meat patties with specific manufacturing, handling, and labeling requirements for these products to reduce the potential for incidents of food-borne, pathogen-caused illness from consumption of inadequately cooked, uncured meat patties. This rule will also establish (1) holding temperature and time requirements for raw meat used for cooked, uncured meat patties; (2) internal temperature and time combination processing requirements for fully and partially-cooked, uncured meat patties which are char-marked with heat but remain raw; (3) a requirement that a cooking instruction be placed on the label of partially-cooked and char-marked, uncured patties, instructing the final preparer to cook the patties to a well done state (a minimum internal meat temperature of 160 degrees Fahrenheit); and (4) requirements to assure that fully-cooked, uncured meat patties are not contaminated after cooking. This action will prevent instances of illness from the consumption of such patties.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 21 USC 451 et seq; 21 USC 601 et seq

CFR Citation: 9 CFR 327; 9 CFR 381

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will amend the Federal meat and poultry products inspection regulations to provide "streamlined" inspection procedures for the reinspection of Canadian meat and poultry products and by exempting Canadian meat and poultry products offered for importation from the requirement that such product and/or containers of product be marked with the official mark of inspection once they are passed for entry into the United States. These actions stemmed from the Canada-United States Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act of 1988, Pub. L. 100-449. These actions specifically responded to one goal of the Agreement whereby both countries are charged with liberalizing agriculture trade practices by seeking ways to eliminate technical or procedural requirements which now may serve to impede trade in agricultural products.

179. ISOLATED CABIN POLICY

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 551; 16 USC 497

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Agency policy is to terminate isolated cabin authorizations on National Forest System land that were constructed without advance authorization and subsequently authorized by special use permit. These cabins are used for part- or full-time occupancy. These cabins differ from recreation residences which were established in tracts specific for this purpose and built with Agency approval and supervision. Isolated cabins originated in several ways, including encroachment and mining claims. They restrict management of the surrounding National Forest land and deprive the public from the use and enjoyment of the land actually occupied and the surrounding area. The action proposed is to seek input from the public as to whether the present policy should be continued, or whether it should be revised so as to examine each isolated occupancy and determine whether, in the interests of fairness and equity, the cabin should be converted to a recreation residence. Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT: This proposal to revise current policy was originally included in proposed policy on recreation residences (52 FR 206-208). Public comments and continuing discussions with recreation residence permittees on that policy revealed widely divergent views on the Agency's policy, strongly suggesting that isolated cabins be treated separately from recreation residences. Therefore, so as not to delay implementation of final policy on recreation residences, a decision was made to seek additional public comment on the isolated cabin policy before a decision is made to revise the policy.

Abstract: The agency will undertake a review of its existing regulations at 36 CFR 294.1 that provide for the setting aside of areas of National Forests, other than Wilderness or wild areas, which should be managed principally for recreation. The rule establishes size classes for areas that may or may not be designated by the Chief of the Forest Service and the Secretary of Agriculture; describes examples of the types of areas that might be set aside, and provides for clearly marking these areas on the ground. Areas classified under this section are set apart and reserved for public recreation use and such classification constitutes a formal closing of the area to any use or occupancy inconsistent with the classification.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: PL 94-588, Sec 14; 16 USC 472a

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 223, Subpart C

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Currently, suspension and debarment of timber purchasers means the debarred entity is prevented from bidding or being awarded Forest Service timber sale contracts. Recently, suspended and/or debarred purchasers have been serving as subcontractors on Forest Service timber sale contracts, or acting as purchaser's representatives to receive notices and to take action on contracts. This has the effect of negating the suspension/debarment action, which is to protect the Government. The rule will be revised to prevent suspended and/or debarred purchasers from serving as subcontractors or purchaser representatives.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 472a; 16 USC 618

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 223.52; 36 CFR 223.50

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Federal Timber Sale Contract Payment Modification Act directs the Forest Service to require purchasers to make down payments and periodic payments on timber sales. The objective of these requirements is to discourage speculative bidding on National Forest System timber sales. A rule published 10/11/85 at 50 FR 41498 requires cash down payments and a midpoint payment. However, to fully comply with the Act, additional rules are required. This rule will identify the requirements for down payments, periodic payments, and market-related contract term additions. This rule will eliminate discounting and the requirement to hold a down payment until the last timber is removed. Based on comments received the agency has decided to issue a new proposed rule. 190. CONSERVATION OF FISH, WILDLIFE, AND THEIR HABITATS CHUGACH NATIONAL FOREST, ALASKA

Legal Authority: PL 96-487, Title V

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 241, Subpart B (New)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: December 2, 1980, the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act was signed into law. Section 501 (b) of the law requires that the Secretary of Agriculture promulgate regulations for the conservation of fish and wildlife and their habitats on the Chugach National Forest. The general National Forest System regulations and other existing laws governing management of National Forest System lands are applicable except as supplemented by these regulations or amended by the ANILCA, August 17, 1984. The new Chugach National Forest land management plan was appealed by 17 appellants. The settlement agreement specifies that subject to valid existing rights, the Forest Service will not allow timber harvest, road construction, surface occupancy for mineral leasing prior to publication of final regulations or completion of management area analysis for the Copper River Management Area. There are no alternatives to development of these regulations.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 631

CFR Citation: Not applicable

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The policy is designed to ensure that small business purchasers have the opportunity to purchase a fair proportion of National Forest Timber. Based on comments received in response to the 9/25/87 proposal, review of market data and Congressional direction, the agency is withdrawing its 1987 proposal and offering a new proposal.

The proposed policy will be consistent with the current standards and establish procedures for determining what share of timber volume small business will have the opportunity to bid on without competition from large business.

Abstract: The present timber sale contract Form FS-2400-6 was developed in September 1973, and the Form FS-2400-6T was developed in October 1973. Since these dates several Acts, Laws, and policy changes have necessitated deletion of existing provisions and inserting supplemental provisions. The need to revise these documents has been recognized since the late 1970's. The revision will provide for clarification of provisions to reduce the potential for disputes between purchasers and the Forest Service. There will be no changes in the basic contract concepts except those dictated by law, regulation, and related policy. Comments from interested individuals and organizations will be utilized, as appropriate, in the formulation of the provision language.

The Forest Service has no regulations at this time which have resulted in inconsistent and untimely responses to the DOI. The only other alternative considered is not to promulgate regulations. Public costs are insignificant but public benefits could be substantial in that proposals should be processed more efficiently.

In addition, the rules will establish a fee system for hydroelectric uses as required by Title V, Section 501 of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976. A Notice of Proposed Abstract: To facilitate the orderly development of locatable minerals on the National Forest System public domain in an environmentally sound manner. Since the regulations were promulgated in 1974, certain legal requirements have changed due to the provisions of the Wilderness Act and recent court decisions; some sections of the regulations no longer apply and revisions and updating are necessary. Major changes proposed will specifically address the requirements for wilderness operations and, secondly, will clarify the mechanism for administering locatable mineral activities not conducted on mining claims but which are nevertheless authorized by the 1872 mining law.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 16 USC 551; 31 USC 483a; 43 USC 1901

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 222.53, 222.54

Abstract: Different grazing fee systems are used in the Eastern and Southern Regions of the Forest Service. The current system in the Eastern Region is market driven. The system in the Southern Region is based on a cost-of-livestock-production/ability-to-pay methodology which currently results in below market fees.

This rulemaking seeks to improve uniformity of grazing fee systems on National Forest System Lands in the East, update fees to current market values, and provide incentives to achieve needed range improvements.

199. INCREASE IN MINIMUM RATES CHARGED FOR TIMBER

Legal Authority: 16 USC 472a

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Minimum rates charged for timber have not been changed since 1979. The increased costs of preparing timber sales and the general increases in costs of logging and the price of timber have resulted in minimum rates that are disproportionately low. The action being considered is to increase minimum rates to account for inflationary increases since the rates were last changed. The agency is currently conducting statistical analysis of various rate increases and their impacts as a basis for developing this proposal.

Abstract: These rules declare the range of unacceptable public behavior when visiting or using National Forest System lands. Among topics covered are prohibitions on setting campfires in certain areas, unlawful cutting of trees, and other unlawful uses of resources and property of the National Forest System. Violations of these prohibitions carry legal penalties.

Review has examined the adequacy of the rules for administration of the National Forest System and whether changes in conditions, laws, or other factors require revision. The agency has completed its review and is now preparing a proposed rule to revise the prohibitions.

201. REVISE SMALL TRACTS ACT REGULATIONS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 521c-i

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 254, "Subpart C"

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Implementation of the agency's Small Tracts regulations has revealed an inadvertent inconsistency between the regulations at 36 CFR 254.35(f) and 254.41(a) and the legislative history of the Small Tracts Act of January 12, 1983. The regulations imply that the disposal of mineral fractions by sale can only be made in response to an application from an abutting landowner, thus discouraging the conveyance by sale to the public. The Act clearly authorizes sale of mineral fractions to the public through public sale, as well as individual applications, provided that certain conditions are met. The revisions will clarify the application of the Act to ensure that both individual applications and public sale are permissible means of disposing of qualifying tracts.

Abstract: A Federal District Court has ruled that existing regulations discriminate against groups who wish to gather on National Forests to exercise their first amendment rights of assembly and free speech. The proposed rule will seek to remove ambiguities regarding these first amendment rights.

The agency is reviewing the rules of other Federal land managing agencies for possible approaches and is considering establishing separate rules for authorizing short-term, noncommercial uses of National Forests.

There will be no additional costs as a result of the proposed rule change. The benefit will be that the Forest Service will be able to adequately regulate large group use on the National Forests, which in turn will protect the public health and safety, and protect National Forest resources.

concerning the use of private lands in the Hell's Canyon National Recreation Area (HCNRA) on the Oregon - Idaho border, as required in PL 94-199. The intended effect of this action is to establish standards for use and development of privately owned lands within the HCNRA.

The standards are intended to achieve the following management objectives for the Recreation Area: (1) The conservation and continuance of forest land for forest uses and farm land for farm uses; (2) The maintenance and protection of the free flowing nature of rivers within the HCNRA; (3) Conservation of scenic, wilderness, cultural, scientific, and other values contributing to the public benefit; (4) Preservation, especially in the area generally known as Hell's Canyon, of all features and peculiarities believed to be biologically unique; (5) Protection and maintenance of fish and wildlife habitat; (6) Protection of archaeological and paleontological sites; (7) Preservation of historic sites associated with and typifying the economic and social history of the region (cont)

204. PROPOSED SOLID WASTE DISPOSAL POLICY

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 497; 43 USC 931c

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Solid waste disposal sites (sanitary landfills) on National Forest System lands present the potential for resource degradation, hazardous waste dumping, and future liability. A proposal for solid waste disposal is being developed to reflect changes which have occurred as a result of the Resource and Conservation Recovery Act, the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act, and an increased knowledge of solid waste disposal. The proposal would prohibit the authorization of new sites and provide for the phase out of existing sites. During the phase out period, authorizations would be amended to provide resource protection and limit the Government's potential liability. In situations where National Forest System lands provide the best location for solid waste disposal, land exchange and/or purchase will be considered. Adoption of this policy would reduce administrative costs associated with administration of solid waste disposal sites, limit future liability, and protect the resources on National Forest System lands. The proposal would impact 110 sites currently authorized.

Abstract: In a 1987 court decision, a letter of credit issued in lieu of surety bond was found to be unenforceable because the person who signed the letter of credit did not have authority to do so and because the bank had violated State law in regard to limits of liability. Others were invalid because they exceeded the expiration date. To remedy this problem, the Forest Service is proposing to issue Handbook directions that will require the bank president to certify as to the authority of the person signing the letter of credit and the conformance with State and Federal statutes. An automatic extension of the expiration date would also be required.

206. ● RESERVED AND OUTSTANDING MINERAL RIGHTS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 16 USC 551

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 228, Subpart B

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Substantial acreage of National Forest System land is underlain by privately owned mineral deposits. During extraction of the mineral resources, the mineral owner is required to take measures to protect Federal surface resource values. The Forest Service must analyze the effects of the proposed mineral extraction and determine what mitigation measures should be specified. Currently, there are no regulations describing the process to be followed by the Forest Service or the private mineral owner.

The regulatory approach has not yet been determined. A working group will be formed in February 1989 to determine the scope, form, and details to be included in a proposed rule.

Abstract: Recently, as the number of timber sale defaults have increased, the number of debarred purchasers have increased, and the Government has initiated a policy of only doing business with responsible parties, it is becoming commonplace for bidders to form new affiliates in order to continue to be awarded Forest Service timber sale contracts. Unless the bidder voluntarily identifies affiliates, the Agency must make the determination through a time consuming process prior to award, prior to determining if double downpayment rules apply, and prior to taking debarment action. This rule would require bidders to disclose, prior to award of sales, all affiliates, and to certify that none are suspended or debarred. Filing false claims would be cause for contract cancellation, and debarment action.

211. MODIFY THE GENERAL PROHIBITION AGAINST USE OF VEHICLES IN EXCESS OF 40 INCHES IN WIDTH ON TRAILS

Legal Authority: 16 USC 551

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 261.12(e)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The objective of this action is to permit Forest officers more discretion for controlling off-road vehicle use. Three factors have created the need to modify this regulation: (1) the general prohibition at 36 CFR 261.12(e) controls trail use by width of vehicle. Originally developed to control four-wheel-drive vehicles on trails, this method uses a fairly arbitrary device (width) to control use; (2) off-road vehicle plans (36 CFR 295) use vehicle types to prescribe the vehicles that are permitted to use forest trails; (3) some recent models of trail vehicles (all terrain vehicles and snowmobiles) exceed the forty inch rule by one to five inches. The combination of the two methods of control with the larger model sizes has created confusion among users about ORV plan direction and created law enforcement difficulties. The proposed action would clarify the regulations and still maintain the tools necessary to control off-road vehicle use. (FS 86-007)

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 228, Subpart C

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Whether a mineral deposit is a "common variety" determines whether or not it can be disposed of or sold by the Government under the 1947 Mineral Materials Act. Judicial and administrative interpretations defining common variety characterization determinations can only be made in court. Rulings in common variety cases are generally unpredictable, and the costs to both the Government and miner are high.

After a review of the legislative history of the 1955 Surface Resources Act, which defined common varieties, we believe that Congress did not intend for certain minerals to be locatable under the Mining Laws; however, a failure to explicitly define the "common variety" term has led to misinterpretation and actions contrary to the original intent of the law. It is proposed that 36 CFR 228 Subpart C be amended to clarify this confusing classification situation. We believe PL 167 expressly provides for this action as it allows the Secretary of Agriculture to dispose of mineral materials "under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe."

Abstract: Objectives are to set forth Forest Service procedures and role in the regulation of Indian allotments on National Forest System land. The Indian Allotment Act of 2/8/87, as amended by Section 31, Act of 6/25/10 authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to make allotments of National Forest System lands to Indians for homesteading and agricultural and grazing purposes. The Forest Service has relied upon USDI rules and procedures at 43 CFR 2533 to govern its involvement in Indian allotment cases. Recent litigation and a decision by the Interior Board of Land Appeals indicate the need for the Forest Service to set forth its own regulations when the Forest Service determines that lands are not chiefly valuable for agricultural and grazing purposes. The only alternative is not to issue regulations. This is unacceptable since it leaves the Agency vulnerable to future IBLA appeals cases as well as future litigation.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 551

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 261

Abstract: In response to comments from the scientific and academic communities and in keeping with the recommendations of the National Academy of Sciences "Report on Guidelines for Paleontological Collecting," the Forest Service is clarifying its regulations concerning fossil collecting on National Forest System lands. The language on "paleontological resources" is being moved to a separate paragraph and the requirement for permits is being limited specifically to quarrying for fossils and for commercial activities. The no-action alternative would be to leave the regulation of paleontological resources the same as for archeological resources, with permits needed for all activities. Since there is no evidence of widespread problems, the permit process imposes unnecessary burdens on the casual collector and creates added paperwork for the Forest officer to manage.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 22, 1987.
A one-year deadline is specified in the law.

Abstract: PL 99-522 provides new authority and direction for granting permits authorizing ski development and operation. It requires promulgation of rules within one year of enactment. Current direction for issuing special use permits including ski areas is contained in 36 CFR 251.50 through 251.64. While most of the current direction will continue to apply, revisions will be necessary to respond to the special provisions of the law relating to permit duration and acreage to be authorized.

The law has the effect of eliminating the current need and practice to issue two permits to authorize a single resort to use more than 80 acres. Further, it authorizes the issuance of 40-year permits instead of 30 which has been the maximum in the past.

Abstract: These proposed rules set forth the procedures by which the Forest Service would carry out its statutory responsibilities for management of oil and gas leasing and attendant surface disturbing activities conducted on leaseholds on National Forest System lands. In the past, The Forest Service has relied on Bureau of Land Management procedures and regulations. However, the Federal courts have ruled that the Forest Service must promulgate its own procedures and regulations. Additionally, the Federal Onshore Oil and Gas Leasing Reform Act of 1987 expanded the authority of the Secretary of Agriculture in the management of oil and gas resources on National Forest System lands and directed the Secretary to issue rules on bonding and reclamation standards. The intent of these rules is to satisfy both judicial direction and the new statute; to coordinate Forest Service oil and gas resource management procedures with those of the Bureau of Land Management, and to promote cooperation among the Agency, the oil and gas industry, and other publics interested in the management of oil and gas resources of the (cont)

Abstract: Following a period of high-priced timber sales bid prior to 1982, the Forest Service experienced a number of contract defaults on these sales. Subsequently, the Forest Service has had difficulty collecting from some sureties on the bonds guaranteeing performance on these sales. As part of a financial security initiative affecting future sales, the Forest Service is proposing to revise the payment and performance bonds to clarify surety's obligation in regard to what is being guaranteed, when payment is due in case of default, what additional charges will be assessed if payment is not made when due and when collection action may be suspended. Other alternatives include eliminating surety bonds as a form of security, reducing surety guarantee to mid-point and periodic payment and retention of current bond forms. Upon adoption the final revised bond forms will be issued for use by Forest Service Contracting and Fiscal Officers for future timber sale contracts.

218. DEFERRAL OF PAYMENTS ON HIGH-PRICED TIMBER SALES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 476

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This policy will provide guidance to Contracting Officers in the exercise of their existing authorities to administer Forest Service timber sale contracts. Current law provides that Contracting Officers may make modifications on unexecuted portions of a contract that will not be injurious to the United States, and in the public interest. Under this policy, the terms of payment of high-priced sales bid before January 1, 1982, could be modified to allow the purchaser the opportunity to mix high-price operations with lower priced ones. This action is needed to avoid defaults on these high-priced sales and thereby to protect the flow of receipts to the Treasury and States and counties. The deferred payment would be fully secured and the purchaser would have to pay interest. This policy has been developed in concert with the Bureau of Land Management.

Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Commerce.

ACTION: April 1989 regulatory agenda.

SUMMARY: In compliance with Executive Order (E.O.) 12291, entitled "Federal Regulation," and the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354), the Department of Commerce in April and October of each year publishes in the Federal Register an agenda of the rulemaking actions covered by section 1 of E.O. 12291 that the Department plans to conduct or review over the next twelve months. Rulemaking actions are grouped according to prerulemaking, proposed rules, final rules, and rulemaking actions completed since the October 1988 agenda. The purpose of the agenda is to provide information to the public on regulations currently under review, being proposed, or issued by the Department. The agenda is intended to facilitate comments and views by interested members of the public.

The Department's April 1989 regulatory agenda includes regulatory activities that are expected to be conducted during the period April 1, 1989 through March 31, 1990.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Specific: For additional information about specific regulatory actions listed in the agenda, contact the individual identified as the contact person.

General: Comments or inquiries of a general nature about the agenda should be directed to Michael A. Levitt, Assistant General Counsel for Legislation and Regulation, U.S. Department of Commerce, Washington, DC 20230, Telephone: (202) 377-8843.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: On February 17, 1981, President Reagan signed E.O. 12291. The E.O. requires all executive agencies to publish semiannually an agenda of those regulations that are under consideration pursuant to this Order. Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Bulletin No. 89-02 issued November 4, 1988 establishes guidelines and procedures for the preparation and publication of the April 1989 Unified Agenda of Federal Regulations for all Federal departments and agencies. E.O. 12291 and the OMB Bulletin require that each agenda report the following information on non-exempt regulatory activities being conducted or planned to be conducted by the agency during the twelve-month period succeeding publication: The title of the regulation; the name, title, address and phone number of an agency person who is knowledgeable about the regulation; whether the action is expected to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and whether it will affect levels of government; the section(s) of the Code of Federal Regulations which will affect or be affected by the action; the section of the United States Code, Public Law or Executive Order that authorizes the action; an indication of whether or not the entry is a significant regulatory action included in the Administration's Regulatory Program and if the agency considers it a priority action; an abstract describing the problem the regulation addresses, alternatives to the regulation being considered, and potential costs and benefits of the action; legal deadline, if any; and a timetable of dates and, if available, Federal Register citations for past stages of the action.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act requires agencies to prepare a regulatory flexibility analysis where there is a positive finding that a rule will have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. E.O. 12291 requires agencies to prepare a regulatory impact analysis for any regulation considered to be a "major rule" as defined in the Order.

Explanation of Information Contained in the Agenda

Within the Department, the Office of the Secretary and various operating units may issue regulations. Operating units such as the Economic Development Administration, the Bureau of Export Administration, the International Trade Administration, the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST), the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), and the Patent and Trademark Office issue the greatest share of the Department's regulations.

Because amendments to the Export Administration Regulations are not subject to the Regulatory Flexibility Act by virtue of 50 U.S.C. app. 2412(a), they were not required to be described in the agenda prior to the issuance of E.O. 12661 on December 27, 1988. Because of time limitations and the rulemaking requirements of the Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988, Pub. L. 100-418, it was not feasible to include rules amending the Export Administration Regulations within this agenda. They will appear in the next agenda to be published in October 1989.

A large number of regulatory actions reported in the agenda are proposed or final Federal Information Processing Standards (FIPS), issued by NIST under Pub. L. 100-235. FIPS consist of standards and guidelines to improve Federal Government use and management of computers and information technology. The standards, while often of great use to industry and the public, apply only to the Federal Government. In developing the standards and guidelines, and in providing technical guidance and coordination to Federal agencies, NIST works closely with private industry standard-setting organizations.

Another large number of regulatory actions reported in the agenda deal with fishery management programs of NOAA's National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS). To avoid repetition of programs and definitions, as well as to provide some understanding of the technical and institutional elements of the NMFS programs, a section on "Explanation of Information Contained in NMFS Regulatory Entries" is provided below.

Explanation of Information Contained in NMFS Regulatory Entries

The Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act of 1976 (16 U.S.C. 1801 et seq.) (Act) governs the management of fisheries within the Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ). The EEZ refers to those waters from the outer edge of the State boundaries, generally 3 nautical miles, to a distance of 200 nautical miles. Fishery Management Plans (FMPs) are to be prepared for fisheries which require conservation and management measures. These FMPs regulate domestic and foreign fishing where permitted. Foreign fishing can be conducted in a fishery for which there is no FMP only if a preliminary fishing management plan has been issued to govern that foreign fishing. Under the Act, eight Regional Fishery Management Councils (Councils) prepare FMPs, or amendments to FMPs, for fisheries within their respective areas. In the development of such plans or amendments and their implementing regulations, the Councils are required by law to conduct public hearings on the draft plans and to consider the use of alternative means of regulating.

The Council process for developing FMPs and amendments makes it difficult for NMFS to determine the significance of some regulatory actions under consideration at the time the semiannual regulatory agenda is published. Frequently NMFS does not have specific plan objectives or alternatives for management since the Councils may not have approved or submitted plans to the Secretary of Commerce for review, adoption, and implementation.

The DOC April 1989 regulatory agenda follows.

Michael A. Levitt,
Acting General Counsel.

Abstract: This action will replace the existing rule 15 CFR 806.16 with a new rule to provide for the conduct of the BE-10, Benchmark Survey of U.S. Direct Investment Abroad–1989, as required by the International Investment and Trade in Services Survey Act, 22 USC 3101 to 3108 (see especially Sec. 4(b) of the Act). The existing rule covers a similar survey for 1982, which has been completed and which the 1989 survey will update.

254. CHANGE IN REPORTING REQUIREMENTS OF THE BE-15, ANNUAL SURVEY OF FOREIGN DIRECT INVESTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES

Legal Authority: 22 USC 3101 to 3108 Int'l Investment & Trade in Svcs Survey Act

CFR Citation: 15 CFR 806

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action institutes a short form in the BE-15, Annual Survey of Foreign Direct Investment in the United States, for reporting by U.S. affiliates with assets, sales, or net income greater than the $10 million exemption level but with no one of the three items greater than $20 million. In its notice of proposed rulemaking of September 20, 1988, BEA proposed raising the BE-15 exemption level from $10 to $20 million. After careful consideration of public comments received, however, BEA decided to leave the exemption level at $10 million to maintain the quality of the data in those few country, industry, and State cells in which small investments account for a significant share of the total. The short form is instituted is an effort to keep the reporting burden to a minimum.

255. IMPLEMENTATION OF ANNUAL SURVEY OF SELECTED SERVICES TRANSACTIONS WITH UNAFFILIATED FOREIGN PERSONS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 22 USC 3101 to 3108 Int'l Investment & Trade in Svcs Survey Act

CFR Citation: 15 CFR 801

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action will amend 15 CFR 801 by adding rules to implement a new annual follow-on survey to the BE-20 Benchmark Survey of Selected Services Transactions with Unaffiliated Foreign Persons--1986. The criteria for determining who must report are the same on the proposed BE-22 as on the BE-20. The BE-22 will cover the same type of services as the BE-20, but will collect significantly less detail for several types, namely sales of advertising, computer and data processing, and data base and other information services, and both sales and purchases of telecommunications services. Data from the annual survey will be used to derive universe estimates of covered services transactions in nonbenchmark years, thus updating the data collected in the benchmark survey. The first year of coverage will be 1987; the survey will not be taken for a year covered by the benchmark survey.

256. CHANGE IN EXEMPTION FOR FOREIGN OCEAN CARRIERS' EXPENSES SURVEY CONDUCTED BY BEA – ANNUAL REPORT FORM BE-29

Legal Authority: 22 USC 3101 to 3108 Int'l Investment & Trade in Svcs Survey Act

CFR Citation: 15 CFR 806

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action will change the exemption for annual report Form BE-29 (Foreign Ocean Carriers' Expenses in the United States). An exemption based on number of calls by foreign carriers will be added and the exemption level based on the value of reportable transactions will be lowered. The change will more accurately identify persons with significant reportable transactions. This action will also place a limit on the number of reports required for certain kinds of carriers. As a result of this action, the number of reporters and number of reports filed by respondents will be reduced, thereby reducing both reporting and processing burdens.

257. FOREIGN TRADE STATISTICS REGULATIONS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 13 USC 301 to 307

CFR Citation: 15 CFR 30.1 to 30.92

Legal Deadline: None
Deadline is contingent upon legislation not yet passed.

Abstract: Review of 15 CFR 30 for changes to conform with the new statistical classification (harmonized) system for imports and exports. This review will combine elements of housekeeping changes, updating obsolete information, clarification, bringing the system into line with harmonization (including metric measurements) and conformance of reporting with current practices. There should be no added burden or cost placed on the public because no additional information is required, nor new reporting requirements.

The benefits of these changes will be: allowing direct comparisons between U.S. imports and exports, enabling comparisons between trade balances of the U.S. and of our major trading partners.

With the passage of the Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988 there is no alternative to making these changes in order to conform to the legislation.

Additionally, Section 30.24 will be revised to be consistent with Customs Regulations by eliminating the "four-day rule" regarding submission of "Shipper Export Declarations."

Abstract: EDA is deleting its 12-month annual average unemployment rate based upon the calendar year, for Special Impact Area (SIA) designation. Under the current calendar year qualifier, it would be possible that an area's qualifying calendar 1987 average rate could be used in support of its SIA designation as late as February 1989 regardless of a subsequently available, non-qualifying 12-month (non-calendar) rate. This could happen since 1988 calendar year average rates for areas will not be computed by state employment security agencies until February 1989, and EDA will not receive such data until March 1989.

The amendment will narrow the unfair competition requirements for a "702 Study" by raising the threshold amount of projects from $10,000 to $25,000. Also, the unfair competition exceptions have been expanded to apply to all EDA financial assistance programs. Certain projects are exempt from "702 Study" requirements and the definition of retention of capacity and employment has been changed by deleting the word "existing."

277. GENERAL REGULATIONS GOVERNING FOREIGN TRADE ZONES IN THE UNITED STATES, WITH RULES OF PROCEDURES

Legal Authority: 19 USC 81a et seq Foreign-Trade Zones Act of 1934

CFR Citation: 15 CFR 400

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Revision of the regulation is needed to administer the Foreign-Trade Zones Act of 1934, as amended, to provide for the establishment, operation, and maintenance of foreign-trade zones in ports of entry of the United States. At the time the ANPRM was published the emphasis was on changing the rules to provide improved guidance to the public on procedures and criteria followed in making decisions concerning special-purpose subzones and operations detrimental to the public interest. Since that time, it has been decided to propose revisions to the entire 15 CFR 400 in order to update the language and conform it to current CFR format.

279. ● ALLOCATION OF APPAREL TARIFF-RATE QUOTA UNDER THE U.S.-CANADA FREE TRADE AGREEMENT

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 100-449, Section 202(g); U.S.-Canada Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act of 1988

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The U.S.-Canada FTA reduces tariffs on textile and apparel products considered to be of U.S. or Canadian origin under the "rules of origin" established by the Agreement. Generally, apparel made in the U.S. or Canada from fabric sourced in a third country will not be considered to be of U.S. or Canadian origin for FTA purposes. Goods which do not qualify for the FTA rate will be subject to the regular most-favored-nation (MFN) rate. However, the FTA also establishes an annual tariff-rate quota (TRQ) under which a limited quantity of apparel products that do not meet the FTA's rules of origin will still be entitled to the FTA duty. As Canadian tariffs on U.S. apparel exports decline, U.S. apparel firms should have a growing incentive to export to Canada, but will need some predictability as to which duty their goods will be subject to.

Unless the Department implements an allocation system, we may find that U.S. firms will either face the chaos of an annual rush to the border to ensure their share of the TRQ or will ignore a lucrative export market to avoid the uncertainties of the TRQ.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 19 USC 1516a; 19 USC 1677f(d); PL 100-449, Title IV

CFR Citation: 19 CFR 356

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Chapter 19 of the U.S.-Canada Free-Trade Agreement establishes a system under which final antidumping and countervailing duty determinations of both the United States and Canada will be subject to review by independent binational panels. The legislation implementing the Agreement authorizes the Department to issue regulations necessary to implement Chapter 19. Regulations are necessary to establish procedures concerning notice of intent to seek judicial review, requests for panel review, notice of receipt by Canada of class or kind determinations, continued suspension of liquidation pending panel review, release of business proprietary and privileged information under protective order during a panel review, and sanctions for violations of such protective orders. Because the Agreement could enter into force as early as January 1, 1989, and because determinations reviewable by binational panels are expected to be issued in January, 1989, interim-final rules are necessary.

Legal Authority: 50 USC 2061 et seq; EO 10480

Abstract: The Defense Priorities and Allocations System (DPAS) implements the priorities and allocations authority of Title I of the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended. The DPAS was published as a final rule on July 30, 1984. Based on the findings and recommendations of an interagency sponsored study concerning the controlled materials program, and comments from both defense agency and industry users, this proposed rule would amend the DPAS to remove the controlled materials provisions and make certain revisions to its procedural requirements. These amendments will have no costs associated with them, would reduce the regulatory and information reporting burden on industry and make the DPAS more effective and efficient, and would result in cost savings for defense contractors.

CFR Citation: 15 CFR 771; 15 CFR 777; 15 CFR 799

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On July 12, 1985, the Export Administration Amendments Act of 1985 (PL 99-64) extended and amended the Export Administration Act of 1979 (50 USC app 2401, et seq.)(EAA). Certain changes were made to the Short Supply provisions of Section 7 of the EAA. Accordingly, revision of the Short Supply provisions (15 CFR 377) and related licensing requirements (15 CFR 371 and 399) of the Export Administration Regulations (15 CFR 368-399) is necessary. An interim final rule was issued which included (1) elimination of the validated licensing requirement for exports of refined petroleum products so as to permit their export with certain restrictions under a general license; (2) a new definition of "crude oil" for purposes of the regulation; and (3) certain technical and housekeeping changes. There are no costs associated with this action which would promote the export of decontrolled products. The Export Administration was made a Bureau in October 1987. The Export Administration Regulations were thereby transferred from 15 CFR 368-399 to 15 CFR 768-799. Furthermore, the Export Administration Act of 1979 was amended on August 23, 1988 by the Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness (cont)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: Not Yet Determined

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: A marine fishery user fee system will provide a substantial and stable source of revenue to partially offset Federal fishery expenditures and information needed for effective fishery management. Fees would be collected from the sale of marine fish conservation emblems and licenses, and from an assessment on landing or delivery of fish for commercial purposes. Administration costs are estimated to be $6 million annually, with net Federal revenues of approximately $60 million. A bill entitled "The Exclusive Economic Zone Revenue Raising Act of 1988" (HR 5580) was introduced on October 21, 1988.

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 641

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory. Final, Statutory.
NPRM 15 days and final action 110 days after receipt from the fishery management council.

Abstract: Amendment 1 will attempt to rebuild declining reef fish stocks, especially red snapper. A primary objective of the amendment will be to reduce red snapper harvest by 60 percent through the use of a commercial quota of 2.1 million pounds, by the establishment of a 12 inch minimum fish size for commercial and recreational fisheries taking red snapper, and by the establishment of a 3 fish red snapper bag limit per person in the recreational sector. The amendment will also protect other species of reef fish, as well as red snapper, by proposing to (1) prohibit use of fish traps, roller trawls, and powerheads, (2) prohibit the use of bottom long lines shoreward of the 50 fathom curve, and (3) prohibit any entanglement nets, including gillnets, drift, drum, and trammell nets. Several additional species will be included in the management unit, and additional conservation measures will be forthcoming.

319. FEDERAL CONSISTENCY WITH APPROVED COASTAL ZONE MANAGEMENT PROGRAMS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1456 Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972

CFR Citation: 15 CFR 930

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On January 11, 1984, the U.S. Supreme Court issued its decision in Secretary of the Interior et al. v. California et al. No. 82-1326. The Court held that the sale of Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) oil and gas leases is not an activity "directly affecting" the Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972, as amended (CZMA), and therefore, that a consistency determination is not required under that section before such sales may be made. Section 307 (c)(1) required that Federal agencies conducting or supporting activities "directly affecting the coastal zone" must conduct or support those activities in a manner which is consistent to the maximum extent practicable with federally approved state coastal zone management programs. NOAA engaged in rulemaking to revise certain CZMA regulations as a result of the Supreme Court decision. NOAA removed those references which identify OCS lease sales as activities covered by the Section 307(c)(1) requirements.

Additional Information: NOAA issued a final rule August 31, 1985 making the changes required by the Supreme Court decision, and decided to undertake a comprehensive study of the Federal consistency process. The Draft Study issued April 1985 will assist NOAA in evaluating the need for and consequences of further revision of the Federal consistency regulations. Further revision has been deferred pending review of public comment on the April study, and amendments to the CZMA enacted in 1986. In addition, the CZMA will be reauthorized soon, and amendments to the CZMA may result which would require further regulatory revision. Based on this review, NOAA will evaluate the need for, and consequences of further revision of the regulations.

Legal Authority: PL 100-589; 16 USC 1801 et seq; 16 USC 1851

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 656

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Secretary of Commerce, after consultation with other Federal agencies, state agencies, and interested persons will implement regulations to prohibit catching and retaining striped bass in the Exclusive Economic Zone off North Carolina through Maine. This is being done in response to a Congressional directive contained in the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act, and is consistent with the National Standards of the Magnuson Act. These regulations conform to and complement the Atlantic Striped Bass Plan developed by the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission and approved by its member states. Alternatives considered were no action, requiring those fisheries in the EEZ to conform to state regulations, and establishing a Federal Bag limit on catching striped bass in the EEZ. The cost of the preferred alternative is nominal, and appreciable benefits accrue to the migratory striped bass stocks.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq Endangered Species Act of 1973

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 222

Abstract: The proposed regulations implement Section 10(a)(1)(B) of the Endangered Species Act, as amended (ESA). The proposal provides, under limited circumstances, for issuance of permits allowing the incidental taking of endangered species. The proposal applies to certain Federal permit or license holders and to private entities or State or local governments whose actions are not otherwise subject to Federal involvement or control. Prior to the 1982 amendments to the ESA, the taking of endangered species was prohibited except for scientific research or to enhance the propagation or survival of the species. Permits issued under the proposed regulations would allow permit holders to conduct their activities without risk of prosecution for the incidental take of species authorized by such permits.

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory. Final, Statutory.
NPRM 15 days and final action 110 days after receipt from the fishery management council.

Abstract: Amendment 1 will reflect concern for status of swordfish stocks based on recent stock assessments (Jan. and Nov. 1988). U.S. longline fishery now targets tunas and small swordfish in nearshore waters and seeks larger, more valuable swordfish in more distant waters. The Council will consider size limits, area closure, and quota management in Amendment 1 in an attempt to reduce the fishing mortality of small billfish in the exclusive economic zone.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1371(a)(5)

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 238.3

Abstract: Section 101(a)(5) of the Marine Mammal Protection Act directs the Secretary to allow, on request by U.S. citizens who engage in a specified activity (other than commercial fishing) in a specified geographical region, the incidental take of small numbers of marine mammals. The agency must find that the taking will have a negligible impact on the species or stocks, and will not have an unmitigable adverse impact on the availability of the species for subsistence uses. The Service received a request from 6 oil companies for a take of marine mammals incidental to oil exploration in the Beaufort and Chukchi Seas. These regulations allow a take if certain conditions are met including requirements for monitoring and reporting and a prohibition on taking in the spring lead system used by bowhead whales in the Chukchi Sea. These regulations allow the oil companies to proceed with energy exploration while protecting marine mammals.

Additional Information: (A) Under existing regulations, at 50 CFR, Part 259, the acquisition of a qualified vessel is not interpreted to include the lease of a qualified vessel. The legislative history of the Tax Reform Act, 1986, indicates Congressional intent to consider lease hire payments from the CCF to be considered qualified withdrawals, if such payments are used for the acquisition of a qualified vessel through lease for a period of five years or more. The proposed rules would allow for payments from the CCF for such purpose. (B) Under existing conditions at 50 CFR Part 259, CCF benefits for fishermen are restricted in accordance with Part 251 of 50 CFR. The proposed rule would allow for either the moderation or lifting of these restrictions. (C) The proposed rules would add to 59 CFR Part 3 provisions for the assessment of user fee charges to fund operating costs for that portion of the CCF administered for fishermen.

365. U.S. GENERAL STANDARDS FOR GRADES OF SHRIMP

Legal Authority: 7 USC 1621 to 1630 Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 265A

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The final rule will establish general quality grading standards for all non-breaded forms of fresh or frozen shrimp. These grading standards will provide for the systematic differentiation of the quality of shrimp into four categories – U.S. Grades A, B, C and Substandard. The proposed standards will be applied to all commercial species of fresh or frozen shrimp in raw or cooked states in all non-breaded market forms. The adoption of grading standards is expected to facilitate trade in shrimp of all commercial species, as consumers will be able to select shrimp on the basis of identified quality. Industry has shown great interest in and support for the standards. Timetable for next action is very tentative. Public comments received indicate a need for further research before the rule is published.

366. REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE TAKING AND IMPORTING OF MARINE MAMMALS; IMPORTATION OF YELLOWFIN TUNA

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1361 et seq Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 216.24

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: U.S. tuna purse seine fishermen operating in the eastern tropical Pacific have been subject to certain restrictions relating to the take of marine mammals, whereas other nations fishing in a similar manner that export tuna to the U.S. often do not impose similar constraints on their own industry. Therefore, the Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972 was amended to require all such nations, prior to being allowed to import tuna, to provide documentary evidence that they have adopted a program governing the incidental taking of marine mammals that is comparable to that of the U.S. and that the average rate of incidental take in the fishery is comparable to the U.S. These regulations will implement this requirement.

VOL 54 ISS 77 APR 24 1989 UMI

DOC—NOAA Final Rule Stage

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 222.31

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will establish as regulation a previously published Notice of Interpretation regarding minimum distances that should be maintained in the presence of humpback whales in Hawaii. Establishing a 100 yard perimeter around any of the whales while in the Hawaiian Exclusive Zone as a regulation is considered necessary given a large increase in vessel traffic and other water use activities in areas where this species historically occurs. In response to comments received in the public record, NOAA is defining two specific sites as cow/calf areas in which an approach closer than 300 yds is prohibited. This addition creates a new subsection to the rule.

368. SAFETY OF UNITED STATES OBSERVERS ABOARD FOREIGN FISHING VESSELS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 99-659

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 611.8

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: United States observers are required aboard foreign vessels permitted to fish in the U.S. Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ). Conditions aboard these vessels can be hazardous to the safety of observers. To prevent injury to observers, the Department of Commerce intends to publish minimum safety standards that must be maintained aboard foreign fishing vessels before they will be permitted to fish in the U.S. EEZ.

The alternative to establishing U.S. standards is to accept flag-state standards as adequate. This solution will probably not be feasible because there is a wide variation in foreign safety standards and differing degrees of compliance with standards. In some cases, foreign fishing vessels meeting existing flag-state standards would not be suitable for U.S. observers.

Costs of this action will be borne by the owners of foreign fishing vessels. This action is beneficial in that it may prevent serious injury, including death, to observers during the performance of their duty.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 7 USC 1621 to 1630 Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 263; 50 CFR 267

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This revised rule will expand the coverage of established voluntary standards for grades of fish fillets to include a new market form or style of fillet whereby the pin-bones, the bones radiating laterally from the spinal column, are not removed. This style of fillet has become more familiar in the marketplace, resulting in the industry requesting the amendment. Responses to a previous request for comments indicate a national interest in this style of presentation. The amendment will allow this market form, bearing FDA's recommended labeling, to be inspected and reflect the U.S. Grade A mark.

370. FISH AND SEAFOOD PROMOTION

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 16 USC 4001 to 4017 Fish & Seafood Promotion Act of 1986 (FSPA)

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 270, (new)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed rule describes the conditions under which seafood marketing councils for one or more species of fish or fish products authorized under the FSPA may be established and operated. The councils will be funded through self-assessment by segments of the industry represented on the council and are established through (1) application of particular sector(s) of industry to the Secretary of Commerce; (2) favorable Secretarial review of the application and (3) passage of a referendum conducted by the Secretary among sector participants. The Secretary appoints members to the councils from lists of nominees supplied by the industry. Councils will submit annual plans and budgets for species-specific marketing and promotion, including consumer education, research, and other activities. Costs to the Federal Government are estimated to range from $100,000 to $200,000 for program start-up and other initial costs to establish one council. Annual costs will vary and depend upon the number of applications received and the number of referenda conducted. Benefits to the industry may be substantial.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1801 et seq Magnuson Fishery Conservation & Mgmt. Act

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 653, (Reserved)

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory. 110 days after receipt from the fishery management council.

Abstract: Summer flounder is seasonably vulnerable to very large and varied commercial and recreational fisheries. Landings have declined in recent years and there is concern that overfishing may occur. The summer flounder crosses Council and Regional boundaries necessitating close coordination between the constituent agencies. The long-term benefits of higher production and revenue to the fishermen and processors are expected to outweigh any short-term limitations on catches in order to rebuild the stocks. Rebuilding the stocks to the maximum level, the efficiency of the fleet will improve as catches per unit of effort will correspondingly rise.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: Not Yet Determined

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: A marine fishery user fee system will provide a substantial and stable source of revenue to partially offset Federal fishery expenditures and information needed for effective fishery management. Fees would be collected from the sale of marine fish conservation emblems and licenses, and from an assessment on landing or delivery of fish for commercial purposes. Administration costs are estimated to be $6 million annually, with net Federal revenues of approximately $60 million. A bill entitled "The Exclusive Economic Zone Revenue Raising Act of 1988" (HR 5580) was introduced on October 21, 1988.

387. FISHERY MANAGEMENT PLAN FOR ATLANTIC BILLFISHES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1801 et seq Magnuson Fishery Conservation & Mgmt. Act

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 644

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory. Final, Statutory.
NPRM 15 days and final action 110 days after receipt from the fishery management council.

Abstract: The plan was prepared jointly by the South Atlantic, New England, Mid-Atlantic, Gulf and Caribbean Fishery Management Councils. It would establish a management regime for sailfish, white and blue marlin, and longbill spearfish in the Atlantic, Gulf, and Caribbean exclusive economic zone. The plan's objectives are to maintain the highest availability of billfishes to the recreational fishery, to optimize social and economic benefits by reserving billfish for its traditional use, and to improve the understanding of the condition of billfish stocks and the fishery. Proposed management measures include (1) prohibition on the sale of billfish caught from the management unit, (2) possession prohibition aboard pelagic longline and drift gill net vessels, (3) possession or retention of billfish shoreward of the outer boundary of the EEZ limited to those caught by rod and reel, (4) recreational minimum size limits, (5) mandatory catch and effort reports from billfish tournaments, and (6) a provisional limited exemption from the no-sale provision for a Puerto Rico traditional handline fishery.

The amendment is aimed at reducing fishing pressure on ten valuable fish species and rebuilding their stocks (cod; haddock; yellowtail, winter, windowpane, and witch flounders; pollock; redfish; American plaice; and white hake). Alternative management measures to be considered include increases in minimum sizes of four regulated species, establishment of a 9 inch minimum size for redfish, requirement for 5 1/2 inch minimum mesh throughout the net by October 1, 1989 in the regulated mesh area, a trip by catch limit of 25 percent of regulated species weight for vessels operating in the exempted Fisheries Program, as well as other measures.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1801 et seq Magnuson Fishery Conservation & Mgmt. Act

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 651

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The regulatory amendment to the Northeast Multispecies FMP would institute a certification program to allow for the importation of whole Atlantic groundfish smaller than the minimum size for U.S. harvested groundfish. The program would track the imported fish from its foreign supplier to its U.S. processor-purchaser in order to ensure enforcement of minimum size limits on domestic harvests of regulated groundfish species.

396. DEEP SEABED MINING REGULATIONS FOR COMMERCIAL RECOVERY

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1401 et seq Deep Seabed Hard Mineral Resources Act

CFR Citation: 15 CFR 970, (Exploration Regulations); 15 CFR 971

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under 15 CFR 970, prospective deep seabed miners may apply to NOAA for the exploration license needed to explore the deep seabed for manganese nodules. Under the new regulations (15 CFR 971), prospective miners will be able to apply to NOAA for a permit to commercially recover and process nodules to obtain strategic metals (nickel, copper, cobalt, manganese). These permits would provide security of tenure for applicants with respect to other U.S. citizens and other nations' permittees in accordance with applicable international agreements. Fees for securing and maintaining a permit will be based on the Government's processing costs. These fees would be an inconsequential portion of the cost of a commercial recovery operation. The cost of a commercial recovery operation is expected to exceed one billion dollars. Alternatives to the regulation would require amending the Deep Seabed Hard Mineral Resources Act, which would be considered in the context of the U.S. law of the sea policy.

Analysis: Regulatory Impact Analysis; See Additional Information

Additional Information: A final RIA has been prepared for the commercial regulations to cover new issues raised by the commercial recovery permit regulations. It is expected that small entities will not be permittees. Rather some small entities are expected to be contractors or subcontractors to permittees. The final RIA is available as is the programmatic environmental impact statement and the supplemental environmental assessment. After considering public comments on the proposed major rule, NOAA determined that certain issues were significantly different than the proposed rules. Those limited issues were reproposed for further public comment prior to NOAA's issuing the final regulations.

The effective date of the Trademark Revision Act of 1988 (P.L. 100-667) is November 16, 1989, by which date implementing rules must be final.

Abstract: The rules of practice in trademark cases are proposed to be amended to implement the provisions of the Trademark Law Revision Act of 1988 (P.L. 100-667), to codify changes in practice resulting from a certain Trademark Trial and Appeal Board decision commonly known as the "Crocker" decision (relating to requirements for foreign applicants seeking to register trademarks in the United States), and to otherwise clarify and revise procedures for the examination of applications. The rules involved are those relating to applications for registration of trademarks based on (1) use of a mark in commerce, (2) a bona fide intention to use a mark in commerce, and (3) ownership of a foreign registration. The rules involved relate also to post-registration procedures and to ex parte appeals and inter partes proceedings before the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board.

Abstract: PTO proposes to amend its rules governing the admission of officers and employees of the United States to the register of attorneys and agents authorized to practice before the PTO in patent cases, and the practice of former PTO employees before the Office. The amendment would eliminate a restriction excluding Federal employees from registration which has been held invalid on judicial review. Provisions affected by the elimination of that restriction would also be amended.

Abstract: PL 99-502 amended the Stevenson-Wydler Innovation Act of 1980 by establishing a number of procedures to encourage the development of technologies by laboratories owned or operated by the Federal government, to facilitate the transfer of such technologies to the public, and to promote cooperation between these laboratories and the private sector.

Executive Order 10096 would be amended with regard to the government's rights to ownership of inventions created in laboratories owned or operated by the Federal government. A revised version of the executive order might be prepared and regulations would be developed to implement the amendments effected by PL 99-502.

This action will not increase Federal costs. In the short run it will encourage private sector collaboration to assist work done in Federal laboratories by appropriated funds, and in the long run increased commercialization of patents and inventions will increase tax revenues.

Abstract: The CFR must be updated to reflect the new Federal policy, as amended by the 1988 Trade Act (PL 100-48), regarding Federal use of the metric system in its procurements, grants and other business-related activities, and the impact on State and local governments and the private sector of this transition. No alternatives are being considered.

The costs to the Federal government cannot be accurately estimated, but will include the cost of redoing some regulations and publications, costs associated with orienting employees and contractors to use of the metric system and some share of contractor costs for converting. The benefits will be the greater marketability of U.S. products which will improve our competitive posture in world markets and thereby improve U.S. trade balances.

Improving Government Regulations; Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, DoD.

ACTION: Publication of the consolidated semiannual agenda of DoD regulatory documents.

SUMMARY: The Department of Defense is publishing this consolidated semiannual agenda of regulatory documents for public information and comments under E.O. 12291, "Federal Regulation." This agenda incorporates the objective and criteria, when applicable, of the regulatory reform program under E.O. 12291, and other regulatory programs. It contains DoD issuances initiated by DoD Components that may have economic and environmental impact on state, local, public or private interests under the criteria of E.O. 12291. Although most DoD issuances listed in the agenda are of negligible public impact, their nature may be of public interest and, therefore, are published to provide notice of rulemaking and an opportunity for public participation in the internal DoD rulemaking process.

This agenda updates the report published on October 24, 1988, and includes regulations expected to be issued and under review over the next 12 months. The next agenda is scheduled to be published in October 1989. In addition to this agenda, DoD Components also publish rulemaking notices pertaining to their specific statutory administration requirements as required.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For information concerning the overall DoD regulatory improvement program and for general semiannual agenda information, contact Mrs. Pearl Rascoe-Harrison, telephone 202-746-0933 or write to Directorate for Information Operations and Reports, Washington Headquarters Services, 1215 Jefferson Davis Highway, Suite 1204, Arlington, Virginia 22202-4302.

For questions of a legal nature concerning the agenda and its statutory requirements or obligations, contact the Office of the General Counsel, DoD, Washington, DC 20301, or call 202-697-2714.

For general information on Office of the Secretary regulations, contact Mrs. Patricia H. Means, Directives Division, Correspondence and Directives, Directorate, Washington Headquarters Services, telephone 202-697-4111.

For general information on Department of the Army regulations, contact Mr. Kenneth L. Denton, telephone 202-325-6297 or write to HQDA, ASQZ-SPP, Room 1420, Hoffman I, Alexandria, Virginia 22331-0302.

For general information on Department of the Navy regulations, contact Ms. Alcinda P. Wenberg, telephone 202-697-7216 or write to Department of the Navy, Information Resources Management, IRM(C), Washington, DC 20350-1000.

For general information on Department of the Air Force regulations, contact Ms. Patsy J. Conner, telephone 202-694-3527 or write to Department of the Air Force, SAF/AADA, Pentagon, Washington, DC 20330-1000.

For specific agenda items, contact the appropriate individual indicated in each DoD Component report.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: This consolidated agenda is composed of the regulatory status reports from the Office of the Secretary of Defense and the Departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force. Included also in this agenda is the regulatory report from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, whose civil works functions fall under the reporting requirements of E.O. 12291. Their agenda will reflect these requirements, with follow-on reporting actions taken, as necessary.

DoD issuances range from DoD Directives (reflecting departmental policy) to implementing instructions and regulations (largely internal and used to implement Directives). The OSD agenda section contains the primary Directives under which DoD Components promulgate their implementing regulations.

To ease identification and to clarify the differences among the variety of issuances reported, they are identified by their DoD internal numbering system, which denotes Component level of authority and type of issuance in addition to the required CFR number.

In addition, this agenda, although published under the reporting requirements of E.O. 12291, will continue to be the DoD single source reporting vehicle which will identify issuances that are currently applicable under the various regulatory reform programs in progress. Therefore, when applicable, DoD Components will identify those rules which come under the criteria of the:

a. Regulatory Flexibility Act;

b. Paperwork Reduction Act; and

c. GATT International Trade Agreement.

These DoD issuances which are directly applicable under these statutes will be identified in the agenda and their action status indicated. Generally, the reports in this agenda will contain four sections: (1) Prerule stage; (2) proposed rule stage; (3) final rule stage; and (4) completed actions.

Although not a regulatory agency, the Department of Defense will continue to participate in regulatory initiatives designed to reduce the economic costs and unnecessary environmental burdens upon the public. Comments and recommendations are invited on the rules reported and should be addressed to the DoD Component representatives identified in each section.

Although sensitive to the needs of the public and regulatory reform, the Department of Defense reserves the right to exercise the exemptions and flexibility permitted in its rulemaking process in order to proceed with its overall defense-oriented mission.

Note: The publishing of this agenda does not waive the applicability of the military affairs exemption in title 5, section 553 and section 1 of E.O. 12291.

Dated: February 24, 1989.

D. O. Cooke,

Director, Administration and Management.

Abstract: This proposed rule, if adopted, would revise the comprehensive CHAMPUS regulation to establish a new method of paying for mental health hospital care. Rather than continuing to pay billed charges, the new method would pay hospitals based on prospectively set fixed rates for each day of hospital services provided. These per diem rates would be calculated to be revenue neutral in the base period of calculation, with full adjustments for price inflation. The result will be nearly revenue neutral in fiscal year 1989 with respect to CHAMPUS payments for inpatient mental health services.

Unified Agenda of Federal Regulations

AGENCY: Department of Education.

ACTION: Publication of the semiannual agenda of Federal regulations.

SUMMARY: The Secretary of Education publishes a Semiannual Agenda of Federal Regulations as required by Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Bulletin No. 89-02 issued under the authority of section 6(b) of Executive Order 12291 (Federal Regulations). The purpose of the agenda is to encourage more effective public participation in the regulatory process by giving the public early information about pending regulatory activities.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Questions or comments related to specific regulations listed in this agenda should be directed to the contact person listed for that set of regulations. Questions or comments on the overall agenda should be directed to Kenneth C. Depew, Acting Director, Division of Regulations Management, Office of the General Counsel, Department of Education, Room 2131, FOB-6, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW., Washington, DC 20202. Telephone: (202) 732-2887.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291, dated February 17, 1981, and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, Pub. L. 96-354, enacted September 19, 1980, require the Department of Education to publish, in October and April of each year, (1) an agenda of regulations that the Department expects to issue, and (2) currently effective regulations that are under review. The agenda includes both notices of proposed rulemaking (NPRMs) currently being drafted and pending final regulations.

Under the authority of Executive Order 12291, the Director of OMB has issued OMB Bulletin No. 89-02, dated November 4, 1988, prescribing the content and structure of the Unified Agenda of Federal Regulations. The Unified Agenda will be issued semiannually and will cover the succeeding 12 months from the date of publication.

For each set of regulations listed, the Agenda provides the title of the document, the type of document, a citation of any rulemaking or other action taken since publication of the most recent Agenda, and planned dates of future rulemaking. In addition, the Agenda provides the following information:

- An abstract, which includes a description of the problem to be addressed, any principal alternatives being considered, and potential costs and benefits of the action.
- An indication of whether the planned action is likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities as defined by the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601(b)).
- A reference to where a reader can find the current regulations in the Code of Federal Regulations.
- A citation of legal authority.
- The name, address, and telephone number of the contact person at the Department from whom a reader can obtain additional information regarding the planned action.
- An indication if the action is priority and the criteria used in determining the priority status.

If the "Abstract" section of an entry refers readers to the preamble, it means that amendments to those particular regulations would be designed (1) to effect regulatory relief, including reducing paperwork and compliance burdens, improving cost effectiveness and, to the extent possible, vesting greater discretion in State and local agencies, and (2) if necessary, to clarify and simplify requirements governing that program.

This publication in the Federal Register does not impose any binding obligation on the Department with regard to any specific item on the agenda. Regulatory action in addition to the items listed is not precluded. Dates of future regulatory action are subject to revision in subsequent agendas.

Dated: February 24, 1989.

Steven Y. Winnick,

Acting General Counsel.

Regulatory Agenda

AGENCY: Department of Energy.

ACTION: April 1989 regulatory agenda.

SUMMARY: In order to make government more responsive to the citizens of the United States and to assist in fulfilling the President's commitment to lessen regulatory burdens, the Department of Energy (DOE) is publishing this agenda of rulemakings that DOE has in progress, as well as proposed rulemakings that DOE foreseeably may issue in the next year. This agenda also includes rules being reviewed within the Department to determine whether to propose modifications through rulemaking and rulemakings and rule reviews for which action has been completed since the last Regulatory Agenda in October 1988. In addition, the agenda meets requirements under the Regulatory Flexibility Act for information on any rulemakings which are "likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities." The agenda may not include all routine regulations or those that relate to internal agency management.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

General: For further information on the agenda in general, contact: Robert E. Morey, Department of Energy, Room 6B-128, Forrestal Building, 1000 Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, DC 20585, (202) 586-9507.

Specific: For further information about any particular item on the agenda, contact the individual listed under that item.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Covered agencies publish regulatory agendas under Executive Order 12291 in April and October of each year. The Executive Order authorizes the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) to set forth standards and procedures for the preparation of these agendas. The April 1989 Regulatory Agenda has been prepared in accordance with OMB Bulletin No. 89-02.

There are important reasons for preparing this agenda. It is vital to efforts to reduce the burdens of existing and future regulations, to increase agency accountability for regulatory actions, to provide for Presidential oversight of the regulatory process, to minimize duplication and conflict of regulations, and to insure well-reasoned regulations. The Department has made considerable progress in these efforts.

Executive Order 12291 provides that the regulatory agenda may be incorporated with the "regulatory flexibility agenda" required under the Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 602 et seq. The regulatory flexibility agenda must cover any rule which the agency expects to propose or promulgate which is "likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities." Its information requirements are similar to those of the Executive Order. The regulatory flexibility agenda required under 5 U.S.C. 602(a) is incorporated in today's notice.

Entries appended to this notice reflect the status of regulatory activities as of approximately February 15, 1989. Regulatory activities have been divided among categories according to their next stage: Prerulemaking action, proposed rule, final rule, or completed action.

Appended entries contain the following information: (1) DOE organizational unit responsible for the regulation; (2) RIN number (that is, the Regulation Indentifier Number assigned by OMB/OIRA); (3) title; (4) significance (that is, whether the regulation appears in the Regulatory Program prepared annually under Executive Order 12498 and, if it does not, whether it is nevertheless a Departmental priority); (5) the name, title, address and telephone number of a person who is knowledgeable about the regulation; (6) effects on small businesses and other entities (that is, whether the action is likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of "small entities" as defined by the Regulatory Flexibility Act) and effects on Federal, State, and local governments; (7) CFR citation (that is, portion of the Code of Regulations that will be affected); (8) legal authority (that is, a citation to the section of the United States Code (USC), Public Law (Pub. L.) or the Executive Order (EO) that authorizes the regulatory action); (9) abstract (that is, a description of the problem the regulation will address, the regulatory approach under consideration, the alternatives being considered for addressing the problem, and the potential costs and benefits of the action); (10) legal deadline (that is, the statuory or judicial deadline, if any); and (11) timetable (that is, the dates, and citations if applicable, for all past stages and at least the next stage of the rulemaking). In addition, each item regarding completed actions (that is, regulations completed or withdrawn and reviews completed since the preceding agenda) states the date, and citation if appropriate.

A draft of this agenda has been transmitted to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy of the Small Business Administration for comment, if any, to fulfill the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 602(b).

DOE's next agenda will be published in October 1989.

Issued in Washington, DC on February 17, 1989.

Frank Ruddy,

General Counsel.

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 436

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under the National Energy Conservation Policy Act, DOE has promulgated regulations establishing a methodology for estimating and comparing the life cycle costs of Federal buildings and for determining life cycle cost effectiveness. The Energy Security Act required that the regulations provide for the use of marginal energy costs in the life cycle cost analyses. DOE sought legislative revisions to authorize use of average energy costs rather than marginal costs. Appropriate legislative relief came with the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986. The current rulemaking would update base year prices and energy cost escalation rates based on current average energy cost projections. It would also eliminate the need for Federal Register publication of future annual updates so long as there is no significant change in the method for making average energy cost projections. In addition, the Federal Energy Management Improvement Act requires the Secretary of Energy to establish the discount rate for life cycle costing. The current rulemaking would include the methodology by which the discount rate will be established.

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory. The NAECA requires DOE determinations on need to amend Federal appliance standards in a period from 7/1/89 to 1/1/94. The statute requires completion of a second reanalysis of all(cont)

Abstract: The National Appliance Energy Conservation Act of 1987 (NAECA), as amended, extensively amends the Department's statutory authorities and responsibilities regarding energy efficiency standards for major household appliances. The NAECA establishes initial energy-efficiency standard levels for most types of major appliances and generally requires DOE to undergo two subsequent rulemakings, at specified times, to determine whether the extant standard for a covered product should be amended. These products are: refrigerators, refrigerator-freezers, and freezers; room air conditioners; central air conditioners and central air conditioning heat pumps; water heaters; pool heaters; direct heating equipment; furnaces; dishwashers; clothes washers; clothes dryers; kitchen ranges and ovens; and fluorescent lamp ballasts. Other appliances, including television sets, may be regulated by the Department essentially as provided for in prior law. This rulemaking will review the statutory standards for dishwashers, clothes washers and clothes dryers to determine whether those levels need to be amended.

527. ENERGY EFFICIENCY TEST PROCEDURES FOR WATER HEATERS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6293

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 430.22

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Final test procedures for 13 types of appliances were established during 1978. The test procedures form the basis of manufacturers' representations on the Federal Trade Commission's EnergyGuide label. In February 1984, DOE proposed to establish test procedures for heat pump water heaters and to eliminate the need for the test procedure waiver granted to A.O. Smith for its water heater with a thermal compensatory dip tube. Based on the comments received pursuant to the February 8, 1984 NPRM, the Department prepared a new NPRM published March 13, 1987. This NPRM proposed a single test procedure to cover gas, oil and electric water heaters as well as heat pump water heaters, and extended the test procedures to cover instantaneous type water heaters. In addition to the A.O. Smith matter, the rulemaking would eliminate the need for the test procedure waivers granted Bock Corp., Ford Products and Lockinvar Corp. for their high mass oil-fired water heaters.

529. ENERGY-EFFICIENCY STANDARDS FOR REFRIGERATORS AND RELATED PRODUCTS, SMALL GAS FURNACE AND TELEVISION SETS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6295

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 430.32

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory. The NAECA requires DOE determinations to amend Federal appliance standards in a period from 7/1/89 to 1/1/94. The Statute requires completion of a second reanalysis of all then-extant (cont)

Abstract: The National Appliance Energy Conservation Act of 1987 (NAECA), amended, extensively amends the Department's statutory authorities and responsibilities regarding energy efficiency standards for major household appliances. The NAECA establishes initial statutory energy-efficiency standard levels for most types of major appliances and generally requires the Department to undergo two subsequent rulemakings, at specified times, to determine whether the extant standard for a covered product should be amended. These products are: refrigerators, refrigerator-freezers, and freezers; room air conditioners; central air conditioners and central air conditioning heat pumps; water heaters; pool heaters; direct heating equipment; furnaces; dishwashers; clothes washers; clothes dryers; kitchen ranges and ovens; and fluorescent lamp ballasts. Other appliances, including television sets, may be regulated by the Department essentially as provided for in prior law. This rulemaking will review the statutory standard levels for refrigerators, refrigerator-freezers, and freezers to determine whether those levels need to be (cont)

530. ENERGY-EFFICIENCY TEST PROCEDURES FOR REFRIGERATOR-FREEZERS AND FREEZERS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6293

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 430.22

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: DOE has proposed to amend existing test procedures for refrigerator-freezers and freezers to alleviate the requirement for waivers for units equipped with variable defrost controls. The proposal also addresses refrigerator-freezers equipped with two compressors. The proposed amendments would eliminate the need for the test procedure waivers granted Whirlpool and White Consolidated Industries, Inc., for their variable defrost control refrigerator-freezers.

531. ENERGY CONSERVATION STANDARDS FOR WATER HEATERS; TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6292

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 430.32

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would be a technical amendment, based on water heater test procedure changes in progress (see 1904 - AA12), of the statutory standard for water heaters contained in the National Appliance Energy Conservation Act of 1987 (NAECA), as amended. This amendment could change the way the standard level is measured, but would not change the level of the minimum energy conservation standard itself. NAECA requires amendment of the applicable standard if the Secretary determines that an amended test procedure will alter the measured efficiency of the standard. This technical amendment of the standard is to be completed concurrently with the rulemaking with respect to the amended test procedure.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6321 to 6327

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 420, (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking has modified the prohibition in the State Energy Conservation Program (SECP) regulations on the purchase and installation of equipment and materials for energy conservation building retrofits and weatherization. This prohibition was relaxed in order to take advantage of the so-called petroleum violation escrow (PVE) funds the State elects to spend through the SECP. The funds will be used to promote the leveraging of funds through financial incentive mechanisms. As with all State SECP activities, actions taken under these amendments would have to be included in an approved program plan.

Abstract: The protection of certain of the Department's security interests, with the potential, if misused, of causing unacceptable damage to the national security, requires the implementation of a program designed to assure that individuals occupying positions affording access to certain material, facilities, and programs meet the highest standards of reliability. This action would establish a Q (R) access authorization for individuals applying for or currently holding a position identified as a personnel security assurance program (PSAP) position. The security clearance determination would, through a system of continuous evaluation, identify those individuals whose judgment may be impaired by physical and/or emotional disorders, the use of controlled substances, or the use of alcohol habitually to excess.

Abstract: Legislative changes and economic conditions have made it necessary to modify the regulatory language to comport with Congressional intent of the amended Fuel Use Act. Specifically, ERA has proposed to remove all language that relates to industrial facilities. The fuel price calculations and inflation indices used in the cost test calculations supporting exemptions based on a lack of alternate fuel at a cost that does not substantially exceed the cost of using imported petroleum will be changed. ERA has also proposed to insert language that will dramatically decrease the evidence that must be presented to qualify for an FUA exemption when a powerplant certifies to the technical and financial feasibility of using an alternate fuel at a future date.

Abstract: The regulation provides procedures and standards for obtaining a waiver of the Government's rights in inventions made under DOE research and development contracts with entities that are not small businesses or nonprofit institutions, and terms and conditions of such waivers. Currently, DOE waiver policy is provided in DOE Procurement Regulations (41 CFR 9-9.109-6). The proposed regulation places DOE patent waiver policy in a separate regulation, and also provides updates, revisions and clarifications to waiver policy as contained in 41 CFR 9-9.109-6.

Abstract: The regulations need to be amended to reflect the increase in the dollar amount of "minimal value." (Whether a gift is of minimal value is a factor as to whether the regulations apply.) The dollar amount of minimal value is determined by the General Services Administration, by GSA regulation. Accordingly, the DOE regulations will reference the GSA regulation.

559. INDEMNIFICATION OF DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY OFFICIALS AND EMPLOYEES

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7131; 42 USC 7231; 42 USC 7254; 28 CFR 50.15 (a)(7)(iii)

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 1012

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department of Energy does not have a policy for indemnifying its employees who are sued personally and suffer an adverse judgment as a result of conduct taken within the scope of employment. Lawsuits against Federal employees in their personal capacity can constitute a major impediment to the effective conduct of the public's business, since employees faced with the potential of being held personally liable may be inhibited in discharging their duties. To deal with this problem, the Department proposes to establish a policy permitting, but not requiring, the indemnification of an employee who suffers an adverse verdict, judgment, or other monetary award when the actions giving rise to liability were within the scope of his employment and indemnification is in the interest of the Government. This policy would be modeled on a similar policy already adopted by the Department of Justice for its employees.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7254; 5 USC 301; 28 CFR 1621

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 202

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The intent of this regulation is to establish an agency-wide procedure for processing and responding to subpoenas or requests for Department of Energy records or testimony by Department of Energy officers and employees. A regulation intended to fulfill this purpose currently exists. However, relocating its position in the Code of Federal Regulations and some minor language changes would clarify its applicability. In addition, efficient application of the regulation will be promoted by more closely modeling it on the comparable Department of Justice regulation, since the Department of Justice is usually responsible for representing the Department of Energy in such matters. The cost of this action is expected to be de minimis and could effect a savings, since clarification and recodification of the existing regulation may avoid needless litigation.

564. ● REVISIONS TO "QUALITY OF CARE" EXCLUSION AND PAYMENT DENIAL REGULATIONS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1320a-7(b)(6)(B); 42 USC 1320c-3(a)(2); 42 USC 1320c-5

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 1001; 42 CFR 1004; 42 CFR 466

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would revise and consolidate, where feasible, the principal regulations pertaining to "quality of care" exclusions from Medicare and other health care programs. Such exclusions may be based on the furnishing of excessive services, the failure to furnish care that meets professionally recognized standards of medical care, or the failure to properly document medical services. This rulemaking would attempt to make the various OIG regulations relating to such quality of care exclusions consistent with each other, consistent with HCFA's PRO payment denial regulations at 42 FR 466, and consistent with the case law that has been decided in the U.S. Courts of Appeals in recent years.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 74, Appendix E; 45 CFR 78

Abstract: This action will revise the Department's current cost principles for research and development activities under grants and contracts with hospitals to make them clearer, more specific, and compatible with cost principles issued by OMB for State and local units of government, educational institutions and nonprofit organizations. The revision will also broaden the coverage of the principles to include all grants, contracts and other agreements with hospitals (except the Medicare & Medicaid programs).

Abstract: This proposed rule would provide for CMPs for each violation against any risk-sharing organization that: (1) fails substantially to provide medically necessary items and services that are required under the contract; (2) imposes premiums on enrolled individuals in excess of premiums permitted; (3) acts to expel or refuse, or to re-enroll an individual; (4) misrepresents or falsifies information; (5) engages in any practice that would reasonably be expected to have the effect of denying or discouraging enrollment; or, (6) fails to provide for prompt payment of claims for services provided to enrollees. In addition, this rule would authorize the Medicare program to suspend enrollment of individuals in, and payment to a risk-sharing organization that (1) denies medically necessary care to a beneficiary or (2) commits marketing abuses or other violations specified in section 1876(i)(6) of the Social Security Act.

583. ● UNIFORM ADMINISTRATIVE REQUIREMENTS FOR GRANTS AND COOPERATIVE AGREEMENTS

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 74; 45 CFR 92

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Fiscal and Administrative requirements governing grants and cooperative agreements to non-governmental recipients are presently codified in an HHS-specific regulation (45 CFR Part 74). This rule would move those requirements (with many changes and additions) to a new rule (45 CFR Part 92) that would be virtually identical to the rules of 28 other federal agencies. The same action would also create a mechanism for applying a new set of liberalized rules to research grants. Since all Federal agencies' grants and cooperative agreements would henceforth be subject to identical rules, there should be administrative benefits for multi-award recipients and better understanding of the terms and conditions of awards.

Abstract: The Equal Access to Justice Act requires agencies to pay attorney fees to parties prevailing against the Government in certain types of administrative proceedings. It requires each agency to issue rules implementing the Act as it applies to these proceedings. As originally enacted, the Act had a sunset clause. A recent statutory amendment eliminated the sunset provision and made other changes in the Act. The instant regulation would amend 45 CFR Part 13 (HHS's regulation implementing the Act) to eliminate the corresponding sunset provision and to make other changes conforming with the statutory changes.

Abstract: Sections 4.00 and 104.00 of Appendix 1 of the Disability regulations (404.1501 through 404.1599) describe cardiovascular impairments considered severe enough to prevent an individual from doing any gainful or age-appropriate activities. Because of the advances in medical technologies and practice in this area we anticipate the need to revise the criteria in the Listing of Impairments to bring these sections up to date. The Supplemental Security Income program incorporates by reference and uses the same medical criteria as the Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance program.

Abstract: Sec. 2615 of Pub. L. 98-369 amended sec. 1127 of the Social Security Act to eliminate loopholes that permitted some people who were paid Old-Age, Survivors and Disability Insurance (OASDI) and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits retroactively to receive more in total benefits for the same period than if they had been paid the benefits when regularly due. The two main changes are: (1) SSI benefits will be reduced where retroactive OASDI benefits have been paid before the SSI benefits. Under prior law, reductions could be made only in retroactive OASDI benefits and only when the retroactive SSI had been paid first. (2) OASDI or SSI benefits payable upon reinstatement following a period of suspension or termination will be reduced by the amount of SSI benefits that would not have been paid if the OASDI benefits had been paid when regularly due. We will amend our regulations to conform to the statutory changes. The program savings to SSA are estimated as $5 million a year.

The 10 percent requirement will apply only to recipients in current payment status. The 10 percent limit will not apply in situations involving conditional disposition of resources agreements, misuse of burial funds, recovery by refund, cross program adjustment for individuals not in SSI current pay or where it is determined that the overpayment occurred because of recipient fraud, willful misrepresentation, or concealment. Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 402(x)(1); 42 USC 405

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404D

Abstract: Existing regulations at 20 CFR 404.468(d) provide a vocational rehabilitation exception to the nonpayment of benefits to prisoners provision described at 20 CFR 404.468(a). Under the exception, the nonpayment provision does not apply if a prisoner who is entitled to benefits on the basis of disability is actively and satisfactorily participating in a rehabilitation program which has been specifically approved for the individual by court of law. In addition, the Secretary must determine that the program is expected to result in the individual being able to do substantial gainful activity upon release and within a reasonable time. No benefits will be paid to the prisoner for any month prior to the approval of the program. The proposed regulations would set out more definitive criteria for applying the exception and would define terms, such as "rehabilitation program", "court of law", and "reasonable time", for purposes of applying the exception.

Abstract: Section 8 of Pub. L. 99-643 provides that effective for benefits payable for months after May 1986, an underpayment shall be paid to any surviving spouse of a deceased SSI recipient whether or not the spouse was eligible for SSI, if such spouse was living in the same household with the recipient at the time of death, or within the 6 months immediately preceding the month of death, or to the parent(s) of a deceased disabled or blind child who was an SSI recipient if the child was living with the parent(s) at the time of death or within the 6 months immediately preceding the month of death. These proposed regulations would also reflect a policy change that would continue the appeals process (versus automatic dismissal), at the Administrative Law Judge or Appeals Council level, for the survivors' entitlement to an underpayment if they meet certain conditions. The cost estimate for these provisions is estimated to be $2 million per year in program costs and less than $1 million and 30 workyears in administrative expenses.

Abstract: This proposed regulation will establish rules on the evidence an individual must submit with a request to correct the Secretary's record of earnings and state the conditions under which the Secretary will assist the requester in obtaining evidence that establishes such records as incorrect. This proposed regulation will reduce the number of unproductive efforts the agency makes to investigate unsubstantiated assertions that the Secretary's records are incorrect and facilitate the correction process in many cases by relying more upon evidence readily available to the requester.

Abstract: We are proposing to include in our regulations vocational evaluation standards used in determining disability under titles II and XVI of the Social Security Act (the Act). The guidelines apply to assessing past work as a vocational factor and evaluating medical-vocational circumstances demonstrating an inability to make an adjustment to other work. These standards are presently contained in Social Security Rulings (SSR's) and the Program Operating Manual System (POMS).

Abstract: These proposed regulations will place a limitation on the rates of payment a State may pay for laboratory tests purchased by State agencies. Under these proposed regulations a State agency will be required to limit the amounts it pays for laboratory tests to the maximum payment level contained in the Health Care Financing Administration's (HCFA) National Limitation Amounts for Laboratory Fee Schedules. Currently the only payment requirement is that the rates of payment not exceed the highest rates paid by Federal or other agencies in the State for the same or similar types of services.

Abstract: It is our policy that money borrowed (a loan) is not income for SSI purposes and therefore has no effect on a person's SSI benefits. These proposed regulations will state that only cash transactions may be considered loans. These proposed regulations will also provide that the one-third reduction rule which applies when a person who lives in another's household and receives in-kind support and maintenance will not apply if the SSI recipient pays his or her pro rata share in cash and no later than the month under consideration. No additional costs or savings are anticipated since these proposed regulations will codify existing policy.

Abstract: These regulations reflect recently enacted statutory changes that extend social security coverage to work situations not previously covered. These newly covered work situations include: (1) Inactive duty training in the uniformed services; (2) Certain agriculture labor situations; and (3) Work for a spouse or parent. Additionally, the year for reporting corporate directors income has been changed, and Medicare coverage is provided to many previously uncovered State and local government employees. Also, a recently enacted statutory provision (section 8017 of PL 100-647) further revised our coverage provisions relating to agricultural wages.

Abstract: We are proposing to revise our rules on reducing the Social Security spouse's benefits of a person who is also receiving a Government pension based on noncovered employment. The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 (PL 100-203, sec 9007) requires that a Federal Government employee who elects to be covered under Social Security after December 31, 1987 must work for at least 60 months after that date in order to avoid the reduction after he or she becomes entitled to Social Security spouse's benefits.That requirement is extended to the foreign service pension system by the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988 (PL 100-647), which also provides that under certain circumstances the reduction does not apply to any individual who retires before his or her coverage election becomes effective.

Abstract: Section 9106 of P.L. 100-203 exempts certain income from retrospective monthly accounting in determining a person's Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefit amount. Generally, an SSI benefit for a month is computed using income from two months prior. Section 9106, which is reflected in this regulation change, provides for the following types of income to be used only in the month received to compute the benefit amount: (1) Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC); (2) Foster Care (Title IV-E); (3) Refugee Cash Assistance; (4) Cuban and Haitian Entrant Assistance; and (5) Bureau of Indian Affairs general assistance and child welfare assistance. Abstract: The proposed rules will reflect section 9109 of Pub. L. 100-203. They raise the amount of the emergency advance payment that can be paid to a person presumptively eligible for SSI payments. Because the emergency advance payment is an advance of benefits and later deducted from the benefits due an individual, no increased costs are anticipated.

They extend Interim Assistance Reimbursement to cases in which assistance is provided by a State while an individual's Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments are suspended or terminated and then subsequently reinstated. Current regulations provide for reimbursement to a State only for interim assistance payments made while an individual's initial application for SSI is pending. No additional program costs are anticipated since the amount reimbursed to the State is later deducted from the individual's SSI payments.

Abstract: The regulation reflects the provisions of section 9120 of Pub. Abstract: This proposed rule will change one of the requirements for determining whether an insured person is contributing to the support of a child at a specific time. The requirements that contributions be made regularly and be large enough to meet an important part of a child's living expenses will be replaced by a requirement that consideration be given to the economic circumstances of both the insured person and the child and that recognition also be given to the child's needs. Because of the minimal number of persons who will be affected by these proposed changes any additional program costs will be negligible.

Abstract: We have learned that old-age and survivors' insurance beneficiaries whose estimate of earnings for the current year is more than the exempt amount for that year, but is equal to or less than the prior year's earnings, tend to underestimate or fail to report their work for the next year which results in overpayments. We are proposing an addition to the current regulation which will clarify that our interpretation of Section 203(h)(3) and (h)(4) of the Social Security Act permits SSA to request estimates of earnings for the next taxable year as well as the current taxable year. If a beneficiary does not furnish the requested future year's earnings estimate, we will use the estimate for the current year to determine whether to withhold benefits

Abstract: This change permits the continued payment of disability benefits to persons who medically recover while participating in a vocational rehabilitation (VR) program, without regard to whether the person was expected at the onset of the VR program to medically recover before the scheduled completion date of the program and without regard to whether the person has any residual functional limitation. These changes bring the regulations into conformity with certain recent court decisions.

Abstract: The regulations include standards for obtaining consultative examinations, the types of consultative examination referrals to be made, and monitoring procedures for consultative examinations and the referral process. The regulations also provide for evaluating all medical evidence of record and developing a 12-month medical history. References to "medical assessments" will be replaced by references to medical source statements as to what a person can still do despite his or her impairment(s). The regulations also set forth the standards to be used in evaluating the medical opinions of treating and other medical sources. The changes will not have any significant impact on either administrative or program costs.

Abstract: Public Law 98-460 created 2 new provisions under which SSA will pay vocational rehabilitation (VR) agencies for the costs of services provided to disabled or blind social security beneficiaries or SSI recipients. Under the first new provision, SSA will allow payment to vocational rehabilitation agencies (VRAs) for the costs of VR services provided to individuals continuing to receive payment because they are participating in a VR program after their period of disability has ceased due to their medical recovery. The second new provision allows payment to VRAs for the costs of VR services provided to beneficiaries/recipients who refuse without good cause to continue or to cooperate in a VR program in such a way as to preclude their successful rehabilitation with such refusal resulting in the nonpayment of their disability or blindness payments. It is estimated that the first year costs of this program will be less than 1 million dollars.

Abstract: This provision of the law requires us to consider the combined effect of all of a person's impairments in determining disability regardless of whether any single impairment, if considered separately, would be of sufficient severity. If we do find a medically severe combination of impairments, the combined impact of the impairments must be considered throughout the disability determination process. When the combined effect is found to be severe, the person's impairments are evaluated throughout the full sequential evaluation process. We are revising the regulations to explain in greater detail how we consider the combined effect of multiple impairments.

Abstract: These proposed regulations withdraw the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NPRM) published at 52 FR 2537 on January 23, 1987. That NPRM described a new type of Social Security ruling (Social Security Acquiescence Ruling or "Acquiescence Ruling"), which is available to the public. These proposed regulations reflect a new proposed policy explaining the manner in which we will apply decisions of the United States Courts of Appeals, that we determine conflict with Social Security Administration policy in adjudicating claims under title II and title XVI of the Social Security Act and title IV, Part B of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977. The regulation changes will become effective on the date of publication of final regulations.

Abstract: If the court remands a case and the SSA Appeals Council remands it to an administrative law judge (ALJ), under current regulations the ALJ returns the case to the Appeals Council with a recommended decision, and the Appeals Council must review that decision and take further action in every case before the decision becomes final. This can involve delay. The regulation would permit the ALJ to make a decision which would become final unless, within 30 days after the decision is received, the claimant files exceptions or within that period requests an extension of time to file exceptions, or within 60 days after the date of the decision the Appeals Council decides to review the decision on its own. The change will permit more timely final decisions, and result in administrative savings of about $1 million per year, due to a reduction in the number of personnel required to review the ALJ decision.It will not affect program cost.

Abstract: PL 98-21 changed the timing of crediting deferred compensation for Social Security purposes. It also changed the treatment of retirement pay depending upon whether it is paid under a qualified deferred compensation plan. Further, it excluded from coverage various fringe benefits and payments under a Simplified Employee Pension Plan. Finally, the amendments codify certain provisions pertaining to meals and lodging and tax-sheltered annuities. PL 98-369 amended the wage exclusion for qualified bond purchase plans. PL 99-514 excluded from coverage payments under a cafeteria plan; amended the law for determining self- employment income when an individual works for a church or church-controlled organization which has elected not to pay social security taxes; and amended the law for receiving an exemption from social security coverage for members of religious orders, ministers, and Christian Science practitioners. We are adding to the final rule the provisions in Sec 9003 of PL 100-203 and Sec 8013 of PL 100-647 concerning wage exclusion of group life insurance payments. These regulations merely reflect the above provisions and do not add substantive rules.

L. 100-203 (the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987) dealing with the disposition and transfer of resources in determining eligibility for SSI benefits. The cost/savings and workyear impact for these regulations have been estimated to be insignificant.

Abstract: These interim regulations will reflect sections 9113, 9114, and 9119 of Pub.L. 100-203 by increasing the number of months an individual who resides in a public emergency shelter for the homeless may be eligible for SSI payments, by temporarily extending the time period during which any retroactive payments made under the title II and title XVI programs will be excluded from resources, and increasing the benefit rate for persons in medical institutions where Medicaid pays more than one-half the cost of their care. We anticipate only a negligible increase in program costs.

659. OLD-AGE, SURVIVORS, AND DISABILITY INSURANCE PROGRAM; SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBERS FOR NEWBORN CHILDREN

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 405

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 422.103

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under the proposed rule, a parent will be able to request a Social Security number in the hospital when he or she provides birth registration information for a newborn child. The State vital statistics office will receive the information and the request from the hospital and electronically transmit this information to the Social Security Administration (SSA). SSA will assign a Social Security number to the child and send a card to the parents. We expect annual savings of $11.4 million. A pilot project in three States has shown this procedure to be efficient and well-received.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 100-690

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 96

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 2027 of Public Law 100-690 amends Section 1916 of the PHS Act to set a floor on the amount States must spend each year beginning in FY 1991 from Alcohol and Drug Abuse and Mental Health Services Block Grant funds for new mental health services and programs. However, the Secretary may grant any State that he determines to be in a financial crisis a waiver lowering that floor by up to a certain amount. The Act requires that such determinations be based on standards published in regulations. Issues to be resolved in regulations include: (a) how to determine when a State is in a financial crisis; (b) what information States must provide to assure that a waiver is needed to avoid disruption to existing and planned high priority services; (c) how to determine the extent of relief to be granted for approved waivers; and (d) imposing requirements that are cost effective.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 801; 30 USC 844; 30 USC 957

Abstract: The proposed rule addresses three major problems of the current regulation by (l) substantially upgrading laboratory performance tests for certifying respirators; (2) adding quantitative face seal performance tests; and (3) replacing current certification tests that are design- or application-specific with tests that are performance-based. The first NPRM for revising 42 CFR Part 84 was published in the Federal Register on August 27, 1987 (52 FR 32402). In response to the many comments on the first proposal, NIOSH is in the process of developing a second NPRM.

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 110

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, December 22, 1988.

Abstract: This new regulation is required to implement the statutory requirements of Section 2126, Title XXI, Public Health Service Act as amended. The statute requires the Secretary to develop and disseminate vaccine information materials for distribution by health care providers. These materials will be published as an appendix of this regulation. The regulation describes the vaccine information materials and the health care providers' duties to disseminate a copy of the materials to any adult to whom the provider intends to administer vaccine and to the legal representative of any child to whom the provider intends to administer vaccine. Significance: Agency Priority

Abstract: The revised regulation will clarify the requirements for packaging and shipping material containing etiologic agents. Some users have had difficulty applying the current regulation, particularly with respect to the definition of material covered. The revised regulation is not expected to have a major impact on the cost of shipping these materials and is expected to result in increased conformance so that those handling such packages will have an even lower probability of exposure to potentially infectious material.

Abstract: This regulation sets forth procedures the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry (ATSDR) will follow in determining when and how to conduct health assessments and health effects studies at hazardous substances releases and facilities. In addition to CERCLA-authorized health assessments and health effects studies, this regulation also applies to ATSDR health assessment activity under the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA) (42 USC 6939a(c)). This proposal also contains provisions pertaining to the establishment of administrative records for ATSDR health assessments and health effects studies, for tracking costs of these studies for cost recovery purposes, and for safeguarding trade secret and other confidential information.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: PL 99-660 Drug Export Amendments Act of 1986

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Drug Export Amendments Act of 1986 authorizes the export for commercial marketing abroad of veterinary and human drugs not approved for marketing in the United States. Under previous law, the export of new human and animal drugs for marketing was confined to drugs that were approved by FDA for domestic use. The law establishes three separate pathways for the export of unapproved products. Under each pathway, FDA approval is required before export is permitted. As a prerulemaking activity, FDA is developing guidance material for manufacturers instructing them as to what information must be submitted to the agency to obtain approval for the export of unapproved products. The guidance material will also identify FDA sources of information on agency practices and policies concerning the implementation of the Drug Export Amendments Act of 1986. The agency will then decide what, if any, regulations are necessary for the efficient implementation of the amendments, and establish timeframes for the development of those regulations.

Abstract: As a prerulemaking activity, FDA is developing guidance for manufacturers respecting how FDA would apply existing statutory requirements to the regulation of computer products (i.e., both hardware and software) when such products meet the definition of a medical device under the act.

On September 25, 1987, FDA made available a draft policy guidance intended to clarify how FDA would apply existing statutory requirements to the regulation of such products to provide opportunity for public participation in this activity.

Upon analysis of the public comments on the complex issues pertaining to the regulation of computer products, the agency will decide whether any additional steps are necessary to clarify which computer products meet the definition of a medical device and what level of regulation, if any, is appropriate under the act.

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 606

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: FDA is responsible for issuing regulatory standards for blood and blood components to ensure the continued safety, purity, and potency of such products. Since 1975, CGMP regulations have been in effect that provide standards for facilities, personnel, and manufacturing procedures for blood and blood components. In accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act, FDA has conducted a retrospective review of its CGMP regulations for blood and blood components, to determine how the regulations may be revised to relieve regulatory burdens and increase flexibility without adversely affecting the public health. Part of the retrospective review of the CGMP will be completed through FDA's implementation of an efficacy review of blood and blood derivatives which responds to recommendations of a Committee of scientific experts--the Panel on Review of Blood and Blood Derivatives. To complete the remainder of the retrospective review program regarding the CGMP, FDA will issue a proposed rule to revise the CGMP regulations.

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 514.1; 21 CFR 514.8

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Based upon an evaluation of an action issues report, the agency has concluded that it will recommend that the Secretary propose revision of the existing regulations in a manner consistent with the current procedural regulations for human drugs where appropriate. The New Animal Drug Application (NADA) revisions would articulate general requirements in regulations containing performance standards and would complement them through detailed guidelines on, among other matters, appropriate ways of meeting requirements for submission of chemistry, pharmacology, and statistical data that would better address the intricate scientific issues involved. Although the guidelines would not establish regulatory requirements, persons would be able to rely on them with confidence that action taken under a guideline would be acceptable to the agency.

374 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 42 USC 262 Public Health Service Act

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 211; 21 CFR 310; 21 CFR 600

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulatory action is being taken to improve the safety of marketed drug products by a reporting scheme that will require serious adverse reactions associated with licensed biological products to be reported to the Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

The purpose of the regulatory action is to require prompt reporting to the agency of serious adverse experiences for all licensed biological products.

The regulatory action being considered by FDA would be consistent with the agency's requirements regarding adverse reactions reporting for approved new drugs under 21 CFR 314.80 (see February 22, 1985; 50 FR 7452). These biologic regulations would require that all "serious and unexpected" adverse experiences and any "significant increase in frequency" of a serious expected event be reported to the agency within 15 working days. Known and nonserious adverse biological product experiences would be required to be reported to the agency at quarterly or annual intervals, depending on the length of marketing experience with the product. 677. PROPOSED RULE TO IMPLEMENT THE ORPHAN DRUG AMENDMENTS TO THE FEDERAL FOOD, DRUG, AND COSMETIC ACT

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 97-414 Orphan Drug Act; PL 100-290

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Orphan Drug Act is intended to provide incentives for drug companies to invest in the development of drugs for rare diseases or conditions. Certain incentives are necessary because "orphan drugs" are unlikely to be profitable. The agency is required to carry out provisions of the Orphan Drug Act, e.g., by designating a drug as an orphan drug, by providing protocol assistance, and by granting seven years of exclusive approval status. The proposed rule would establish procedures whereby drug sponsors can take advantage of the incentives to encourage development of orphan drugs. While several provisions of the Orphan Drug Act call for promulgation of regulations, the agency is considering the extent to which regulations will be needed to provide the framework and guidance for implementing a program of incentives to drug sponsors and manufacturers.

678. IMPLEMENTATION OF TITLE I OF THE "DRUG PRICE COMPETITION AND PATENT TERM RESTORATION ACT OF 1984" (TITLE I)

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: PL 98-417, (Title I)

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Until the passage of Title I of the "Drug Price Competition and Patent Term Restoration Act of 1984," abbreviated new drug application (ANDA) procedures were only available for generic products equivalent to pioneer drugs approved before 1962. Title I opened up the ANDA policy to generic copies of products approved after 1962. This rulemaking is intended to establish clear and uniform procedures for the review and timely approval of ANDAs. This should assist the generic drug industry by ending considerable confusion about the procedures governing review of ANDAs. In turn, with the availability of lower-cost generic products, it is estimated that consumers may save millions of dollars. The statute calls for promulgation of implementing regulations, however, the agency also expects to develop guidelines and other policy statements to assist in developing approvable applications. Revised target dates for this regulatory action are appropriate because many new issues have been identified in petitions and letters to the agency from trade associations and attorneys representing individual manufacturers concerning exclusivity, patent coverage, (cont)

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 7; 21 CFR 106

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The agency is preparing two proposals and one final rule which will implement the Infant Formula Act of 1986. The final rule will amend FDA's Infant Formula Recall regulations. These amended regulations will mandate the recall of infant formulas that are in violation of the Act and which have been determined by the Secretary to pose a health hazard. The first proposal will establish current good manufacturing practice regulations and strengthen the agency's existing quality control procedures for infant formulas. The second proposal will establish infant formula microbiological testing, consumer complaints, and record retention requirements.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 21 USC 342(a)(1)

Abstract: FDA is considering a proposed rule that would (1) amend its regulations creating and describing action levels for added poisonous or deleterious substances in food (including animal feed) to make clear that these action levels are prosecutorial guidelines rather than substantive rules, and (2) revoke the provisions for exceptions to action levels in 21 CFR Part 109 (human food) and 21 CFR Part 509 (animal feed).

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 21 USC 351 to 360k; 21 USC 374; 42 USC 262 to 264

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The agency currently requires that all blood and blood components intended for the manufacture of any product be tested for antibody to human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). In instances when the blood of a donor is found to contain antibodies to HIV, some blood centers have initiated a program of voluntary "look-back" in which recipients of blood and blood components obtained from the donor's prior donations are traced and tested. A well-conducted look-back program can provide an effective mechanism for identifying, testing, and counseling transfusion recipients who are at increased risk of HIV infection--those who receive blood from a donor later found to be infected with HIV. The agency is considering a proposal to establish a mandatory look-back program. The proposal would require that blood collection facilities notify the appropriate transfusion facilities as soon as an infected donor is identified and implement a system of followup to ensure that either recipients are notified or that the physician of record determined that notification was inappropriate or was not possible.

Abstract: The agency is considering a proposal to establish a revised regulatory standard for ceramic food-service pitchers, excluding creamers, that would reduce the allowable limit of the leaching of lead from the glazes and decorations on the food-contact surface of these pitchers to below the current standard of 2.5 micrograms per milliliter of test solution. The proposal would also provide that decorative

Abstract: The Food and Drug Administration and the National Institute on Drug Abuse are considering a proposal to revise the conditions for the use of methadone in the maintenance treatment of narcotic addicts. The proposal would allow programs to provide minimum service (interim) maintenance treatment to patients awaiting placement in comprehensive maintenance treatment and require programs to provide counseling on avoidance of human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) transmission. These requirements are being considered in response to the HIV epidemic and are intended to allow more narcotic addicts into treatment more quickly, thereby decreasing the incidence of intravenous drug abuse and the transmission of HIV.

Abstract: Acceptable evidence and information exists to show that a subgroup of asthmatics is at moderate to severe risk for a severe reaction upon exposure to sulfites. The agency's primary tool for handling a situation where population subgroups may be at increased risk from a food ingredient that is safe for most people is to use labeling to inform those persons who need or want to avoid the ingredient. The agency issued a final rule, effective January 7, 1987, that requires that when a sulfiting agent is present in a finished food at 10 parts per million or greater, the sulfiting agent must be declared on the label. In addition, FDA issued a final rule, effective August 8, 1986, prohibiting the use of sulfiting agents on raw fruits and vegetables intended to be served or sold raw to consumers (e.g., in salad bars). On December 10, 1987, FDA announced its tentative conclusion that there is no longer a basis to find that the use of sulfiting agents on "fresh" potatoes served or sold unpackaged to consumers is GRAS. On December 19, 1988, FDA proposed to affirm, with specific limitations, that certain other uses of sulfiting agents are GRAS. (cont)

Abstract: Substantial progress has been made in reducing the number of provisionally listed additives and only 1 color additive remains on the provisional list. The agency is presently reviewing petitions to list the color additive permanently. Because FD&C Red No. 3 animal feeding studies have shown a treatment-related increased incidence of tumor bearing animals, the agency considered the use of quantitative risk assessment as a basis for assessing the safety of this color additive in external drugs and cosmetics. As a preliminary step in its consideration of this approach, the agency formed a scientific peer review panel of government scientists to consider whether it is possible to quantify the risk presented by the use of FD&C Red No. 3 based on the scientific data available to the agency and, if so, what level of risk is presented by the use of this color additive. The agency has received the report from the scientific review panel in which the panel estimates the risk of cancer from use of FD&C Red No. 3 in external drugs and cosmetics. Furthermore, for FD&C Red No. 3 the industry has postulated a secondary mechanism for the observed tumorigenic response in the animal feeding (cont)

Abstract: In the FEDERAL REGISTER of August 4, 1987, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) discussed an initiative concerning health-related claims or information on food labeling and the criteria it will apply in evaluating the propriety of such labeling. Consistent with this initiative, FDA proposed to amend certain regulations on food labeling to codify and to clarify its policy on the appropriate use of health-related messages. The agency also announced its intention to form a Public Health Service (PHS) committee that will attempt to develop "health messages" appropriate for use on food labeling.

FDA recognizes that this initiative represents a substantive change in past agency policy, and because of the complexity of the matter and the broad public interest, wishes to proceed cautiously and deliberately in its regulatory approach.

Pending this rulemaking proceeding, the agency will employ the criteria discussed in the preamble to the notice in evaluating the propriety of bringing enforcement action against products bearing health messages on food labeling.

Abstract: In the FEDERAL REGISTER of November 25, 1986, the agency published a proposed rule that would provide a mechanism to allow relevant, truthful, and nonmisleading claims about cholesterol and fatty acid on product labeling for consumers. This proposed rule resulted from the medical and consumer interest in the association between dietary fat and cholesterol and the occurrence of coronary heart disease, the leading cause of death and disability in the United States today. The proposed rule would allow industry voluntarily to provide consumers with cholesterol and fatty acid information currently prohibited by regulations by permitting the use of meaningful descriptors of the cholesterol content of foods as established by regulation (e.g., "cholesterol free," "low cholesterol," and "reduced cholesterol"). Additionally, the proposal would allow the use of comparative claims (e.g., 50 percent less cholesterol than our original product), provided quantitative cholesterol content information is supplied. Public comments submitted in response to the proposed rule are being reviewed.

Abstract: Methylene chloride is used as a solvent in aerosol cosmetic products (hair sprays). Recent carcinogenicity bioassay studies, however, have shown that methylene chloride is an animal carcinogen. These studies indicate that the continued use of methylene chloride, in functional amounts, in such cosmetic products may pose a significant risk to the public health, especially in specific segments of the population that are continually exposed to aerosol cosmetics containing methylene chloride. The agency has been informed of voluntary efforts by the cosmetic industry to replace methylene chloride.

Abstract: In 1980, FDA published a regulation (21 CFR 102.33) to require the declaration of the percent of juice contained in all diluted juice beverages. This regulation was published to extend the percent juice declaration required for diluted orange juice beverages (21 CFR 102.32) to all other diluted juice beverages. These two regulations were developed to provide consumers with information as to the various amounts of juice in the diluted juice beverages offered for sale. With publication of 21 CFR 102.33, a controversy developed over the applicability of the regulation to diluted cranberry juice beverages. The controversy centered around the fact that cranberry juice is a high acid juice and is not normally consumed as a single strength juice. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 21 USC 351 to 357; 21 USC 371; 42 USC 262

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 312

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In the FEDERAL REGISTER of October 21, 1988 (53 FR 41561), FDA issued an interim rule effective upon date of publication, with opportunity for public comment, that set forth procedures designed to speed the availability of new therapies to desperately ill patients, while preserving appropriate guarantees for safety and effectiveness. These procedures are intended to facilitate the development, evaluation, and marketing of such products, especially where no satisfactory alternative therapies exist. These procedures reflect the recognition that physicians and patients are generally willing to accept greater risks or side effects from products that treat life-threatening and severely-debilitating illness. These procedures also reflect the recognition that the benefits of the drug need to be evaluated in light of the severity of the disease being treated. The procedures apply to life-threatening or severely-debilitating illnesses. The agency is reviewing the public comments submitted in response to the interim rule and preparing a FEDERAL REGISTER document that will respond to these comments.

Abstract: Public Law 93-638 passed in 1975, requires the IHS to turn over administrative responsibility to tribes so requesting, using the mechanism of contracting. Public Law 93-638 also authorizes the IHS to make grants to tribe(s) for the planning, development, and/or operations of health programs. Public Law 100-472, enacted October 5, 1988, significantly expands the scope of programs covered beyond those administered by IHS. This Act further provided that all contracting requirements be contained in regulations promulgated in final within ten months of enactment. The Law provides for tribal consultation and participation in the development of the regulations.

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 50

Abstract: Recipients of Public Health Service research and research training funds do not presently have sufficient guidance regarding their responsibility to investigate and report possible misconduct in PHS-funded research or research training. While many institutions have voluntarily established procedures for dealing with misconduct in science, they are not required to do so and in many recent instances the lack of defined procedures has delayed or compromised awardees' investigations. Institutional policies regarding reports to funding agencies vary considerably. The proposed regulation will define the point at which funding agencies are notified and will require awardees to develop procedures for dealing with misconduct in science. Section 493 of the PHS Act requires that the HHS Secretary issue regulations.

Abstract: These regulations will implement provisions of section 948 of P.L. 98-499 and section 2307 of P.L. 98-369. This legislation deals with certain problems that have arisen in the Medicare program with respect to payment for physicians in the teaching setting. Specifically addressed by Congress is the problem of distinguishing between the services a physician furnishes to individual patients as a teaching physician and services furnished to the provider, as well as the method of reimbursement for these services. This rule sets forth the conditions under which physicians in teaching settings will be reimbursed on a reasonable cost basis or, alternatively, on a reasonable charge basis. It also describes the methods used to determine the customary charges for the services of those physicians. This rule will also clarify related issues of physician reimbursement.

Abstract: This rule proposes to revise the Medicare regulations to clarify the definition of "accrual basis of accounting" to indicate that expenses must be incurred by provider of health care services before Medicare will pay its share of those expenses. This change is intended to conform the regulations with the law and to promote economy and efficiency in the administration of the Medicare program.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule proposes to establish optional prospective payment rates for routine services furnished by certain skilled nursing facilities. The prospective rate would be on a per diem basis and would include payment for the cost of furnishing general inpatient routine services and associated capital-related costs. Ancillary services will be paid on the basis of reasonable cost. As specified in the Conference Committee Report accompanying PL 99-272, the rates paid to proprietary SNFs would include a component for the routine service portion of the return on equity capital. As specified in section 1861(v)(1)(B) of the Act, the return on equity component would only be included in the rate paid to proprietary SNFs. This rule would propose instructions for determining eligibility for payment under this system, and the methodology for calculating the prospective payment rates. Freestanding SNFs electing to be paid under this prospective payment system may file a simplified cost report.

Abstract: Under this final notice, hospital-based home health agencies accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation for Healthcare Organizations' and home health agencies accredited by the National League for Nursing are considered or "deemed" to meet the Medicare conditions of participation. Thus, these agencies will not ordinarily be subject to an inspection by State survey agencies to determine their compliance with Federal requirements. As a result of the home health agency's deemed status, a State also can choose to permit the agency to participate as a provider under the Medicaid program.

750. APPLICATION OF THE COMPARABLE SERVICES LIMITATION IN DETERMINING REASONABLE CHARGES

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1395u(b)(3)(B); 42 USC 1302; 42 USC 1395hh

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 405.508

Abstract: This proposed rule would clarify the circumstances under which Medicare carriers are to apply the comparable services limitation in making their determination of a reasonable charge for Medicare Part B services. Under section 1842(b)(3)(B) of the Act, carriers are prohibited from making a determination of a reasonable charge that would be higher than the charge upon which it would base payment to its own policyholders for a comparable service under comparable circumstances. Currently, there is a great deal of confusion among the carriers as to what constitutes comparable services and comparable circumstances, the result of which is that very few carriers are applying the comparable services limitation in their reasonable charge determination. We would revise the regulations to more clearly state how the comparable services limitation should be implemented by the carriers.

Regulation must be promulgated containing methodology. Section 1914(d)(5)(B)(iii)

Abstract: This regulation would implement section 1915(d) of the Act. These rules would allow a State to provide skilled nursing facility (SNF), intermediate care facility (ICF), and home and community-based services to individuals 65 years of age and older, in exchange for a "cap" on the amount of money for which Medicaid Federal financial participation would be available. The program would be administered by means of waivers which a State could request. As currently constructed, the statute allows for waivers of statewideness, comparability, and income deeming. Home and community-based services could be made available to individuals age 65 or older who are shown by an evaluation to be likely to require the level of care provided in an SNF or ICF, the cost for which could be paid by Medicaid. For States electing this option, the waiver would replace the home and community-based services waivers available under section 1915(c) of the Act, for individuals in this age category.

Abstract: This proposed regulation would provide health maintenance organizations (HMOs) which are federally qualified under Title XIII of the Public Health Service Act with greater flexibility in offering other health benefit plans in addition to their qualified HMO products. It would also authorize with certain limitations, qualified HMOs to offer out-of-plan physician services and require a reasonable deductible for those services.

Abstract: These proposed regulations would amend existing regulations to conform them to sections 5(b), 6(a), and 7 of Public Law 100-517, the Health Maintenance Organization Amendments of 1988. Specifically, the proposal would: (a) require that employer contributions not financially discriminate against HMO enrollees; (b) repeal the requirement that employers, under certain circumstances, offer federally qualified HMOs to their employees (the "dual choice" requirement), effective October 24, 1995; and (c) include additional conforming changes.

Abstract: Amendments to the Clinical Laboratory Improvement Act of 1988 (CLIA) require all clinical laboratories to be regulated regardless of their ownership, location or of how few tests they perform. This proposed rule would set forth provisions of CLIA '88 that are not self-implementing. (The self-implementing provisions are contained in the final regulation "Review of Current Rules Affecting Clinical Laboratories.") This rule would contain requirements for performance standards for laboratories not regulated under CLIA as of December 31, 1988, that may vary depending on the complexity of the testing and a provision that will allow some laboratories that perform only simple examinations and procedures that have a low risk of erroneous results, a waiver from the standards and inspections. The proposed rule will also contain the requirements that would address fees for certified laboratories as well as laboratories issued a certificate of waiver from standards and inspections. The fees would be charged to meet administrative costs, as well as the cost of onsite inspections and ongoing monitoring of laboratory performance.

Abstract: This final rule revises the regulations governing the Medicaid eligibility quality control (MEQC) program to include more specified program requirements and to establish new time frames for completing and reporting MEQC case findings to HCFA. The final rule also establishes a performance-based threshold for States to meet before HCFA will consider good faith waiver requests of disallowance of Federal financial participation in erroneous Medicaid payments and provides more definitive criteria for evaluating States good faith efforts to meet the national standard error rate. In addition, the rule makes several technical changes and specifies that States may rebut their quarterly projected error rates when they can present evidence that the projected rates were based on erroneous data. The revisions will strengthen the MEQC program and provide flexibility and incentives to States to produce more accurate Medicaid eligibility determinations.

Abstract: Currently, hospital-based and independent laboratories are subject to varying State Licensure requirements and to Medicare regulations that vary from requirements of private accreditation entities and from regulations governing laboratories performing tests under interstate commerce. One consequence is that the quality of laboratories' services is adjudged using different standards. Inconsistent standards not only create confusion regarding necessary performance levels, but may permit laboratories with substandard performance to continue furnishing covered services. This rule will establish better measures of performance and amend requirements to improve the quality of laboratory services. It will also include the self implementing provisions of the Clinical Laboratory Improvement Amendments of 1988. The self-implementing provisions of CLIA '88 that will be added to these regulations will require the issuance of certificates to clinical laboratories in lieu of licenses, and eliminate the exemptions from CLIA that apply to intrastate and low-volume laboratories. Abstract: This rule revises regulations to reflect recent statutory provisions regarding HCFA's right to bring an action directly against certain third parties or to join or intervene in an action against a third party. It would also place certain requirements on hospitals regarding the identification and billing of potential Medicare secondary payor cases. Additionally, it would include requirements regarding timely refunds to Medicare when collections have been made from another insurer. It also clarifies rules for Medicare payment for services furnished to an end-stage renal disease (ESRD) patient who is also covered under an employer group health plan. It would include the changes pertaining to Medicare conditional payments for ESRD beneficiaries made by section 4036(a) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987. It would update policies pertaining to Medicare payment for services covered under a workers' compensation law or plan, or under no-fault or liability insurance. It would make Medicare secondary to all kinds of no-fault insurance, not just automobile no-fault insurance.

Abstract: These regulations make explicit in the regulations HCFA's policy on the relationship between State Medicaid eligibility determinations based on disability and disability determinations by SSA under the Supplemental Security Income Program. The regulations incorporate the conditions under which the State agency must make independent determinations of disability and the effect of only SSA determination on Medicaid eligibility. The regulations also conform the Medicaid provisions on composition of medical review teams, required information, and the time limit for making determinations more closely to those used by SSA in making SSI determinations. Because of numerous questions raised and litigation, it is necessary to clarify our policy on the controlling nature of SSI disability determinations on Medicaid eligibility.

Abstract: This final rule will implement sections 9121 and 9122 of PL 99-272 as amended by PL 100-203. Specifically, under section 9121, Medicare participating hospitals with emergency departments would be required to provide upon request medical examinations and treatments for individuals with emergency medical conditions and women in active labor. Hospitals failing to meet those requirements may have their Medicare provider agreements suspended or terminated. In addition, the hospital and the responsible physician may each be subject to a civil money penalty for each such violation. Under section 9122, Medicare participating hospitals would be required to accept CHAMPUS and CHAMPVA payment as payment in full for services provided to CHAMPUS and CHAMPVA beneficiaries. These regulations will also implement section 233 of PL 99-576, which requires Medicare hospitals to admit veterans. They will also implement section 9305(b)(1) of PL 99-509, which requires Medicare hospitals to give patients a notice of their discharge rights.

Abstract: This final rule amends the Medicaid regulations to specify for Medicaid, mandatory categorically needy eligibility for individuals who, although severely impaired, work and demonstrate ability to perform substantial gainful activity and who are considered to be Supplemental Security Income (SSI) beneficiaries by virtue of 1619 of the Act. It also specifies how States electing the option under Section 1902(f) of the Social Security Act to provide Medicaid under criteria more restrictive than SSI, will treat the "1619" individuals. It also specifies how SSI payments made to certain institutionalized individuals are to be disregarded as income under Medicaid for up to two months. The amendments conform the regulations to provisions of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 and the Employment Opportunities for Disabled.

Abstract: This final rule implements section 8424 of the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988. physicians. It also extends the same exemption to providers of outpatient speech pathology and speech pathologists in independent practice. It affects care provided to non-Medicare patients only. The requirements for physician involvement continue to apply for services provided to Medicare beneficiaries. The purpose of the rule is to relieve providers of outpatient physical therapy and speech pathology and independent therapists of an unnecessary burden imposed by current Federal regulations. States would have the flexibility under State law to establish the most appropriate requirements for non-Medicare patients in need of physical therapy or speech pathology services.

Abstract: This NPRM rule, which implements section 20 of the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 (Pub. L. 98-378) specifies that in any case where the collection or increased collection of support under title IV-D of the Social Security Act contributes wholly or partly to a family's ineligibility for AFDC, the family is deemed, but only for the purpose of Medicaid eligibility, to be receiving AFDC for a period of four calendar months after the last month of AFDC eligibility. This applies only to families who receive AFDC in three of the Six months immediately preceding the month of ineligibility. "Received" includes those individuals denied an AFDC payment solely because the payment amount is under $10, the recoupment of overpayment, or because the payment is determined to be zero as a result of rounding.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Would update current regulations by adding statutory exclusions for certain per capita distributions of Indian judgment funds and other funds held in trust by the Department of Interior, and initial purchases made with such funds. Additionally, would exclude the following types of distributions received from a Native Corporation pursuant to the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. (1) Cash to the extent that it does not in the aggregate, exceed $2,000 per individual per annum; (2) Stocks; (3) A partnership interest; (4) Land or an interest in land; and (5) An interest in a settlement trust. Regulations would reflect the statutes; therefore, no alternatives are being considered. We estimate that the Federal share of the cost of the trust funds exclusions required under PL 97-458 and PL 98-64 would be $696,960 per year, the Federal share of the cost of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act exclusions required under PL 100-241 would be $1,878,108 per year. Therefore, the annual result would be a cost of $3,575,068.

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, April 13, 1989. Final, Statutory, October 13, 1989.

Abstract: Current regulations provide for a number of work and training programs. Some States have designed their own programs. Many of the Federal provisions have been optional and State funding has not always permitted such programs. Lack of child care transportation, and other support services have often proved to be barriers to receiving education, training, as well as arranging and maintaining employment. The Family Support Act (Public Law 100-485), which was signed 10/13/88, establishes under title IV-F of the Social Security Act, the Job Opportunities and Basic Skills (JOBS) training program. JOBS' purpose is to assure that needy families with children obtain the education, training, and employment that will help them avoid long term dependence. The legislation mandates that all States implement a JOBS program by October 1, 1990.

Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Department of Housing and Urban Development.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda, under Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, of regulations expected to be issued and under review.

SUMMARY: In accordance with section 5 of Executive Order 12291, "Federal Regulation," the Department is publishing its agenda of proposed regulations already issued or expected to be issued, and of currently effective rules that are under review. Also, under section 602 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, the Department has prepared a regulatory flexibility agenda of regulations expected to be proposed or promulgated which are likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. As permitted by Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, the two agendas are combined for publication.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Grady J. Norris, Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Room 10276, 451 Seventh Street, SW., Washington, DC 20410, (202) 755-7055. (This is not a toll-free number.)

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291, "Federal Regulation," issued on February 17, 1981 (46 FR 13193), requires each agency to publish semiannually an agenda of regulations that the agency has issued or expects to issue and of currently effective regulations that are under agency review.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601-612, requires each agency to publish semiannually a regulatory flexibility agenda of rules expected to be proposed or promulgated which are likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of "small entities," meaning small businesses, small organizations, or small governmental jurisdictions.

Executive Order 12291 and section 605 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act each permit incorporation of the agenda it requires with any other prescribed agenda. Accordingly, the agenda set out below combines the information required by the Executive Order and by the Regulatory Flexibility Act. In addition, the agenda contains certain information not required by either the Executive Order or by the Act which the Department considers useful, both better to inform the public and to enhance the Department's own inventory control over its body of regulations.

For purposes of Executive Order 12291, "regulation" or "rule" is defined as "an agency statement of general applicability and future effect designed to implement, interpret, or prescribe law or policy or describing the procedure or practice requirements of an agency," subject to certain exceptions. The agenda published below concentrates upon regulatory material contained, or expected to be contained, in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) (or incorporated therein by reference) following publication in the Federal Register. As appropriate, however, issuances in the nature of general statements of policy may be published in the Federal Register but not for codification in the CFR.

The Department also is subject to certain requirements involving congressional review of rulemaking actions, including publication of an agenda. Section 7(o) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act (42 U.S.C. 3535(o)) requires that the Secretary transmit to the congressional committees having jurisdictional oversight (the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs and the House Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs) a semiannual agenda of all rules or regulations which are under development or review by the Department. A rule appearing on the agenda cannot be published for comment before or during the first 15 calendar days of continuous session of Congress after transmittal of the agenda. If, within such period, either Committee notifies the Secretary that it intends to review any rule or regulation or portion thereof which appears on the agenda, the Secretary must submit to both Committees a copy of the rule or regulation, in the form it is intended to be proposed, at least 15 calendar days of continuous session before it is published for comment. The Semiannual Agenda appearing hereinafter is the agenda transmitted to the Committees in compliance with the foregoing requirement.

The agenda items are divided first by program office. Within each program office, the agenda items are divided into four groups: (i) Prerulemaking actions, (ii) publications or other implementations of notices of proposed rulemaking, (iii) publications or other implementations of final rules, and (iv) completed actions. Within each grouping, rules are listed in chronological order by the Part number of the CFR affected. Where a rule affects multiple parts of the CFR, the rule is listed by the first affected Part number. Priority rules include all regulations designated for priority development by the Department.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 5403

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 3280

Abstract: This Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking requests public comment on those portions of the Manufactured Home Construction and Safety Standards (Standards) that are applicable to the materials and application criteria for external coverings. The Department is concerned that certain siding and roofing materials, more common to conventional-type construction may not be compatible in important aspects with typical manufactured home construction. Consumer complaint information indicates that the current Standards do not address certain important problems areas.

Abstract: This rule implements the Preservation of Low Income Housing Act adopted by Congress to avoid the irreplaceable loss of income housing and irrevocable displacement of tenants due to the prepayment of FHA-insured mortgages covering subsidized projects. Pursuant to this enactment, the Secretary may offer the owner of an eligible multifamily project several inducements not to prepay the mortgage. One such inducement, provided by these regulations, is the insurance of an equity loan which the owner of the project may use as a vehicle to capture a portion of the project's appreciation.

Abstract: This rule would codify HUD policies for implementing section 250(a) and (b) of the National Housing Act, as added by section 433 of the Housing and Urban-Rural Recovery Act of 1983 and amended by section 261 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987. This rule would restrict prepayment of multifamily project mortgages whenever Secretary has prepayment approval responsibilities. Prepayment will not be approved unless project is no longer needed for lower income housing, tenants have been given notice and opportunity to comment, and a relocation assistance plan has been put in place. Similar restrictions will apply to termination of insurance. Where the Secretary is not responsible for approving prepayment and therefore cannot restrict it, priority will be given for additional section 8 and troubled project assistance in order to discourage prepayment. Additional requirements imposed on the prepayment of multifamily project mortgages by Title II, Subtitle B of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 have been implemented by separate rulemaking (FR-2450; H-10-88; RIN: 2502-AE34).

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend HUD regulations to implement section 181 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 and section 1010 of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Amendments of 1988. Section 181 expanded the scope of section 203 of the Housing and Community Development Amendments of 1978 to include projects that are subject to a HUD-held mortgage and are delinquent, under a workout agreement, or being foreclosed upon by HUD. HUD, when it is owner or mortgagee-in-possession, and the owner in other situations now covered by section 203 must, to the greatest extent possible, maintain all such occupied projects in decent, safe, and sanitary condition and maintain full occupancy and must also maintain all such projects for purposes of providing rental or cooperative housing for the longest feasible time. The statute directs HUD to provide not less than one of several specified forms of financial assistance to a purchaser other than HUD at foreclosure, or after sale by the Secretary. Section 1010 further amended section 203 to clarify which units in HUD-held unsubsidized projects (CONT'D)

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1437f

CFR Citation: 00 CFR 000

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 148 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 amended section 8(d)(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 to require the Department to permit a PHA to attach not more than 15 percent of the section 8 Existing Housing Program assistance to existing structures if the owner agrees to rehabilitate the structure other than with assistance under the 1937 Act. Section 1005 of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Amendments Act of 1988 requires the Department to permit PHA's to attach assistance, within the same 15 percent limit, to newly constructed units. This rule would implement these provisions by establishing a new Subpart G to 24 CFR Part 882 for project-based certification.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 12 USC 1709, Sec 203, 211; 12 USC 1715b; 42 USC 3535(d)

Abstract: This rule would revise the existing administrative criteria for acceptability of insured 10-year protection Plans (Plans). The Department began this proceeding by publishing a Notice informing the public that HUD intended to revise the criteria. This rule describes, among other things, criteria related to Plan acceptability, insurance and financial backing, Plan coverage, and methods for determining Plan obligations.

HUD acceptance of these Plans is a prerequisite to reduced inspection requirements on a property accepted for mortgage insurance before the commencement of construction. It is also a prerequisite to high loan-to-value insured financing for existing one-to-four family dwellings that are less than one year old and that were not approved and inspected by HUD or the Veterans Administration before the start of construction.

Abstract: This rule would implement section 406 of the Housing & Community Development Act of 1987. Section 406 authorizes HUD (1) to insure single family mortgages under title II of the National Housing Act, or (2) to approve a substitute mortgagor for single family mortgages insured under title II, only if the mortgagor is to occupy the dwelling as a principal or secondary residence, as determined by HUD. Section 406 provides that this occupancy requirement only applies if the mortgage involve a principal obligation that exceeds 75 percent of the loan-to-value or equivalent calculation under the insuring authority involved. The action exempts from the occupancy requirement, mortgagors under the Rehabilitation Loan program under section 203(k) of the National Housing Act, and certain public entity, nonprofit, serviceperson, and other mortgagors under various National Housing Act activities.

Legal Authority: PL 100-242, Sec 150(b); PL 100-242, Sec 150(f)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 511

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will implement sections 150(b) and 150(f) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 which amend sections 17(a)(1)(A)and 17(k)(4), respectively, of the United States Housing Act of 1937. Section 150(b) makes eligible for rehabilitation grant funds property that will be privately owned upon completion of rehabilitation. The previous authorizing legislation and current regulations limit the use of rehabilitation grant funds to properties that are (and continue to be) privately owned. Section 150(f) expands the definition of "privately owned real property to be used primarily for residential rental purposes" (and thus eligible for rehabilitation grant funds) to include housing that is owned by a State or locally chartered, neighborhood based, nonprofit organization the primary purpose of which is the provision and improvement of housing.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3601

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 125

Abstract: The Fair Housing Law, Title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968, charges the Secretary with the responsibility for the administration and enforcement of Title VIII. Section 808 of Title VIII requires the Secretary to administer programs and activities relating to housing and urban development in a manner affirmatively to further fair housing. All other Executive Agencies are required to administer programs relating to housing and urban development in a manner affirmatively to further fair housing and to cooperate with the Secretary in further fair goal of fair housing. In December 1980, Executive Order 12259 was issued to assure interagency coordination and consistent and effective implementation of Section 808. The Order reemphasizes the mandate of Tie VIII, I, stipulates the Secretary's leadership and coordination role and states the responsibilities of all Executive Agencies; includes Regulatory Agencies, in connection with the preparation and implementation of rules, regulations and procedures. The time has come to publish a rule for comment. A proposed rule in 1981 failed to be published.

Abstract: This rule would implement section 118(a) and 118(d). Section 118(d) also provides for sharing of the savings between a PHA and HUD for energy conservation improvements, and for preservation of subsidy when several units are rehabilitated and combined into fewer units.

In addition, this rule would require that HUD may approve an application for demolition if the project is obsolete, making it unusable for housing purposes and if no reasonable program modifications are feasible to return the project to a useful life. The rule would also require HUD, in allocating assistance for public housing acquisition or development or for Section 8 moderate rehabilitation, to give consideration to housing that replaces demolished public housing units in accordance with an approved replacement plan. PHAs would be prohibited from taking any action to demolish or dispose of public housing projects without obtaining HUD's approval and satisfying pertinent statutory requirements.

Abstract: HUD's procedures for the establishment and administration by PHAs of allowances for utilities and surcharges for excess consumption are contained in Part 965, Subpart E. 1035. PUBLIC HOUSING CIAP AND COMPREHENSIVE GRANT PROGRAM (P-8-88; FR-2488)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 100-242, Sec 119

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 968

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 119 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 (Pub. L. 100-242, approved February 5, 1988) began a two-part legislative process designed to develop an improved means of allocating funds for the modernization of public housing for PHAs that own or operate a total of 500 or more units.

Section 119 contemplates the adoption, by the Congress, of a follow-up statute providing for a revised method for allocating assistance under the new program. Until this additional legislation is approved, HUD's current method of allocating funds will continue in effect.

The Department is developing procedural rules to govern administration of the new Comprehensive Grant Program (CGP) under the new system outlined in section 119, and has published a proposed rule on October 27, 1988. The proposed rule also proposed simplifying the current CIAP program and limiting it to PHAs that own or operate few than 500 units.

After a new statutory formula is adopted, the Department will publish a final rule linking the statutory allocation (CONT)

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 906

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would add a new Part 906 to the Department's public housing regulations, to provide a regulatory codification of the "Section 5(h) program". It reflects the way in which, over the last 14 years, the Department has been implementing the Congressional mandate for public housing homeownership opportunities under Sections 5(h) and (6)(c)(4)(D) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, and would thus make no change in established policy and practice.

In general, the proposal would provide a regulatory framework for continued implementation of these statutory authorizations for public housing agencies (PHAs) to sell public housing units to lower income tenants under viable homeownership opportunity programs for families capable of assuming the responsibilities of homeownership.

Semiannual Agenda of Rules Scheduled for Review or Development

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Interior.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of rules scheduled for review or development.

SUMMARY: This notice provides the semiannual agenda of rules scheduled for review or development between April and October 1989. An agenda is required by Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

ADDRESS: Unless otherwise indicated, all Agency Contacts are located at the Department of the Interior, 18th and C Streets, NW., Washington, DC 20240.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: All comments and inquiries with regard to these rules should be directed to the Agency Contact. General comments relating to the agenda should be directed to the Division of Directives and Regulatory Management, Office of Management Improvement, Department of the Interior, 18th and C Streets, NW., MIB-2242, Washington, DC 20240, or on 202-343-6191.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: With this publication, the Department satisfies the requirement of Executive Order 12291 that the Department publish in April and October of each year an agenda of rules that have been issued or are expected to be issued, and currently effective rules that are scheduled for review.

Simultaneously, the Department meets the requirement of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) that an agenda be published in April and October of each year identifying rules which will have significant economic effects on a substantial number of small entities; those rules which will have such effects are specifically identified in the agenda.

This agenda also identifies rules determined to be "significant" under Executive Order 12498 and which are included in this Department's 1989-90 regulatory program. A more comprehensive discussion of this program and the rules are contained in the Regulatory Program of the United States Government, which is published by the Office of Management and Budget.

1047. NATURAL RESOURCE DAMAGE ASSESSMENTS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c) CERCLA

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory, March 20, 1989.

Abstract: CERCLA allows natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. Section 301(c) (2) (A) calls for the promulgation of simplified assessment procedures. The first type A procedure for coastal and marine environments uses a computer model known as the natural resource damage assessment model for coastal and marine environments (NRDAM/CME). Section 301(c)(3) of CERCLA requires the biennial review of these natural resource damage assessment regulations. Since type A regulations were published as a final rule in 1987, the Department will issue an advance notice of proposed rulemaking (ANPRM). This ANPRM will ask trustees, other interested parties, and members of the public to draw upon their experience with the type A procedure to advise the Department of areas where revisions to the type A procedure may be appropriate.

1048. ● NATURAL RESOURCE DAMAGE ASSESSMENTS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c) CERCLA

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory. 42 USC 9651(c)(3) requires biennial review and revision, as appropriate, of the regulations. This ANPRM will begin the review process.

Abstract: CERCLA allows natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. Section 301(c)(2)(B) calls for the promulgation of a set of alternative protocols for the testing, sampling, and determining compensation for natural resource damages, referred to as the type B procedures. Section 301(c)(3) requires the biennial review of these natural resource damage assessment regulations. Since the general process and type B procedures were published as a final rule in 1986, the Department will issue an advance notice of proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) to begin the second biennial review of these regulations. This ANPRM will ask trustees, other interested parties, and members of the public to draw upon their experience with the type B procedures, and the general assessment process, to advise the Department of areas where revisions to the process and the type B procedures may be desired.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c) CERCLA

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Abstract: The Department has promulgated regulations, codified at 43 CFR Part 11, for the assessment of damages to natural resources injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. The regulations provide two types of assessment procedures: simplified procedures requiring minimal field investigation, referred to as the type A procedures; and alternative protocols for the testing, sampling, and valuing of natural resource damages, referred to as the type B procedures. The type A procedures that have been developed are for use in coastal and marine environments. The Department has stated that, when possible, it would develop additional type A procedures for other environments or natural resources. An advance notice of proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) will be issued by the Department. This ANPRM will solicit suggestions and supporting technical information for possible development of other type A procedures.

DOI's recipients are anticipated to incur expenses in two (2) areas: (1) Data collection and recordkeeping; (2) rectifying areas of noncompliance with Title IX. With respect to DOI, expenses will be incurred in three (3) areas: (1) Development and publication of the Title IX rule; (2) Provision of technical assistance; and (3) Accomplishing compliance reviews and enforcement activities.

This amendment was found to be appropriate and necessary, and is being issued by DOI pursuant to directions received from the Civil Rights Division of the Department of Justice under the authority of Executive Order 12250. It has been determined that this rule is nonmajor and that it has no major cost effect. This amendment will promote governmentwide consistency and minimize public confusion by referencing new architectural standards that are presently in use by the Department of Justice and fourteen other Federal agencies.

The Office of Hearings and Appeals proposes to remove the rules containing procedures for administrative review for (2), (3), and (4) (43 CFR 4.1370-4.1379 and 4.1380-4.1388) and to revise the rules in 43 CFR 4.1360-4.1369 so they will include review of decisions presently provided for in 43 CFR 4.1370-4.1379 and 4.1380-4.1388. The Office also proposes to amend 43 CFR 4.1351 and 4.1391(b) to provide for notice of OSMRE's decisions by certified mail or by overnight delivery service rather than by publication in a local newspaper. Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

Abstract: The Service proposes to introduce Colorado squawfish (Ptychocheilus lucius) into the lower Colorado River in Arizona and to determine the population to be "nonessential experimental" population according to Section 10(j) of the Endangered Species Act. The Service will propose a special rule to allow take in accordance with State law. In the past, Colorado squawfish were more widespread in the State of Arizona, occurring in several river drainages. This action is being taken in an effort to establish an additional population within the species' historic range.

Additional Information: Originally scheduled: April 1982. The final rule, published on November 10, 1987 (52 FR 43274), was to have taken effect on February 8, 1988; however, because of substantial controversy, the Service delayed the effective date until August. In response to a lawsuit, a preliminary injunction order was issued which ruled that delay of the effective date was without good cause. Consequently, the rule published in November is in force and effective as of February 8, 1988, as required by Court order. The service is reviewing the regulations for the purpose of proposing improvements and clarifications. A notice of intent to propose amendments was published on August 10, 1988.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 3

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 7.13

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed regulation will exempt the section of U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park from the prohibition on the use of National Park Service roads by commercial vehicles when such use has in no way a connection with operation of the park; delete the special regulations establishing the speed limit on U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park; and restrict the amount and type of hazardous materials which may be transported on U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park. The special regulation establishing the present fee schedule for commercial traffic within Yellowstone will be eliminated and the Superintendent provided the discretion to establish and adjust fees for such use on an annual basis.

These actions will clearly define the management and regulation of commercial traffic on U.S. 191 through Yellowstone and assure a certain measure of protection against hazardous waste spills.

Abstract: This proposed rule designates routes and frozen water surfaces for use by snowmobiles at Apostle Islands National Lakeshore. The intended effect of this regulation is to remove that prohibition and allow the use of snowmobiles to conduct legislatively authorized fishing activities.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 16 USC 3

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 13.21

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The National Park Service is proposing rules what will prohibit the hunting of certain wildlife species in the National Preserve areas in Alaska on the same day in which a hunter is airborne. Hunting will continue to be allowed pursuant to State and Federal regulations. Access to those areas by aircraft for sport hunting and other purposes is also allowed. While the State of Alaska has a similar regulation in place, commonly referred to as the "same-day-airborne" regulation, recent changes to their regulation have allowed exceptions for some species in certain State of Alaska game management units including the National Preserve areas. This exception will allow "land-and-shoot" hunting of wolves in the National Preserves. The proposed National Park Service regulation will prohibit "land-and-shoot" hunting for big game including the following species: All species of Bears, Bison, Caribou, Elk, Mountain Goat, Moose, Musk Oxen, Dall Sheep, Wolf, Wolverine, Coyote, Arctic and Red Fox, and Lynx.

Abstract: Several sections of 36 CFR Part 9, Subpart B contain ambiguous language which has caused confusion in interpreting the existing regulations. The NPS wants to make technical revisions to clarify requirements for both applicants and the Service. Also, the existing regulations exempt two classes of operators from compliance. Because of these exemptions, the regulations apply to only 35% of the existing operations resulting in avoidable impacts to park resources and visitor values from unregulated operations. Finally, the Service intends to revise the existing regulations to incorporate congressionally mandated requirements and timetables governing nonfederal oil and gas development in the Big Cypress National Preserve Addition. Examples of such revisions include: making the regulations applicable to all oil and gas operations within all units of the National Park System; updating terms for consistency with existing policies, practices, and laws; removing the monetary ceiling and floor on bonds and security deposits so that bonds may be calculated and posted commensurate with reclamation costs; revising sections of the regulations to make them consistent with the enabling (cont)

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1901 et seq Mining in the Parks Act of 1976; 16 USC 1 et seq NPS Organic Act; 30 USC 21 et seq Mining Law of 1872

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 9, Subpart A

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The existing regulations at 36 CFR Part 9, Subpart A, promulgated in January of 1977, contain several provisions that are either outdated or have proven difficult to understand, enforce and comply with. Most notable is a provision regarding the use of water in connection with mining claims within National Park System units. The current language creates a "catch 22" for miners seeking to use water in connection with their claims. In order to use water in a park, a miner must have perfected water right. However, to obtain a perfected water right, a miner must use water. Herein lies the "catch 22." The National Park Service (NPS) would like to rectify this dilemma through a rule change that would eliminate the perfected water right language while at the same time preserve the Service's ability to protect water quality and quantity. Additional changes sought by the NPS are as follows: Several sections of the regulations refer to a surface disturbance moratorium (mandated by the Mining in the Parks Act of 1976, 16 USC 1901 et seq) which expired in 1980. Other sections include transitional procedures used temporarily in implementing the regulations.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1 et seq; 31 USC 9701; 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 9, Subpart C

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Extensive nonfederal mineral rights exist within units of the National Park System. The Service presently regulates only nonfederal oil and gas activities occurring in those units. Mineral activities, other than those associated with nonfederal oil and gas, are occurring in approximately 13 units of the System. There are also 7 additional units in which nonfederal mineral development is currently proposed or has recently been proposed. The Service is charged by Congress to ensure that the development of nonfederal mineral rights within park boundaries is consistent with the purposes for which the units were established. The proposed regulation would establish procedures and standards governing nonfederal mineral development, other than nonfederal oil and gas, in a manner that protects affected park units until such time that the Service has sufficient funds to acquire the mineral right.

Abstract: Amendments to the Archaeological Resources Protection Act of 1979 (PL 96-95) made by Congress in 1988 require amendments to the uniform regulations. Abstract: This rulemaking would establish an NPS mandatory seatbelt regulation to apply in park areas that are located within States that do not have a seatbelt law in effect. This regulation would affect 100 park areas in 16 States. The regulation would apply to all of a vehicle's front seat occupants except those that are occupying a seat that was not originally equipped by the manufacturer with a seatbelt and those with a medical condition that prevents restraint by a seatbelt.

Abstract: The Individual Indian Money Account program involves funds held in trust status for individuals. Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, August 5, 1989. Final, Statutory, October 5, 1989.

Abstract: The primary purpose of the amendments to 93 USC 638 is to permit an orderly transition from Federal domination of programs for and services to Indians to effective and meaningful participation by the Indian people in the planning, conduct, and administration of those programs and services while maintaining the Federal Government's unique and continuing relationship with and responsibility to individual Indian tribes and to the Indian people as a whole. In addition to extensive consultation with the tribes and Native American groups, the Bureau of Indian Affairs is examining all of its planning administrative procedures from the perspective of maximizing tribal participation. Due to the broad scope of the review, an estimate of the potential cost and potential benefit is premature. The changes are one of process rather than increases or decreases in budget or program funding. The major potential cost is to the Federal Government in order to meet the insurance requirement of the law. The amount is undetermined to date.

Abstract: The proposed rule revision will resolve problems encountered with existing regulations published almost ten years ago. Revisions will reduce time and resources required to process petitions, clarify terms and definitions, interpret criteria, add a process whereby groups may withdraw a petition, improve the appeal process and respond to changing conditions. The revised rule will be more cost effective for the Department and Indian groups petitioning for Federal acknowledgment. The proposed revisions will be published taking into consideration ten years of experience with the regulations. Revisions will reflect recommendations received from the Congress, Indian groups and tribes, other Federal agencies and national organizations.

1150. SMALL ESTATES - OSAGE

Legal Authority: 92 Stat. 1660

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 18

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking action would permit the Field Solicitor, Pawhuska, Oklahoma, to determine the heirs, devisees and/or legatees of estates under the jurisdiction of the Osage Agency, consisting of Osage headright interest, real estate on which restrictions against alienation have not been removed, and/or funds on deposit at the Osage Agency, all of which do not exceed a valuation of $10,000 on the date of death of a decedent, when requested in writing by one or more of the heirs, devisees and/or legatees; provided, that a court of competent jurisdiction has not proceeded to administer or probate the estate. The administration of such estates by the Field Solicitor would alleviate the necessity of the employment of an attorney by the beneficiaries, approval of the will pursuant to 25 CFR Part 17, and the filing of administration or probate proceedings in State Court. Because of the size of these estates, it is financially impractical for the beneficiaries to employ attorneys for that purpose.

Abstract: The Bureau is amending existing Financial Assistance and Social Services Program regulations to further define the adult care services provided to Indian people. These proposed regulations define the extent of the program, establish eligibility requirements, and establish adult care services as a social services program separate and distinct from the general assistance program. The revision is needed to specifically define the Bureau's role in the provision of institutional and in-home care to Indian adults who are mentally or physically handicapped or otherwise disabled. The Bureau is also amending miscellaneous assistance provisions to conform with the congressional directive in Public Law 98-473. Miscellaneous assistance will be revised and defined as burial assistance. Emergency assistance previously provided under miscellaneous assistance was transferred to general assistance by revision of 25 CFR Part 20(c) on September 30, 1985.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 70

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking action is to add a new Part 70 to govern the issuance of Certificates of Degree of Indian Blood (CDIB's). There has been a sharp increase in the number of requests for CDIB's over the past few years. More and more programs are requiring individuals to submit CDIB's to document possession of Indian blood. This rulemaking action is intended to clarify the circumstances under which the Bureau will issue CDIB's; the documents and records on which the Bureau will base the issuance of CDIB's; and the procedures that individuals will need to follow, including any documentation requirements, to obtain CDIB's.

1163. APPEALS FROM ADMINISTRATIVE ACTIONS

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 2

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The present administrative appeal regulations are ambiguous and misleading. It is difficult to tell what issues may be appealed and to whom the appeal should be sent. Most deadlines are uncertain. Those that are certain are often unrealistic. It is also unclear when a final decision will be rendered by the Interior Board of Indian Appeals and when it will be rendered by the Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs. Alternatives will be developed by reviewing the existing appeal regulations of other agencies. Consideration will be given to specifying which types of appeals go to the Assistant Secretary and which to the Board. The alternative of providing for the Assistant Secretary to make a case-by-case decision whether or not to refer the matter to the Board will also be considered. The primary benefit should be reduced frustration for both appellants and the BIA officials who handle the appeals. The greatest cost may be that both appellants and BIA officials may have to comply with more specified procedures and meet more deadlines in order for the system to work.

1164. LAW AND ORDER ON INDIAN RESERVATIONS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9; 25 USC 13

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The present regulations contain a very incomplete criminal code that does not cover many areas of the law that are usually in the laws of the State where the reservation is located. The current regulations also contain very sketchy provisions on criminal and civil procedure. It is proposed to update the sections on criminal offenses, and essentially create new sections on criminal procedures, domestic relations, probate proceedings, appellate proceedings and juvenile proceedings. This will provide the Courts of Indian Offenses with more complete and up to date procedures and rules. Courts will have a six month period from the date of publication of the final rule to the effective date in which to revise their court codes. It is not anticipated that this revision will have any effect on the annual case load for these courts or require additional staffing. Therefore, the initiation of these rules should not result in additional costs.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 26, 1988.
One year from date of enactment for completion of the tribal membership roll.

Abstract: This rulemaking action is being taken to amend the regulations contained in 25 CFR Part 61. Part 61 contains general enrollment procedures which can be made specifically applicable in the preparation of a particular roll by the Secretary by amending section 61.4 to include the qualifications for enrollment for that particular roll. Under the Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Tribe of Indians Distribution of Judgment Funds Act of 1987, the Secretary has been directed to prepare certain rolls of Cow Creek Indians to be used in the implementation of the Act. The proposed amendment is, therefore, to make the procedures contained in Part 61 applicable to the preparation of the Cow Creek rolls by adding in section 61.4 the qualifications for enrollment for each of the rolls to be prepared.

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs proposes to revise the rule concerning the circumstances under which the Bureau of Indian Affairs, in the performance of the Federal Government's trust responsibility to Indian tribes, may, in its discretion, provide Departmental funds to an Indian tribe or other Indian organization for the payment of a private attorney's legal services. The proposed revisions would not change the underlying policy of the current rule which is to pay for private counsel to represent Indian tribes only in exceptional circumstances. The principal changes involve representation in child custody proceedings, services of tribal court personnel, and non-litigation services. The proposed revision would also provide that when trust resources are involved, tribes and individual Indian allottees are eligible to apply for and receive federally appropriated funds under 25 CFR 89.

Additional Information: In May 1982, the District Court for the District of Arizona invalidated the regulation of 25 CFR 167 and ordered the Bureau to publish new regulations. The Bureau published interim regulations on Hopi partitioned lands on September 8, 1982. During the past year several meetings have been held with the Navajo Tribe to obtain concurrence to include Navajo partitioned land in the regulations. The Navajo Tribe expressed the desire for separate regulations and the Bureau has drafted a new regulation for Navajo Partitioned Land within the existing 25 CFR Part 167.

1171. RIGHTS-OF-WAY OVER INDIAN LANDS

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 323 to 328

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 169

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs intends to amend several sections of its rights-of-way regulations which impose a variety of specific requirements on grantees of rights-of-way over Indian lands. These requirements were intended to implement public laws enacted around the turn of the century which authorized the Secretary of the Interior to issue rights-of-way for various specific purposes. In 1948 Congress gave the Department comprehensive authority to grant rights-of-way for any purpose or any term of years without the antiquated restrictions of the older statutes. The regulations continue to reflect the old requirements and the result has been inconsistent application of the 1948 Act. The removal or revisions of these sections would end that practice.

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs is amending the pertinent sections of the regulations governing charges and costs assessed the electric power customers for the electric power, energy and associated electric power services provided by the San Carlos Indian Irrigation Project (Project), Arizona. The purpose of the regulatory amendments is to increase the costs to the public for the services provided by the electric power division of the Project. The proposed rules increase the electric power assessment rates in the residential and general service rate schedules. This action causes the generation of needed additional revenues for the Project. The increased assessment rates reflect the increased operating costs associated with labor, equipment and supplies. The electric power bills for service under the residential and general rate schedules will be increased by approximately 12.4 percent.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 25 USC 81; 25 USC 415; 25 USC 301

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 287

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs is proposing a new rule which establishes the requirements to be met and procedures to be followed to obtain approval of management contracts for tribal bingo enterprises. This action is necessary because the Federal courts have held that such management contracts are null and void without Secretarial approval pursuant to 25 USC 81. The intended effect of this rule is to replace the administrative guidelines previously announced by the Bureau for approval of such contracts and to establish uniform minimum standards for the review and approval of all such gaming management contracts.

Significance: Regulatory Program

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 206

Abstract: The existing regulations require that the value of certain processed gas that is not sold pursuant to an arm's-length contract shall be the greater of value determined by two different methods. The comparison of the two values is commonly referred to as "dual accounting." The dual accounting requirement results in the inconsistent valuation of gas depending on whether it is sold in an arm's-length or a non-arm's length situation. Regulation amendments are being developed which would eliminate the accounting for comparison requirement except where required by lease terms.

Abstract: The existing regulations provide for the valuation of unprocessed gas, residue gas, or any gas plant product which is not sold pursuant to an arm's-length contract to be determined in accordance with a benchmark method. In the final regulations, MMS adopted as the first benchmark the lessee's gross proceeds received under its non-arm's-length transaction if they were equivalent to the gross proceeds received under comparable arm's-length contracts for like-quality production in the same field or area. The criteria to be considered in defining comparable contracts were also outlined. However, since the adoption of the revised regulations, numerous questions have been raised as to the interpretation of the first benchmark. These questions been identified the need to further clarify MMS's intention in this regard.

Abstract: Existing regulations at 30 CFR 218.54, 218.55, and 218.103 govern the rate of interest to be charged on underpayments or late payments of royalty by lessees and other royalty payors, and the rate of interest to be paid on late disbursements of an Indian Tribe's or Allottee's royalty or a State's share of royalty revenues. These regulations reference section 6621 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 for the applicable interest rate in each situation. However, section 6621 was amended by the Tax Reform Act of 1986 to provide for a different interest rate for overpayments and for underpayments. A rule amendment is required to clarify an ambiguity in the existing regulations, created by the amendment to section 6621, as to which of two different rates would apply.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1339

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 230

Abstract: This rulemaking is needed to add new regulations covering recoupment and refunds of excess payments made under Federal offshore mineral leases which are subject to section 10 of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act of 1953 (OCSLA), 43 USC 1339. This rule would establish requirements and guidelines for crediting (recouping) excess payments of royalties, rentals, bonuses, or other amounts against a current or future payment obligation or refunding such excess payment to any person lawfully entitled to receive a refund or credit for an overpayment made under an offshore lease. The new regulation is intended to lessen confusion on the part of payors, operators, and the Minerals Management Service.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1701 et seq

Abstract: Payors who appeal a bill for payment of additional royalty, rents, bonuses, penalties, or other assessments, are required by the existing appeal regulations to submit payment of the billed amount or to post a bond in an amount adequate to indemnify the lessor from loss or damage. However, some bills for payment that have been appealed have been neither paid nor secured by an acceptable surety. An amendment to the existing regulations is needed to establish a requirement that payment must be made or that an acceptable surety must be posted within a specified period of time as a condition for acceptance of the appeal for consideration by the Director, Minerals Management Service (MMS). An amendment is also needed to permit the posting of letters of credit, in addition to bonds, in accordance with current MMS practice.

Abstract: Amendments to the Department of the Interior (DOI) Air Quality regulation for oil and gas operations will be proposed for all Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) areas The changes would update requirements and consider the need for current information collection burdens, and provide additional safeguards for those pollutants which could be critical to air quality in areas adjoining the OCS. A determination of potential costs and benefits cannot be made until the final rulemaking has been prepared for RIN 1010-AA61, dealing with amendments to the DOI Air Quality regulation for oil and gas operations adjacent to the State of California. Considerable information has been developed during the negotiations conducted to implement that rulemaking. There have also been revisions to the related Environmental Protection Agency regulations which will affect both of these rulemakings. Timing, content, and format for this rulemaking for all OCS areas will not be determined until completion of the rulemaking RIN 1010-AA61.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1331 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.18

Abstract: Amendments to the regulations providing for the discretionary release of postlease proprietary data and information will be proposed. The amendments would limit the discretion of the MMS Director to release such data and information by defining more precisely the circumstances under which such releases may be authorized and to whom the data and information may be shown. The alternative to the proposed amendment is the case-by-case determination of whether to release such proprietary data and information based on the existing less specific discretionary authority of the Director. This alternative leaves some degree of uncertainty to the lessee concerning the circumstances under which releases will be authorized, and possible changes in policy.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR Part 250 which govern oil and gas and sulphur operations in the OCS will be revised to address in greater specificity training requirements for personnel engaged in oil, gas, and sulphur drilling, development, and production operations in the OCS. Training requirements were addressed in a proposed rule to consolidate into one document the rules governing oil and gas and sulphur operations in the OCS which was published on March 18, 1988 (51 FR 9316). The training provisions of that proposed rule have been revised, updated, and consolidated under a new Subpart O, Training. Other alternatives considered were not revising the regulations and revising only those regulations identified by industry. Promulgation of the regulation is not expected to result in costs significantly more than those incurred through the unregulated use of good commercial practices.

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR 250 which govern oil and gas and sulphur operations in the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) will be revised to address sulphur exploration, development, and production operations with more specificity. Sulphur operations are currently addressed through rules applicable to oil, gas, and sulphur and through OCS Order No. 10, Sulphur Drilling Procedures, issued by the Gulf of Mexico OCS Region. Comments received as the result of the publication on March 18, 1988 (51 FR 9316), of a proposed rule to consolidate rules governing oil, gas, and sulphur operations in the OCS included recommendations for the development of regulations which treat sulphur operations in the OCS with greater specificity. Other alternatives considered were not revising the regulations. Promulgation of the regulation is not expected to result in costs significantly more than those incurred through the unregulated use of good commercial practices.

The alternative of prescribing specific procedures for use of such funds would not allow the flexibility to respond when the use of contractors and private contributions is the most sensible approach. Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service proposes to amend 30 CFR 250.52 to add requirements designed to increase personnel safety and minimize property damage by avoiding or preventing the occurrence of accidental fires caused by hot slag from welding or burning activities falling into flammable material floating on the ocean surface beneath Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) facilities. The proposed amendment was prompted by the recommendations of an investigation of a January 6, 1984, accidental fire believed to have been caused by hot welding slag igniting a layer of hydrocarbons floating on the surface of the ocean water beneath an OCS facility. Three men died and nine were burned as a consequence of that fire. The alternative considered was to send lessees advisory notices alerting them of the potential danger of welding slag; however, the alternative was considered less effective because it lacked enforcement. The proposed amendment would not result in increases in cost to lessees or consumers.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 206

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service (MMS) published final revised regulations governing the valuation of gas from Federal leases onshore and on the Outer Continental Shelf and from Indian Tribal and allotted leases in the Federal Register on January 15, 1988 (53 FR 1230). The proposed gas valuation provisions of section 206.153, in part, govern the determination of value in situations where the lessee's contract for the sale of gas prior to processing provides for the value to be determined based upon a percentage of the purcheses proceeds resulting from processing the gas. However, the inclusion of these percentages-of-proceeds contracts under section 206.153 has created unreasonable burdens on lessees. Consequently, MMS is proposing to amend its regulations to provide for the valuation of gas under percentage-of-proceeds contracts to be under the unprocessed gas valuation standards of section 206.152, rather than section 206.153.

Abstract: Existing regulations governing the valuation of geothermal resources provide insufficient guidance for the valuation of geothermal resources utilized to generate electricity in a lessee-owned power plant. Consequently, the Minerals Management Service has issued a report entitled "Valuation of Federal Geothermal Resources--Electrical Generation" which describes a "geothermal netback procedure" to value these "no sales" resources. An amendment is needed to the existing regulations to provide regulatory guidance after receipt and consideration of comments from the public to the existing geothermal netback procedure.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR 250.126 on the manufacture of safety and pollution-prevention equipment (i.e., surface and subsurface safety valves) are being amended. The amendment would update the American National Standards Institute/American Society of Mechanical Engineers (ANSI/ASME) SPPE-1 standard from the 1985 edition to the 1988 edition and allow compliance with either the updated version of the ANSI/ASME SPPE-1 quality assurance (QA) program (1988 edition) or the proposed American Petroleum Institute (API) QA program (API Spec Q1 in combination with API Specs 14A and 14b). Other alternatives considered were not to amend the rule and to continue using ANSI/ASME SPPE-1 as the only type of certification for the QA program. The costs to lessees under the API program or the updated ANSI/ASME SPPE-1 program are not expected to be significantly different than the costs under the current program. If there is any cost difference, it is expected to be a reduction in cost since the use of the API program is an option to the use of the ANSI/ASME SPPE-1 program. Lessees would not be expected to choose the use of the more expensive of the approved QA programs.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

Abstract: Amendments to the DOI Air Quality regulation for oil and gas operations will be proposed for Outer Continental Shelf areas adjacent to California. The changes would provide additional safeguards for those pollutants which could be critical to air quality in the region. The costs have been determined to have a net present value of approximately $25M to the regulated industry; the net benefits have not been quantified but would be a reduction in any effect of emissions from OCS operations on the ozone levels in adjacent onshore areas. This may be expected to yield cost reductions in health services and other related areas. The DOI has conducted a conflict assessment to determine the likelihood of the interested and affected parties being able to reach an agreement on an air quality regulatory program. If the affected parties involved can develop a mutually agreeable set of requirements, then DOI will initiate rulemaking based on that agreement.

Abstract: There are no provisions in current Minerals Management Service regulations which provide a mechanism for remedy of unlawful discrimination in Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) employment. Rules would be developed to provide a process whereby persons who believed they had been denied employment because of unlawful discrimination would have a forum. These rules would implement the purposes of section 604 of the OCS Lands Act Amendment of 1978. Alternatives considered are no action, issuance of a policy statement and no rules, and proposal of extensive affirmative action rules similar to those rescinded in the past. Very few complaints are expected to arise as there has been no evidence of discrimination to date. Therefore, costs are expected to be minimal. Benefits would be the assurance that the requirements of section 604 are being fully carried out.

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service (MMS) published new oil and gas product valuation regulations in the Federal Register on January 15, 1988 (53 FR 1184 and 53 FR 1230). If a lessee has a non-arm's-length contract or has no contract for processing or transportation of oil or gas, the new regulations provide for an allowable deduction from royalty payments based upon the lessee's reasonable actual costs during the reporting period. These actual cost deductions allow the lessee to deduct operating and maintenance expenses, overhead, and at the lessee's option, either depreciation plus a return on undepreciated capital investment in the processing plant or transportation system, or a fixed cost equal to the initial depreciable investment multiplied by a rate of return. An amendment is needed to the regulations to establish the method to be used to determine the cost of capital, i.e., rate of return, to be applied to the lessee's investment in a processing plant or transportation system.

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service (MMS) published final revised regulations governing the valuation of oil and gas from Federal leases onshore and on the Outer Continental Shelf and from Indian Tribal and allotted leases in the Federal Register on January 15, 1988 (53 FR 1184 and 53 FR 1230). A subsequent review of the regulations disclosed that the wording of the provisions concerning the calculation of oil and gas transportation allowances and gas processing allowances was inconsistent with MMS's intent. An amendment is needed to the provisions to clarify MMS's intent.

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR Part 256 will be revised to provide for supplemental sales and to establish limits on those supplemental sales. This rule is intended to allow the offering of rejected bid blocks, drainage blocks, and development blocks. The alternative is to operate under the current regulation and delay the leasing of certain blocks which may be critical to the development of an area or may be susceptible to loss of hydrocarbons.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

Abstract: Proposes the desirability of new regulations to govern lease issuance on the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) for minerals other than oil, gas, and sulphur under the authority of the OCS Lands Act; and requests comments and recommendations from interested parties. Alternative is to not have leasing requirements in regulations. Promulgation of regulation for leasing of hard mineral resources is not expected to add to the cost to industry. Abstract: The proposed rule would clarify the applicability of the prohibitions in section 522(e) of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act to the surface impacts of underground mining. The issue of the relationship between section 522(e) and mining related subsidence will be addressed in the proposed rulemaking. The rulemaking will seek to clarify whether OSM's rules have the effect of prohibiting underground mining operations related to the features and facilities within the distance limitations enumerated in section 522(e) of the Act. The proposed rulemaking will address the issue of what is a "Surface Impact" incident to an underground mine.

Additional Information: The Office of Surface Mining has determined that the proposed rulemaking constitutes a major Federal action requiring an EIS to meet the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act. OSM has also made the determination that the proposed rule may be significant within the meaning of EO 12291. Precise cost/price impacts cannot be determined prior to further development of the regulation, but such costs are anticipated to be significant in terms of EO 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act. Therefore, a Preliminary Regulatory Impact Analysis and Small Entity Flexibility Analysis are being prepared.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq; PL 100-34

Abstract: The Surface Mining Act exempts mining operations that extract other minerals where coal does not exceed 16 2/3 percent of tonnage of minerals removed for sale. Evidence of abuse of this exemption has been identified. Proposed regulations would establish procedures to administer the exemption. The costs of compliance for these operations are undetermined. Benefits would be to the public in terms of protection of health, safety, and environment from detrimental effects of mining. Legitimate noncoal operators would be able to compete fairly with those operations now using the exemption to undersell their legitimate competitors.

Abstract: The existing rules pertaining to the requirements for permit and permit processing, permit applications and civil penalties are to be amended. The proposed revisions expressly establish an affirmative obligation on permittees and permit applicants to pay uncontested penalties and abate uncontested violations. Permittees and applicants for permits must meet these obligations prior to the issuance of a permit and as a condition of continued operation under existing permits.

Abstract: The Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement is proposing to revise 30 CFR 778 which specifies what information must be furnished in a surface coal mining permit application. The permit application requirements are being revised in order to conform them to proposed revisions in 30 CFR 773 which govern the issuance of surface coal mining permits. The proposed revisions to 30 CFR 778 will require the submission of more detailed information on the ownership and control of permit applicants. It is not anticipated that the revision will impose a substantial financial burden on those applying for permits.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq; PL 100-34

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 816.74; 30 CFR 817.74

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The regulations at 30 CFR 816.74/817.74 allow, with the approval of the regulatory authority, the disposal of excess spoil through placement on preexisting benches provided that the standards set forth in sections 816.71/817.71 are met. These standards contain the general requirements for the disposal of excess spoil. Based on the draft study entitled "Encouraging Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation via Remining: A Federal, State and Industry Initiative" and comments received, OSMRE has reviewed these regulations. Based on this review, OSMRE has concluded that excess spoil, when placed on the benches is similar to backfilling and grading of a highwall and bench and therefore could be regulated under the backfilling and grading regulations in sections 816.102/817.102, in lieu of the "excess spoil" standards while maintaining the same environmental and safety standards. The proposed rule would apply the backfilling and grading requirements to disposal of excess spoil on preexisting benches.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq; PL 100-34

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 700.11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act (the Act) doesn't specifically define the point at which regulatory jurisdiction ends. Therefore, a regulation is needed to define that point. The regulation in question is specific to the responsibilities of the Department of the Interior, OSMRE, and implements the Act. No other Federal agency is authorized to undertake this action on behalf of the Department. OSMRE has never addressed this issue in a rulemaking. The regulatory authority will issue a written determination ending regulatory jurisdiction under the Act when the following conditions apply. For permanent program operations, it proposed to terminate regulatory jurisdiction under the Act at the time of final bond release or when all regulatory program requirements have been met. For initial program operations, regulatory jurisdiction will end when all requirements of the regulatory program have been met.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq; PL 100-34

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 701.5

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement (OSMRE) proposes to remove the definition of "support facilities" from its regulations. In reviewing the decisions of regulatory authorities during the time periods when no definition was in effect (prior to the 1983 introduction of a definition and since the 1985 suspension of the definition), OSMRE found that the identification of facilities that support surface coal mining operations has been conducted in a manner consistent with the intent of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act (SMCRA). Therefore, OSMRE has determined that a definition of "support facilities" is not needed in order to ensure that such facilities are regulated under SMCRA. This proposed rule would impose only minor costs to the coal industry since relatively few operations will be affected.

Abstract: The regulation will address the issue addressed in a district court challenge to OSM regulations. The rule will address the problem of combination spillways and will specify a spillway configuration that must be installed to safely pass the designed precipitation event. In some cases, the rule may allow one spillway to serve as a combination principal and emergency spillway. The proposed action may reduce costs in those cases where one spillway will safely pass the design precipitation event with no corresponding decrease in environmental protection.

Abstract: These regulations are being revised as ordered by the District Court for the District of Columbia. They will amend OSM's permanent program performance standards with respect to prime farmlands by allowing last cut lakes to remain after mining is complete only where they are beneficial or necessary to agricultural activity and allowing for a support facility exemption only for underground mines. OSM will propose rules concerning replanting of trees as a normal husbandry practice, the period for revegetation success, and rills and gullies control as a normal conservation practice. Costs and benefits of this action have not been determined since the final scope of the rule is not certain. This analysis will be based in large part on public comments received on the proposed rule.

Abstract: This rule will clarify that OSMRE will not require the assessment of civil penalties for notices of violation or cessation orders issued to a permittee who has secured an improvidently issued permit from a State regulatory authority. Abstract: Cases have been identified where coal mine operators have also contracted with a State to conduct reclamation of abandoned mine land. This reclamation is conducted under the Abandoned Mine Land (AML) Reclamation Program and is funded by fees paid by coal operators on productions. Under the proposed rule, a reclamation contract could not be let to an operator with certain outstanding violations of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act. The violations would include outstanding cessation orders and unpaid civil penalties and abandoned mine reclamation fees. The rule action is being initiated to prevent operators in violation of SMCRA from benefiting from the Act by receiving contracts funded under the AML program.

Abstract: These changes to 43 CFR 429 will provide greater flexibility in determining the value of low value uses by third parties of lands administered by the Bureau of Reclamation. Currently an appraisal is required to provide the use value. A periodic review of the value of the use will also be provided. And finally, the authority of Reclamation's regional directors to modify or waive the values to be recovered is further clarified.

Abstract: This proposed rule establishes guidelines for mining in certain military installations under the Mining Law of 1872, as amended, and for assuring the safe, uninterrupted, and unimpeded use of the lands for military purposes. The Military Lands Withdrawal Act of 1986 specifically provided for certain military lands previously withdrawn from mining to be considered for opening to the operation of the Mining Law of 1872, as amended, with certain special restrictions. Military Lands identified as suitable for mining through the Bureau of Land Management's planning system will be opened on the effective date of an opening order that will be published in the Federal Register.

Abstract: This regulation will implement the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, as amended, in programs or activities assisted by the Department of Justice (DOJ). The statute, 42 USC 6103(a)(4), requires that Federal agencies providing Federal financial assistance promulgate implementing regulations consistent with the general regulations issued by the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS), and the statute provides that such agency regulations shall not be effective until approved by HHS. In 1980 the proposed rule was published for comment, modified, approved by the DOJ Office of Legal Counsel, and on November 10, 1980 a draft final rule was forwarded to HHS for approval. On July 13, 1984 HHS conditionally approved the draft regulation. On August 12, 1987 DOJ submitted to HHS a draft final regulation.

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1101; 8 USC 1184

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 214.2(b)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Immigration and Naturalization Service ("the Service") proposes to restrict the types of situations under which an alien may apply for an extension of stay as a nonimmigrant visitor for pleasure (B-2). Faced with ever-increasing adjudications caseloads and with resources which fail to keep pace with those increases, the Service must continually seek ways to carry out its responsibilities in a more efficient manner. By limiting the situations under which a visitor for pleasure may seek an extension of stay, the Service will decrease the amount of resources which must be dedicated to this area and will be able to increase its efforts in other areas having higher priority.

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1103; 31 USC 9701

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 103.7

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Immigration and Naturalization Service ("the Service") entertains numerous requests for Verification of Information from INS Service Records, via Form G-641. This form has been misused as a substitute document, while other INS documents are being prepared (i.e., I-94, I-551 or Certificate of Naturalization or Citizenship). Should an applicant need to have his or her status verified while waiting for one of these documents to be processed, and such verification can be satisfied by obtaining a copy of a document (certified if necessary), an FOIA/PA request can be made. If verification is needed to obtain a benefit and a copy will not suffice, the agency needing verification can make a direct request to the INS and it will be handled as appropriate.

Discontinuing the use of Form G-641 will also eliminate the need to request Form G-350, Certification of Birth Data. Requests for this document are minimal since foreign-born children are issued an alien registration receipt card or a citizenship document by INS and no other form of identification should be necessary.

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1101(a)(15)(B); 8 USC 1184

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 214.2(b)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice announces the intent of the Immigration and Naturalization Service ("the Service") to set forth, in regulatory form, the special requirements for admission, extension and maintenance of status of nonimmigrant alien visitors for business and visitors for pleasure. Much of the Service's written policy relating to this subject is now contained in the Service's Operations Instructions at O.I. 214.2(b). Because it is more appropriate for interpretations and rules to be set forth in regulatory form, this information will become part of 8 CFR 214. In addition, the proposed rulemaking will clarify the criteria for according B-1 classification to members of certain occupations (such as participants in religious programs and members of foreign film crews). By issuing this advance notice, the Service is providing an opportunity to the public to submit comments and make suggestions at an earlier stage of the process. This will result in a proposed rule which is more comprehensive in its scope and more understandable to the public.

Abstract: The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (IRCA) imposes sanctions against employers who hire aliens not authorized to work. Since many of the Nation's agricultural employers have become dependent upon such workers to meet production and harvesting needs, Congress created the Special Agricultural Workers (SAW) Program and the Replenishment Agricultural Workers (RAW) Program to provide permanent resident status to certain agricultural workers. To clarify the process through which employers can employ nonimmigrant seasonal and temporary agricultural workers, Congress moved agricultural employment from H-2 classification into a separate H-2A class, and incorporated a labor certification process into the statute. This interim rule establishes special H-2A regulatory criteria. It supplements the Department of Labor's rules covering the temporary agricultural labor certification process. This rule amends Service regulations relating therefore to temporary alien workers seeking classification under section 101(a)(15)(H) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1103; 8 USC 1251; 8 USC 1252; 8 USC 1357

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 241

Abstract: This rule will require additional data to be provided by an alien seeking a judicial recommendation against deportation in order to help identify him/her to the Immigration and Naturalization Service. This change is necessary to ensure that the Service will be given sufficient information necessary to identify the alien who is the subject of a motion for a judicial recommendation against deportation. This change will permit the Service sufficient time to obtain any file relating to the alien and to prepare a response, if desired, to the alien's motion for a judicial recommendation against deportation.

Abstract: This rule designates Dover, Delaware and Red Hook, St. Thomas, Virgin Islands as "Class A" ports of entry, and further identifies both facilities as ports of entry for all aliens. In addition, Coral Bay, St. John, Virgin Islands is designated as a "Class B" port of entry for aliens who at the time of applying for admission are lawfully in possession of valid alien registration receipt cards, or valid nonresident alien border crossing identification cards, or are admissible without documents under the documentation waivers contained in 8 CFR 212. With the increasing number of vessels arriving at these three locations, it is necessary that each be designated a port of entry, to be regularly staffed by inspectors of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Abstract: This rule amends, the current regulations on the Visa Waiver Pilot Program as provided at section 313 of the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (Public Law 99-603) to permit the temporary absence of aliens admitted under this program to travel to certain adjacent islands as well as to foreign contiguous territory within the 90-day period of admission. In addition, the rule is amended to authorize passengers who are in transit through the United States to avail themselves of the program, if otherwise eligible. Semiannual Agenda of Regulations AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Labor.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of regulations selected for review or development.

SUMMARY: This document sets forth the Department's Semiannual Agenda of Regulations which has been selected for review or development during the coming one-year period. The agenda complies with the requirements of both Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

DATES: The agenda includes all regulations which are expected to be under review or development between April 1989 and April 1990.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Roland G. Droitsch, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Policy, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy, Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue, NW., Room S-2312, Washington, DC 20210, (202) 523-9058.

Note: Information pertaining to a specific regulation can be obtained from the Agency Contact listed for that particular regulation.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act require the semiannual publication in the Federal Register of an agenda of regulations.

Executive Order 12291 became effective February 17, 1981, and in substance requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda, listing all the regulations it expects to have under active consideration for promulgation, proposal or review during the coming one-year period. It also requires the Department to conduct a Regulatory Impact Analysis for all "major" regulations being developed.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act became effective on January 1, 1981. It applies only to regulations for which a notice of proposed rulemaking was issued on or after January 1, 1981, and requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda, listing all the regulations it expects to propose or promulgate that are likely to have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities" (5 U.S.C. 602). For any regulation that will have this impact, the Department must conduct a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis to gauge the economic consequences of the rule, and to analyze the availability of more flexible approaches for lightening the rule's regulatory burden on "small entities."

If a proposed regulation will not have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities," the Department of Labor must publish a certification to that effect at the time of the general notice of proposed rulemaking or at the time of the publication of the final rule. That certification must be accompanied by a succinct statement explaining the reasons for the agency's determinations.

As permitted by law, the Department of Labor is combining this publication of its agendas under the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291.

The regulatory reform process, of which the Unified Agenda is a part, continues to be an extremely valuable aid in the development of better regulations by the Department. We believe that our regulatory reform program has resulted in improved regulatory management, more clearly written regulations and significantly less burdensome regulations.

Further improvement is certainly needed, and we are constantly seeking new and innovative approaches in pursuit of this goal. All interested members of the public are invited and encouraged to let Departmental officials know how our regulatory reform process can be further improved and, of course, to participate in and comment on the review or development of the regulations listed on the agenda.

The Department of Labor's next semiannual agenda, under Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, will be published in October 1989.

Elizabeth Dole,
Secretary of Labor.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Part 50-204 of 41 CFR contains safety and health standards for Federal supply contracts under the Walsh-Healey Act. These standards, which also apply to Federal contracts for services under the Service Contract Act, were adopted in 1969, and were last revised in 1971. Many of the standards in Part 50-204 are duplicative of standards found in other Department of Labor regulations, primarily those issued under the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) in 29 CFR Parts 1910-1919, and the Mine Safety and Health Act (MSHA) in 30 CFR. In addition, other OSHA and MSHA standards have been revised and updated considerably since 1971, and these changes are not reflected in Part 50-204. Because employers covered by the Walsh-Healey and Service Contracts Acts are also covered by OSHA and MSHA, and thus are already required to comply with the OSHA and MSHA standards, as applicable, the Department of Labor is considering whether or not the Walsh-Healey standards should be revised by deleting redundant provisions and by substituting appropriate references (cont)

1365. CHILD LABOR REGULATIONS, ORDERS AND STATEMENTS OF INTERPRETATION (ESA/W-H)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 203

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 570

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 3(1) of the Fair Labor Standards Act requires the Secretary of Labor to issue regulations with respect to minors between 14 and 16 years of age ensuring that the periods and conditions of their employment do not interfere with their schooling, health, or well-being. The Secretary also is directed to designate occupations that may be particularly hazardous for minors between 16 and 18 years of age. Child Labor Regulation No. 3 sets forth the permissible industries and occupations in which 14 and 15 year olds may be employed. In addition, this regulation specifies the number of hours in a day and in a week, and time periods within a day that such minors may be employed. The nonagricultural hazardous occupations orders which prohibit the employment of minors in such occupations are also contained in 29 CFR 570. Changes in technology and job content over the years require a review of these regulations. In order to increase job opportunities for such minors, while maintaining essential protection for their well-being, modifications to these regulations may be needed. The Department has established a Child (cont)

Abstract: These regulations set forth the criteria used in the determination of the application of the Fair Labor Standards Act exemption for "executive," "administrative," "professional" and "outside sales employees" from the minimum wage and overtime requirements of the Act. The existing regulation was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief. A final rule increasing the salary test criteria was published on 01/13/81 (46 FR 3010) and was scheduled to become effective on 02/13/81. On 02/12/81 (46 FR 11972) an indefinite stay of the final rule was published. On 03/27/81 (46 FR 18998) a proposal to suspend the final rule indefinitely was published with comments due by 04/28/81. As a result of numerous comments and petitions received from industry groups regarding the duties and responsibilities tests as set forth in the regulations, as well as recent case law developments, the Department concluded that a more comprehensive review of these regulations was needed and decided to reopen the comment period and broaden the scope of the review to include all aspects of the regulations. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 201 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 531

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations contain the basic standards governing the application of section 3(m) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). This section provides that, under certain conditions, the reasonable cost or fair value of furnishing employees with board, lodging, or other facilities may be applied towards meeting the Act's minimum wage and overtime requirements. Section 3(m) also provides that tips received by certain employees may be credited toward the payment of the statutory minimum wage (up to a maximum of 40 percent). The regulatory changes under consideration are needed to reflect amendments to the Act, current case law, and agency enforcement experience, since this rule was last revised in 1967 (32 FR 13575).

1368. EMPLOYMENT OF HOMEWORKERS IN CERTAIN INDUSTRIES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 211

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 530

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation sets forth restrictions on industrial homework and governs the issuance of certificates authorizing the employment of homeworkers in certain industries, pursuant to Section 11(d) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). As originally issued, these regulations restricted the employment of industrial homework in seven industries: knitted outerwear; women's apparel; jewelry; buttons and buckles; gloves and mittens; handkerchiefs; and embroideries. The ban was removed on homework in the knitted outerwear industry by the Department on 11/9/81 following extensive hearings and public comment. This action was subsequently upheld by the District Court for the District of Columbia. However, on appeal the ban was reimposed 2/29/84 by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. On 3/27/84 the Department published a proposed rule rescinding the ban on homework in the knitted outerwear industry only. In addition to soliciting comments on the proposed recission, the Department sought comments on various alternatives to such action (49 FR 11786). On November 5, 1984, a final rule was published lifting the ban on homework for employers (cont)

Based on analysis of the results of its enforcement experience under the new certification procedure, the Department is proposing to rescind the remaining restrictions in the other industries for employers who currently obtain certificates. A Notice of Proposed Rulemaking was published on August 21, 1986 (51 FR 30036). Based on the review of the comments and the Department's further examination of enforcement experience in knitted outerwear, a new proposal was published on March 30, 1988 (53 FR 10342) which included enforcement mechanisms to enhance compliance among employers of homeworkers. The comment period was later extended to May 13, 1988 (53 FR 15063). The proposal also excluded the women's apparel industry and stated that this industry would be the subject of separate rulemaking. A final rule was published November 10, 1988 (53 FR 45706). An ANPRM concerning women's apparel homework was published December 30, 1988 (53 FR 53344). A notice of public hearings on this issue to be held in five cities during March 1989 was published on February 3, 1989.

Abstract: This proposal would, among other things, incorporate 1978 and 1980 statutory amendments to definitions applicable to Section 503 of the Rehabilitation Act and to the Veterans' programs. However, since 1981 there have been additional amendments to the Rehabilitation Act and to the Vietnam Era Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act affecting definitions applicable under the respective programs. All such statutorily required changes to the definitions would be incorporated into the proposed regulatory action contemplated under RIN - 1215-AA01.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 41 USC 38; 41 USC 40

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act regulations to provide an alternative regular dealer definition applicable to information systems integration businesses which bid on contracts to furnish the government fully operational information processing ("ADP") systems. The alternative definition would relieve potential contractors in this industry from having to physically maintain inventories from which sales are made, a custom that is inconsistent with this industry's practices.

Abstract: These regulations establish the terms and conditions, pursuant to section 14(c) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), under which handicapped workers may be employed, under certificate, at wage rates less than those otherwise required by statute. The 1986 Amendments to the FLSA substantially revised section 14(c) to simplify worker certification by eliminating separate certification for more productive workers, multiple handicapped individuals, and those in evaluation or training and work activities centers. Three affected regulations (29 CFR 524, 525 and 529) were combined into a single proposed new rule which was published for public comments on May 20, 1988. The comment period closed on July 19, 1988. On October 31, 1988, a notice was published in the Federal Register (53 FR 43899) reopening the comment period for 15 days.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 99-603

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 501

Abstract: The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 contains certain labor standards requirements for foreign agricultural workers employed under the H-2A foreign agricultural worker program, as well as for U.S. workers hired by employers who utilize foreign agricultural workers. The standards relate to pay, working conditions, housing, transportation and recruitment. The Employment Standards Administration issued an interim final rule on June 1, 1987 (53 FR 20524). It will issue an amended final rule that incorporates the labor standards issued by the Employment and Training Administration and sets forth procedures for enforcement of these labor standards. Abstract: The Employee Polygraph Protection Act of 1988 (EPPA) was enacted June 27, 1988 and takes effect December 27, 1988. EPPA prohibits most private employers from administering lie detector tests to employees or prospective employees but permits the use of polygraph tests, subject to certain safeguards, under specific circumstances. The Secretary of Labor is authorized to issue rules and regulations to implement EPPA and to enforce it, including authority to conduct investigations, assess civil money penalties for violations, and bring suit in U.S. District Courts to enjoin violations of the Act. Abstract: These regulations govern labor standards applicable to federally funded or assisted construction contracts subject to the Davis- Bacon and Related Acts (as well as contracts subject to the Contract Work Hours and Safety Standards Act). The revised regulations will permit contractors to expand their use of semi-skilled "helpers" on Davis-Bacon covered projects at wages lower than those paid to skilled journeymen. Revised final rules were originally published 05/28/82 (47 FR 23658), but were deferred on 07/28/82 (47 FR 32070) due to an injunction issued by the U.S. District Court. Although the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit upheld most of the key provisions published in 1982, the district court enjoined certain provisions dealing with helpers. In accordance with decisions of the District and Appeals Courts, a revised proposal was published 80/19/87 (52 31366), and the comment period was later extended to 11/18/87 (52 FR 38473). A final rule was published 1/27/89 (54 FR 4234). The District Court has been asked to lift the injunction to permit the modified rule to be implemented.

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 10

Abstract: Certain provisions of Final Rules published April 1, 1987, were challenged as being promulgated in violation of the APA. Those sections dealt with collection of forfeited compensation from on-going benefits. In order to ensure that any doubt as to the procedural validity of the rules was laid to rest, the Department took two actions: 1) published an interim final rule which reinstated the affected sections without the language which had been challenged; and 2) published a proposed rule with an invitation to comment, which in effect would have reinstated the April 1, 1987 rule. The proposed rule was withdrawn on November 28, 1988 (53 FR 47829). Following its review of the comments received regarding the proposal, the Department decided that the existing rules are most consistent with the Federal Employees' Compensation Act (5 U.S.C. 8101, et seq.). By withdrawing the proposed rule, the interim final rule remains in effect.

The regulation implements P.L. 97-248 and updates existing material issued as manuals. Alternatives being considered include: (1) Issuing a regulation, another type of directive, or nothing; (2) Limiting the scope of the regulation to areas involving compliance with Federal law or not limiting scope; and (3) which rules, if any, should be issued regarding the calculation of Reed Act balances, restorations of Reed Act funds, program income, and sales, other dispositions, and reduced usage of property acquired with Reed Act funds. Issuing a regulation will benefit grantees by reducing their uncertainty as to the applicable rules. No significant additional costs will result.

Abstract: These regulations are being developed to implement the benefit provisions contained in Sec. 43 of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. The Act requires the Secretary of Labor to specify the percentage of prior salary which an "eligible protected employee" would receive as a benefit payment under the Act. An eligible protected employee is a person who has had at least 4 years of employment with a certificated air carrier as of October 24, 1978 and who loses his or her job during the ten years following such date in a bankruptcy or major employment contraction if and only if the Department of Transportation determines that the principal causes of such job loss was deregulation. On May 17, 1984 the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia held that Section 43 of the Airline Deregulation Act was unconstitutional. On July 16, 1985, the U.S. Court of Appeals decided that the employee protection provisions of Section 43 were severable from the legislative veto provisions. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled on March 25, 1987 that the legislative veto provisions were unconstitutional but the first right-to-hire provisions were constitutional, therefore, rulemaking can proceed on the (Cont'd)

Abstract: Experience in administering the regulations relating to the certification of immigrant aliens for permanent employment in the United States indicates that a number of changes should be made to these regulations. The proposed amendments would be intended to make labor certification process more efficient, to prevent abuse or manipulation of the labor certification process, to clarify some apparent ambiguities in the regulations, and to make the regulations easier to read. Before the Department of State (DOS) and the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) may issue visas and admit certain immigrant aliens to work permanently in the United States, the Secretary of Labor pursuant to section 212(a)(14) of the Immigration and Naturalization Act (INA) must certify to the Secretary of State and to the Attorney General that: (a) There are not sufficient United States workers who are able, willing, qualified and available at the time of the application for a visa and admission into the United States and at the place where the alien is to perform work; and (cont)

Abstract: This proposed rule would replace outdated administrative regulations for the unemployment insurance (UI) program grants to States with reference to more current common administrative requirements for State governments codified elsewhere by the Department of Labor (DOL). Because of certain unique needs of the UI program, this action would also cover UI program exceptions to these requirements and clarifications of Employment and Training Administration (ETA) policy in applying requirements to State grantees. As a result, the proposed rule is expected to aid States in understanding and complying with the requirements.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1101 et seq

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 655

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: As mandated by Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (IRCA), DOL published a proposed rule on May 5, 1987 (52 FR 20496) and an interim final rule on June 1, 1987 (52 FR 16770), for administering the H-2A temporary alien agricultural labor certification program created by IRCA. Comments received on the proposed rule were considered by DOL in developing the interim final rule. An additional 60-day comment period led to additional comments. Subsequently, litigation relating to the wage provisions in the June 1 rule, particularly the methodology for establishing adverse effect wage rates (AEWRs) was filed against DOL. In December 1987 the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit remanded the interim final rule to DOL for further explanation of the AEWR methodology. DOL is publishing a proposed rule explaining its intent to adopt the same methodology set forth in the June 1, 1987 rule, based upon an expanded record.

Abstract: Governors are responsible for resolving audits of their JTPA subgrantees and subcontractors. Current ETA policy requires federal review and approval of these resolutions only in cases of fraud, gross mismanagement and abuse. More routine audit resolutions are only reviewed on a sample basis during onsite compliance reviews. However, a recent legal opinion stated that the JTPA regulations as presently written could be construed as requiring federal review and approval of all Governors' audit resolutions. The regulations may have to be amended in order to implement ETA's policy.

Abstract: Section 8477(e)(1)(E) of the Federal Employees' Retirement System Act of 1986 (FERSA) requires the Secretary of Labor to prescribe in regulations procedures for allocating fiduciary responsibilities among fiduciaries, including investment managers, with respect to the Thrift Savings Fund (Fund) established under FERSA. This regulation would carry out the requirement of FERSA that the Secretary promulgate regulations prescribing procedures for allocating fiduciary responsibility with respect to the Thrift Savings Fund.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811; 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 18; 30 CFR 36; 30 CFR 31; 30 CFR 32

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory. Under the Mine act, the advisory committee must submit recommendations within 180 days of convening.

Abstract: MSHA has established a mining equipment approval program, including evaluation criteria, and corresponding safety standards requiring the use of certain equipment. Existing approval regulations do not generally apply to the diesel equipment now being used in underground coal mines. An Advisory Committee convened in January 1988 to make recommendations concerning what standards and regulations would be appropriate for coal mines. The Advisory Committee made recommendations to the Assistant Secretary for MSHA, to write proposed regulations for approval of equipment in July 1988.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 814(e); 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 104

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would implement section 104(e) of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977 which addresses mines with a pattern of repeated, significant and substantial violations. In 1985 MSHA issued an ANPRM which outlined new procedures for implementing the statutory provision for pattern of violations. The Agency reviewed comments and has been working to develop both appropriate criteria and a meaningful procedure for identifying operators who are potential pattern violators. The costs of the regulations would primarily bear upon individual mine operators receiving issuances notices. Any costs that the mine operator would incur to comply with other Federal standards would be attributed to those standards.

Abstract: On November 18, 1988, the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) published a final rule (53 FR 46768) to revise its safety standards for explosives and blasting in underground coal mines. Prior to the effective date, MSHA stayed provision 75.1325(b) which restricts blasting to only one face in a working place to allow further review of single versus multiple face blasting. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 957; 30 USC 813(d)

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 50

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory. This regulatory requirement is a Federal statutory provision. It implements Sections 103(d)(h) and (j) of the Mine Act.

Abstract: In response to concerns raised by members of Congress and the mining community about the nature and accuracy of existing reporting obligations, MSHA established an intra-agency task force to review its requirements for reports of accidents, injuries and illnesses in coal and metal and nonmetal mines. The Agency focused on several aspects of the reporting requirements including the definition of an occupational injury or illness, and an expanded audit program. The Agency has determined that the existing regulations in Part 50 should be clarified and improved through the rulemaking process. MSHA will clarify the definitions of reportable injuries and illnesses and solicit suggestions from the public in this effort.

Abstract: On July 10, 1987, the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia invalidated the Agency's existing interim relief regulation based in part, on procedural defects, holding that it was contrary to Congressional intent. (INT. UNION v. MSHA, 823 F. 2d 608 (D.C. Cir. 1987)). Therefore, MSHA has issued a proposal addressing interim relief in situations where enforcement of a mandatory standard would result in a diminution of safety to affected miners or in emergency situations.

Abstract: The Agency published a proposed rule concerning ventilation in underground mines which included provisions for the introduction of new technology for systematic monitoring of explosive methane gas, as well as gases that may indicate a mine fire. 1435. APPROVAL CRITERIA FOR RESPIRATORY PROTECTIVE DEVICES

DOL—MSHA — Final Rule Stage

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under the 1977 Mine Act, MSHA and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) jointly approve respirators for use in hazardous atmospheres. New technology has been developed which has not been accommodated by the existing regulations. In addition, questions have been raised about laboratory testing and field performance of respirators. The decision has been made for NIOSH to have the lead in approval of respirators. MSHA will be involved with the devices which are uniquely adapted or required for mining. A proposed rule to remove MSHA's regulations upon completion of a concurrent NIOSH rulemaking was published in August 1987. However, further rulemaking is contingent upon NIOSH's timetables.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75.100; 30 CFR 75.150; 30 CFR 77.100; 30 CFR 77.105

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Certain MSHA regulations require persons working in coal mines to be qualified or certified to perform certain tasks, for example, testing for methane and making ventilation examinations. The existing rule requires operators to submit certification and qualification applications to MSHA every six months for recertification. The proposal eliminates the six-month limitation, permitting persons to remain certified or qualified for as long as they continue to satisfy the substantive requirements and remain employed at the same coal mine or independent contractor.

Abstract: Under existing standards MSHA is limited to investigating and approving lamps which meet the design, construction and test requirements specifically set forth in 30 CFR 20. As a result, the Agency is restricted from approving lamps that incorporate alternative technology. The proposal would amend Part 20 to enable the Agency to issue approvals for lamps which, after testing, are found to be safe for their intended use and provide, at a minimum, the same degree of protection as lamps currently approved under the existing standards.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75.523-3

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In 1973, the Agency issued installation and performance requirements for automatic emergency brakes on rubber-tired, self-propelled electric face equipment for underground coal mines. However, there was not sufficient technical data to develop criteria for evaluating the designs of these braking systems. On July 30, 1974, the effective dates for compliance with 30 CFR 75.523-3 were suspended indefinitely. The Mine Safety and Health (MSHA) published a final rule to require automatic emergency-parking brakes on rubber-tired, self- propelled electric haulage equipment used in underground coal mines. This final rule also sets minimum performance standards for parking brakes required by 30 CFR 18 on other rubber-tired, self-propelled electric face equipment. This rule, replacing a suspended standard for automatic emerging parking brakes at 30 CFR 75.523-3, sets forth compliance schedule for installation and retrofitting of such brakes on designated equipment. MSHA expects that the final rule will enhance miner safety in under- ground coal mines.

Abstract: OSHA is developing a modification of the Z table permissible exposure limits of 29 CFR 1910.1000 in response to current scientific data. Section 6(b) of the Act requires where appropriate, provision for medical surveillance in each 6(b) rulemaking for a harmful substance. A generic standard for medical surveillance would satisfy the requirements of the Act thus enabling the Agency to deal directly with the narrower issues of the revision of the tables. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on September 27, 1988, (53 FR 37595) to acquire additional information. OSHA also intends to review its compliance experience with medical surveillance provisions and seek experienced medical opinion in the form of a symposium or other public discussion.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 653; 29 USC 655; 29 USC 657

Abstract: The Carcinogen Policy describes the criteria and procedures OSHA will use to identify, classify, and then regulate carcinogens. The Policy also establishes a process for screening chemicals and for setting priorities for potential rulemaking activities. The Carcinogen Policy explicitly recognizes that periodic revisions are necessary in order to incorporate the latest scientific advances and techniques into the regulatory process. Hence, it is time for OSHA to review and modernize the carcinogen policy. The original standard was issued in 1980 before the Supreme Court "benzene" decision on significant risk. Thereafter, a final rule deleting provisions of the Carcinogen Policy that were inconsistent with the benzene decision was published on 1/19/81 (46 FR 4889). A proposal was published on 1/23/81 (46 FR 7402) to permit alternatives to the risk analysis section of the carcinogen policy to be addressed. The proposal was withdrawn on 3/27/81 (46 FR 19000). Abstract: On June 17, 1986, OSHA issued revised standards governing occupational exposure to asbestos, tremolite, anthophyllite, and actinolite in general industry and in the construction industry. These standards replaced OSHA's previous asbestos standard promulgated in 1972. Since the issuance of the revised standards OSHA has received letters and petitions, from both rulemaking participants and nonparticipants, that contain additional comments, assertions and information that the rulemaking record may not fully reflect. These letters and petitions concern the appropriateness of regulating nonasbestiform tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite as presenting the same health risk as asbestos. OSHA has granted a temporary stay of the effective dates of the current standards as they apply to nonasbestiform varieties of tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite. This action was taken, in part, to enable the Agency to review letters and memoranda from the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health as well as submissions by the R.T. Abstract: OSHA's policy concerning the use of engineering controls and respirators was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief in 1981. Current OSHA regulations require that employers implement feasible engineering controls to maintain air contaminant concentrations in the workplace at or below the prescribed permissible exposure limits. The use of respirators is permitted only in those cases where engineering controls are not feasible, not yet installed, or not adequate. This policy has been criticized as being inflexible, not cost-effective, and often unnecessary for employee health protection. OSHA believes that any changes to the policy for use of engineering controls must be closely coordinated with revisions in the respiratory protection regulations (29 CFR 1910.134). This rulemaking does not address the assessment and reduction of any absolute existing risks, but rather addresses the possible change in risk abatement associated with the use of respirators instead of engineering controls.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.270

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Employees in oil and gas well drilling and servicing are exposed to a variety of safety hazards which are not specifically covered by present OSHA safety standards. It has proved difficult to apply the existing general industry standards to control the unique nature of this industry. OSHA is considering a standard which will address the unique problems of oil and gas well drilling and servicing. OSHA is reevaluating its proposed rule based on the public record and intends to reissue a proposed rule as the next action.

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1000, (Table Z-2); 29 CFR 1910.1028

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: OSHA has amended its standard for occupational exposure to benzene by reducing the permissible exposure limit from 10 parts benzene per million parts of air (10 ppm) to an eight-hour time-weighted average of 1 ppm and by adding appropriate industrial hygiene and medical surveillance provisions necessary for the protection of employee health. This action is based on OSHA's determination that the amendments are needed to reduce the risk of leukemia and other adverse health effects associated with occupational exposure to benzene. OSHA published its final amendment to the standard on September 11, 1987. Due to technical problems associated with the completion of a detailed study of feasibility in barge and tanker cleaning and repair operations, however, OSHA exempted these operations from certain provisions of the standard. OSHA intends to issue a proposal to amend the benzene standard which will address the factors specific to the barge and tanker cleaning and repair industry.

Abstract: The purpose of this regulatory action would be to update and revise a standard first issued in 1960. The current language in many instances addresses the hazards to cargo handling involving methods long since abandoned, and fails to address the serious hazards of newer methods. Because much of the current standard is out of date, there are problems with compliance. These revised requirements will provide both employers and employees with a blueprint for effective and safe workpractices in the cargo handling industry. No alternative other than revision is contemplated. The annual cost of the revision is expected to be minimal -- less than five million dollars.

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b); 29 USC 657

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: 4,4'-Methylenedianiline (MDA) is a chemical used primarily to manufacture methylenediphenyl diisocyanate, which is used to make polyurethane foams and elastomers. Recent scientific data indicate that MDA is a carcinogen in animals and a potential carcinogen in humans. In 1983, OSHA and the Environmental Protection Agency participated in a joint effort to publish an advance notice of proposed rulemaking to solicit information on MDA production and use, estimates of environmental and occupational exposure, and studies of its toxic and carcinogenic effects. EPA evaluated the data received in response to the advance notice and concluded that the chemical presents an unreasonable risk of injury to the health of exposed workers. Under the provisions of section 9(a) of the Toxic Substances Control Act, EPA referred MDA to OSHA for action. OSHA responded to the EPA referral on 2/26/86. OSHA established a mediated rulemaking advisory committee composed of interested parties from labor, industry and government to assist the agency in developing a proposed standard. The Committee completed its work in June 1987 (Cont'd)

Abstract: A major area of coverage not addressed in the current OSHA electrical standards for general industry (29 CFR 1910) involves the maintenance and operation practices associated with electrical transmission and distribution lines, substations and generating stations. Abstract: The present occupational health standard for formaldehyde was published on December 4, 1987 (52 FR 46168). In this standard, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) required hazard warning labels to be placed on containers of all products composed of greater than 0.1 percent formaldehyde or capable of releasing formaldehyde into the air under any normal condition of use at concentrations reaching or exceeding 0.1 ppm. Material safety data sheets, prepared in accordance with paragraph (g) of the Hazard Communication Standard (29 CFR 1910.1200), were also required. On December 2, 1987, the Formaldehyde Institute filed an Application for Administrative Stay of the Formaldehyde Standard's cancer labeling requirement. On November 8, 1988, OSHA requested comments on whether to grant a petition for administrative stay of these provisions and whether to institute additional rulemaking. Abstract: On May 20, 1986, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) issued a report to OSHA, under Section 9(a) of the Toxic Substances Control Act, stating that EPA has reasonable basis to conclude that the risk of injury to worker health from exposure to four glycol ethers during their manufacture, processing and use is unreasonable, and that this risk may be prevented or reduced to a significant extent by OSHA regulatory action. EPA gave OSHA 180 days in which to respond to its report. OSHA published its response on December 11, 1986, stating that OSHA had preliminarily concluded that occupational exposures to the subject glycol ethers at the current OSHA permissible exposure limits may present significant risks to the health of workers. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) on April 2, 1987, (52 FR 10586). Abstract: In July 1985, OSHA was petitioned by the United Automobile, Aerospace and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW) to issue a hazard alert; issue an emergency temporary standard; and to begin work on a new permanent standard for methylene chloride (DCM). This request was based on information obtained from the Environmental Protection Agency and the National Toxicology Program indicating that DCM is an animal carcinogen and may have the potential to cause cancer in humans. In November 1986, OSHA notified the UAW that its petition had been granted, in part, and denied, in part. Specifically, OSHA issued a set of guidelines for controlling occupational exposure to DCM and OSHA denied that portion of the petition requesting the issuance of an emergency temporary standard. Specifically, OSHA issued a set of guidelines for controlling occupational exposure to DCM and published an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on November 24, 1986 (51 FR 42257).

Abstract: OSHA is developing a modification of the Z table permissible exposure limits of 29 CFR 1910.1000 in response to current scientific data. Section 6(b)(7) of the Act requires provisions for exposure monitoring for each substance undergoing 6(b) rulemaking. A generic standard for exposure monitoring would satisfy the monitoring requirement of the Act thus enabling the Agency to deal directly with the narrower issues of the revision of the Z tables. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on September 27, 1988. (53 FR 37591). 1473. BLOODBORNE INFECTIOUS DISEASES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Many health-care workers are exposed to blood and body fluids from patients who have active bloodborne infections or are carriers of these infections. Such exposure presents a potential risk of disease for the health-care worker. One such disease, Hepatitis B, has been shown to present a substantially increased risk for health-care workers. Hepatitis B is a serious disease that may require hospitalization and, in a small percentage of cases, is fatal. Another bloodborne disease, Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) is also of great concern to health- care workers. Only a very small number of infections, however, have been documented to have resulted from occupational exposure to the virus that causes AIDS. About half of the nation's 6 million health-care workers are at increased risk from exposure to bloodborne infectious diseases. (Cont)

Additional Information: ABSTRACT (CONT'D): Some examples of health-care workers at highest risk are emergency room workers, dialysis unit workers, operating room personnel, intensive care unit workers, and blood bank employees. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) has no standard specifically regulating occupational exposure to bloodborne infectious diseases. In 1983, the Agency issued guidelines for reducing the occupational risk of Hepatitis B infection (OSHA Instruction CPL 2-2.36). These guidelines are voluntary, however. In September 1986, OSHA was petitioned by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees and other unions for the issuance of an emergency temporary standard to protect workers from occupational exposure to bloodborne infectious diseases, such as hepatitis B and AIDS. The agency plans to publish a proposal in 1989.

1474. CADMIUM

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910, (Table Z-2)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On June 18, 1986, the International Chemical Workers Union and the Public Citizen Health Research Group petitioned OSHA to issue an emergency temporary standard reducing the permissible exposure limit for cadmium to one microgram of cadmium per cubic meter of air. On June 25, 1987 the union and HRG filed a petition with the Court of Appeals requesting the Court to order OSHA to promulgate an ETS. In its July 1, 1987, response to the petitioners, OSHA stated that issuance of an emergency standard was not warranted, but that exposure to cadmium at levels permitted under the current standard represented a significant risk to worker health which would be addressed through section 6(b) rulemaking procedures. On September 26, 1988, OSHA published guidelines for controlling exposure to cadmium and recommended reduced exposure levels significantly below the permissible exposure limit. OSHA plans to publish a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking in April 1989.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910, (Subpart H)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Standards in 29 CFR Part 1910, Subpart H, which address the storage, handling and use of hazardous materials, such as compressed gases, acetylene, hydrogen, oxygen, liquified petroleum gases, and flammable and combustible liquids, will be revised. This regulatory action will provide a new approach to the revision of Subpart H and will occur in three phases in an expanded timeframe. The three phases will be (1) Process Hazards Management, (2) Flammable and Compressed Gases, and, (3) Hazardous Liquids. The first phase of the proposed action is intended to better protect employees from unexpected releases of significant quantities of dangerous substances. The remaining phases are intended to simplify, clarify and consolidate standards on hazardous materials and assist employers and employees in general industry to better understand and better focus on the hazards inherent in the use, handling, and storage of such materials.

Abstract: This regulatory action will complete the consolidation and updating of Parts 1915 and 1910 by providing shipyard employees with coverage under one comprehensive OSHA standard. This revision will involve the promulgation of 16 maritime subparts and their 1910 counterparts. Its completion will relieve shipyard owners from the burden of having to comply with two sets of rules that are complex, prescriptive, confusing and, in some cases, conflicting. OSHA has established an Advisory Committee to assist the agency in reviewing and revising these subparts. Experts from government, industry, unions and the states will be asked to work with OSHA on this project. A previously identified project, Surface Preparation and Preservation (RIN: 1218-AA96), will be included in this project.

Abstract: Public Law 99-499 requires the Secretary of Labor to promulgate a final standard for Hazardous Waste Operations and Emergency Response. Section 126 of Public Law 99-499 was amended by Congress on December 22, 1987 to require the Secretary of Labor to include in the final rule a training course certification program at least as comprehensive as the EPA's model program for asbestos abatement in public buildings. This proposed revision would add criteria and requirements for training course certification of training for workers involved in hazardous waste operations.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1450

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing OSHA standards are designed to protect employees who are engaged in work involving exposure to only a few toxic chemicals during relatively standardized, continuous or repetitive processes. In contrast, laboratory workers are exposed to a multitude of toxic substances under frequently changing or unpredictable conditions. During this rulemaking, OSHA will examine whether prudent work practices and protective equipment, chosen for the specific facility and task, are more effective, feasible and economical for laboratory work than adhering to OSHA's current substance-specific standards. Accordingly, OSHA has proposed a special performance-oriented work practices standard that, if promulgated, would apply to laboratory workers and would contain provisions specifically designed for laboratory conditions.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

Abstract: Recent scientific studies have reported that ethylene dibromide causes cancer when administered orally, by inhalation and by skin application in laboratory animals. In addition, other studies have shown the chemical to be a mutagen, teratogen and testicular toxin in experimental animals. On the basis of these reports, OSHA has determined that its current permissible exposure limit of 20 ppm does not provide exposed workers adequate protection against cancer and other adverse health effects. A proposed standard for ethylene dibromide was published 10/07/83 (43 FR 45956). Public hearings were held in February 1984. OSHA is currently in the process of decisionmaking on the provisions to be included in the final standard.

Abstract: The present standard, which requires positive engagement of a powered platform with a building face to provide stabilization, may need to be revised because many variance designs have been submitted which do not provide positive engagement of the platform, yet claim equal stability. The agency believes there may be merit to this claim. The proposal provides ffexibility in compliance through performance-oriented provisions as alternatives to positive engagement. It would also expand the scope of the current standard to include requirements covering additional suspension equipment, fall protection, and employee training.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.147, (New)

Abstract: The proposed standard will fill a major gap in our current regulations which now depend for enforcement on the general duty clause, 5(a)(1). It will apply to those situations where the unexpected energization, start up or the release of stored energy could cause injury to employees. Providing comprehensive and uniform control procedures is also expected to reduce significantly the potential for injury and death of employees because the hazards targeted for control exist in virtually every workplace. Further, the proposed standard will respond to the concerns of organized labor who petitioned OSHA in 1979 and again in 1982 for regulatory action to protect employees and to the American National Standards Institute's petition for OSHA to adopt its consensus standard ANSI Z244.1-1982. Regulatory options involve developing a comprehensive standard covering all potentially hazardous energy sources or limiting the scope and application to those certain machines or industries that are causing most of the injuries.

Abstract: The existing standard has been proposed for revision because it contains references to non-government voluntary regulations by topic. The proposal raises several significant issues including: (1) what is the appropriate height limit where the use of ladders as a means of access should be required, and (2) what are appropriate field tests for determining ladder strength. Abstract: OSHA promulgated a final rule on August 24, 1987, that extended the protections of its Hazard Communication Standard (HCS) from the manufacturing sector to all other workplaces where employees are exposed to hazardous chemicals. The HCS requires covered employers to establish hazard communication programs for their employees, including labels on containers, material safety data sheets, and training programs. On August 8, 1988, OSHA published a NPRM to modify the final rule, and provide an opportunity for public comment. Public comments have been received, hearings have been held, and a final rule is expected to be completed in 1989.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1025

Legal Deadline: Final, Judicial, June 28, 1989.

Abstract: On December 11, 1981 (46 FR 60758), OSHA published a Revised Statement of Reasons concerning the feasibility of compliance with paragraph (e)(1) of the standard for occupational exposure to lead, which had been promulgated in 1978. In this revised statement, OSHA stated that it could not reach a conclusion regarding feasibility, on the basis of the existing rulemaking record, for eight specific industry sectors: lead chromate pigments, lead chemicals, nonferrous foundries, brass and bronze ingot production, secondary copper smelting leaded steel, shipbuilding and ship repair, stevedoring, and battery breaking separate from secondary smelting, and that in addition, it wished to reexamine the applicability of the lead standard to the stevedoring industry. OSHA requested that the record (which was under review by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit) be remanded for supplementary administrative proceedings. The Court granted OSHA's December 1981 request on March 31, 1987, and remanded the record to OSHA for further administrative proceedings to determine the feasibility of section (e)(1) for the nine industry sectors OSHA had (Cont'd)

On June 17, 1987, OSHA filed with the Court a motion requesting a 90-day extension to January 1, 1988. On July 31, 1987 the Court granted OSHA's motion. OSHA published in the Federal Register on August 3, 1987, a notice of a limited reopening of the rulemaking record (limited to the issue of feasibility) and specified September 2, 1987 for the receipt of comments from the public and September 15, 1987 for public hearings. Thereafter, at the request of industry and labor, OSHA deferred the relevant dates for the rulemaking until September 16 and 29, 1987, respectively.OSHA requested, and was granted by the Court, an extension for final action until July 15, 1988.Because of the complexity of the issues, OSHA petitioned the court on July 15 for an extension of time for the return of the record until the end of November 1988.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 16, 1987.

Abstract: Public Law 99-499 requires the Secretary of Labor to promulgate a final standard for Hazardous Waste Operations and Emergency Response by October 17, 1987. The law requires the rule to address eleven areas: site analysis, training, medical surveillance, protective equipment, engineering controls, maximum exposure limits, informational programs, handling and labeling, new technology programs, decontamination procedures, and emergency response. The agency has developed a Regulatory Impact Analysis which is available in the docket. OSHA held public hearings in Washington, D.C. and Seattle, Washington to enhance public comment and participation in this rulemaking. On December 22, 1987 Congress amended SARA to require the Secretary of Labor to develop a training certification program at least as comprehensive as the EPA's Model Program for Asbestos Abatement in Schools. OSHA will be developing this certification program as a separate rulemaking.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1000, (Tables Z-1 to Z-3)

Abstract: In 1972, OSHA promulgated permissible exposure limits (PELs) for a number of toxic substances, pursuant to authority granted by section 6(a) of the Act, which allowed OSHA (for a limited period) to adopt existing Federal standards or industry consensus standards as enforceable OSHA standards. Accordingly, the lists of toxic substances now codified at 29 CFR 1910.1000, Tables Z-1 and Z-3, were Federal standards adopted under the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act, which, in turn, were adopted from the American Conference of Governmental Industrial Hygienists (ACGIH) Threshold Limit Values (TLVs) for 1968. The substances listed at 29 CFR 1910.1000, Table Z-2, were adopted from American National Standards Institute standards. Industrial experience, new developments in control technology, and scientific data acquired since 1968 have led the ACGIH to make changes in its TLVs over the years. Many of the TLVs have been lowered, and limits for additional chemicals have been established. During this period, OSHA has promulgated revised standards for toxic substances on a substance-by-substance basis. This process, however, has not kept up with (Cont'd)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 22 USC 4301 et seq; 22 USC 254(e)

CFR Citation: 22 CFR 151

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Foreign Missions Act creates certain authorities for the Secretary of State relating to the regulation of foreign missions, diplomatic, consular, and international organizations. Exercise of those authorities could involve restricting or controlling the access of such missions to American vendors of goods and services. Exercise of other authorities in the Foreign Missions Act could affect the location of premises of foreign missions. Exercise of authority in the Diplomatic Relations Act, 22 USC 254(a) et seq., as amended by Title VI of PL 98-164, will have an impact on the acquisition of liability insurance coverage for the operation of motor vehicles, vessels, and aircraft by personnel of foreign missions, and could in certain situations, subject foreign missions to surcharges or fees. The regulations under consideration would provide procedures for exercise of these authorities. These regulations are at the stage of preliminary consideration. No timetable has been established other than that established in Title VI of PL 98-164.

Abstract: Executive Order 12532 of September 9, 1985 required U.S. firms operating in South Africa to take good faith measures with respect to certain fair labor standards. A final rule was promulgated for this purpose after receiving public comments. The requirements of this Executive Order were later codified in the Comprehensive Anti-Apartheid Act of October 2, 1986, and amendments to the regulations were promulgated as a final rule on October 22, 1986. The second annual review of the labor practices of U.S. firms was published in October, 1988. The Department of State revised the questionnaire and application for registration after the first report was published in 1987. The Department is in the final stages of revising and updating the regulations (22 CFR 60-65).

1507. INTERNATIONAL TRAFFIC IN ARMS REGULATIONS (ITAR)

Legal Authority: 22 USC 2778

CFR Citation: 22 CFR 120 to 130

Legal Deadline: None
Statutory deadline applies only to one proposed Notice; the remainder of the proposals are not subject to a legal deadline.

Abstract: The ITAR were first published in their current form in 1955 and have been periodically amended to reflect statutory enactments and to implement foreign policy. The last substantial revision occurred in December 1984; other amendments have been effected since this date. For example, on April 4, 1988, the ITAR was amended to implement an amendment to the Arms Export Control Act (AECA) that was designed primarily to ensure that individuals or firms convicted of certain offenses or debarred by U.S. Government agencies are denied export privileges. The Office of Munitions Control is continually seeking ways to improve the administration of its export control function by seeking to clarify or amend the ITAR, as necessary. During the next few months, the Department intends to amend the ITAR to include an exemption for certain temporary imports and re-exports of defense articles. The Department also intends to publish more comprehensive changes to the ITAR, which would first be the subject comment.

Legal Authority: 22 USC 4301 et seq; 22 USC 254a

Abstract: The Foreign Missions Act Amendments of 1983 amended the Diplomatic Relations Act of 1978 and the Foreign Missions Act to enforce more effectively a requirement that persons connected with foreign missions carry liability insurance against risks arising from the operation in the U.S. of automobiles, vessels or aircraft by persons entitled to diplomatic or consular immunity. The Department issues and enforces pertinent regulations with the aim of ensuring that the objectives of this program are achieved. The regulations are designed to carry out the obligations of the U.S. to foreign diplomatic and consular missions, to induce concessions for U.S. diplomatic and consular missions abroad, and to protect the U.S. public against uninsured foreign drivers. The expected potential benefits to society will greatly outweigh potential costs. We continue our analysis and discussions to ensure that regulatory mechanisms chosen maximize net benefits and minimize net costs. We seek to set priorities for our regulatory goals and objectives to maximize aggregate net benefits to society. In that connection, the liability insurance regulations have first priority.

Agenda

Background

Improvement of government regulations is a prime goal of the Bush Administration. There should be no more regulations than necessary, and those that are issued should be simpler, more comprehensible, and less burdensome. Regulations should not be issued without appropriate involvement of the public; once issued, they should be periodically reviewed and revised, as needed, to assure that they continue to meet the needs for which they originally were designed.

To help the Department of Transportation ("Department") achieve these goals, and in accordance with Executive Order 12291 ("Federal Regulation"; 46 FR 13193; February 19, 1981) and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures (44 FR 11034; February 26, 1979), the Department prepares a semiannual Regulations Agenda for publication in the Federal Register. The agenda summarizes all current and projected rulemaking, reviews of existing regulations and completed actions of the Department. These are matters on which action has begun or is projected during the succeeding twelve months or such longer period as may be anticipated or for which action has been completed since the last agenda.

The agendas are based on reports submitted by the initiating offices in January and July each year. After these reports are consolidated for, and reviewed by, the Department Regulations Council, the Department's Regulations Agenda is prepared and published in the Federal Register. The Department's last agenda was published in the Federal Register on October 24, 1988 (53 FR 42157). The next one is scheduled for publication in the Federal Register in April 1989.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

In 1980, Congress passed the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA), Pub. L. 96-354, which requires the designation of those regulations for which a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared, i.e., those regulations that would have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. A Regulatory Flexibility Analysis is required for a rulemaking which, in the heading "Small Entities Affected," indicates an effect on small businesses, governmental jurisdictions, or organizations. If a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared for a particular rulemaking, that fact also will be noted under the heading "Analysis."

The RFA also requires that each year the Department publish a list of those regulations that have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and are to be reviewed under the Act during the succeeding twelve months. The agenda includes those regulations to be reviewed under the RFA or those for which review has been concluded since the last agenda. However, it should be noted that, after a preliminary assessment of the regulations listed for RFA review, it may be found that the regulations, in fact, do not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and a full RFA review will be unnecessary.

Regulatory Impact Analysis

A preliminary and final Regulatory Impact Analysis is required for each proposed and final regulation, respectively, that

(1)Is likely to result in:

(a)An annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more;

DOT

(b)A major effect on the general economy in terms of costs, consumer prices, or production;

(c)A major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individual industries; Federal, State, or local government agencies; or geographic regions;

(d)Significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets; or

(2)The Secretary or head of the initiating office determines requires such an analysis.

Definitions

The agenda covers all rules and regulations of the Department, including those that establish conditions for financial assistance. The following definitions are provided for ease in understanding the information in this document.

(1) Initiating office means an operating administration or other organizational element within the Department, the head of which is authorized by law or delegation to issue regulations or to formulate regulations for issuance by the Secretary.

(2) Significant regulation means a regulation that is not an emergency regulation and that in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, or the Secretary, or the Deputy Secretary

(a) Is a major regulation;

(b) Concerns a matter on which there is substantial public interest or controversy;

(c) Has a major impact on another operating administration or other parts of the Department or other Federal Agency;

(d) Has a substantial effect on State and local governments;

(e) Has a substantial impact on a major transportation safety problem;

(f) Initiates a substantial regulatory program or change in policy;

(g) Is substantially different from international requirements or standards; or

(h) Otherwise involves important Department policy.

(3) Major regulation means a significant regulation for which a Regulatory Impact Analysis is required to be prepared.

(4) Emergency regulation means (a) a regulation that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, circumstances require to be issued without notice and opportunity for public comment or made effective in less than 30 days after publication in the Federal Register; or (b) is governed by short-term statutory or judicial deadlines.

(5) Nonsignificant regulation means a regulation that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, is neither a significant nor an emergency regulation.

Explanation of Information on the Agenda

The format for this agenda is required by Office of Management and Budget Bulletin No. 86-16 (July 2, 1986).

First, the agenda is divided by initiating offices. Then, in accordance with the OMB Bulletin, for each initiating office the agenda is divided into four categories: (1) Prerule stage, (2) proposed rule stage, (3) final rule stage, and (4) completed actions. For each entry, the agenda provides the following information: (1) The "significance" of the action (i.e., whether it is significant because it is on the Regulatory Program or because of agency priority; or whether it is nonsignificant or routine and frequent); (2) a short descriptive title; (3) the legal basis for the action being taken or the regulation being reviewed; (4) the related regulatory citation in the Code of Federal Regulations; (5) an indication of any legal deadline and, if so, for what type of action (e.g., NPRM, final rule); (6) an abstract of the review or the proposed or final regulation; (7) a timetable, including the earliest expected date for a decision on whether to issue the proposed or final regulation, or complete the review and determine the corrective action to be taken. (The action taken can be revocation or revision of the regulation, or it can be a determination that no regulatory action is necessary because the regulation is found to be achieving its goals and the goals and objectives of Executive Order 12291 and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures.); (8) an indication as to whether the rulemaking will affect small entities and/or levels of government and which categories of small entities or governments will be impacted; (9) if there is information that does not fit in the other categories, it will be included under a separate heading, entitled "Additional Information"; (10) a listing, where determined, of any analyses an initiating office will prepare or has prepared for the rulemaking document; e.g., a Regulatory Impact Analysis or Evaluation, an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS), a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis, or an Urban Impact Analysis. (It should be noted that, even though a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not required for some items on the agenda, the Department requires an economic analysis for all of its regulations. This economic analysis is contained in the Regulatory Evaluation if a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not prepared.); (11) an agency contact office or official who can provide further information, including advice on how to obtain documents referenced in the agenda; and (12) a Regulation Identifier Number (RIN) assigned to identify an individual rulemaking in the agenda and facilitate tracing further action on the issue in the Federal Register which may occur between agenda publications. (Departmental rulemaking documents published in the Federal Register now contain RIN numbers.)

For nonsignificant regulations issued routinely and frequently as a part of an established body of technical requirements (such as the Federal Aviation Administration's Airspace Rules) to keep those requirements operationally current, only the general category of the regulations, the identity of a contact office or official, and an indication of the expected number of regulations are included; individual regulations are not listed.

If a regulatory docket number has already been established, it may be provided under the "Additional Information" heading. If a member of the public desires further information regarding a particular proposal or regulation, reference should be made to this docket number.

In the "Timetable" column, abbreviations are used to indicate the particular documents being considered for issuance by that date. ANPRM stands for Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, SNPRM for Supplemental Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, NPRM for Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, and FR for Final Rule. Listing a future date in this column is not an indication that a proposed or a final rule will be issued on that date; it is the earliest date on which a decision is expected to be made on whether to issue the document listed. Submittal of any proposed or final rule to the Office of Management and Budget for review, under Executive Order 12291, must follow such a decision. For major rules, this review could take 60 days or more. If any document is issued, publication in the Federal Register would follow within a few days. In addition, these dates are based on current schedules. Information received subsequent to the issuance of this agenda could result in a decision not to take regulatory action or in changes to proposed publication dates. For example, the need for further evaluation could result in a later publication date; evidence of a greater need for the regulation could result in an earlier publication date.

Finally, a dot (●) preceding an entry indicates that the entry appears in the agenda for the first time.

Mailing Lists for Regulatory Documents

To assist the public in obtaining regulatory documents issued within the Department of Transportation, an Appendix A has been included in this document. The appendix contains instructions on how to be placed on mailing lists for, or to obtain, copies of regulatory documents, including the Department's Semiannual Regulations Agenda, issued by the operating administrations of the Department and the Office of the Secretary. There is no charge for this service; however, because of the costs involved, the number of copies of a document forwarded to an individual requestor may be limited. Persons already on mailing lists for particular documents within the Department will remain on those lists and should not reapply.

By following the instructions specified in the appendix, a person can be placed on a mailing list for future copies of the Department's Regulations Agenda, which will be updated and published in the Federal Register every year during April and October. By using the agenda, individuals can determine which Notice or Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, to be issued by elements of the Department, is of interest to them. Then, using the instructions in the appendix, such persons also can be placed on a mailing list to ensure that, after the document of interest is issued, a copy will be mailed to them for their review and comment. In this way, individuals will be relieved of the burden of having to review the Federal Register, perhaps on a daily basis. The Department expects that this process will ensure that those people placed on mailing lists will receive early notice so that their views on the document can be adequately prepared and presented within the established comment period.

General Rulemaking Contact Persons

To assist persons desiring to obtain general information concerning the rulemaking process within the Department's operating administrations, an Appendix B has been added to the agenda. This appendix sets forth the addresses and the telephone numbers of the persons who can respond quickly to requests for general rulemaking information. Please note, however, that questions related to particular rulemaking actions should still be referred to the contact person listed with the particular rulemaking on the agenda.

Public Rulemaking Dockets

To facilitate the inspection of docket files and the submission of comments by the public, an Appendix C sets forth the addresses and working hours for the Rules Docket for each operating administration.

Request for Comments

Agenda

Our agenda is intended primarily for the use of the public. Since its inception, we have made modifications and refinements that we believe provide the public with more helpful information as well as make the agenda easier to use. We would also like you, the public, to make suggestions or comments on how the agenda could be further improved. For example, do you find the information presented in an easily understandable manner? Do you find it easy to follow a regulation's development from agenda to agenda? Do you find that the format for setting out the information enables you to use the agenda easily? Do you find that the presentation of the information in the agenda is clearly explained in the preamble to the agenda? Your responses to these questions or any other comments or suggestions you may have should be sent to Neil R. Eisner, whose address appears above.

Reviews

In an effort to comply further with the spirit of Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, we are also seeking suggestions on existing regulations that should be included in our review of existing regulations; that is, which existing regulations issued by an operating administration of the Department or the Office of the Secretary do you believe need to be reviewed to determine whether they should be revised or revoked? The Department is particularly interested in obtaining information on requirements that have a "significant economic impact on small entities" and therefore must be reviewed under the Regulatory Flexibility Act. If you have any suggested regulations, please send them, along with your explanation of why they should be reviewed, to the concerned operating administration or the Office of the Secretary, at the appropriate address noted in the "Addresses" paragraph above.

In accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act, comments are specifically invited on regulations that are targeted for review under the RFA. Those comments should be addressed to the "contact" person of the operating administration involved, at the appropriate address noted in the "Addresses" paragraph above.

Purpose

The Department is publishing this Regulations Agenda in the Federal Register to share with interested members of the public the Department's preliminary expectations regarding its future regulatory actions. This should enable the public to be more aware of the Department's regulatory activity. Knowledge of the nature and scope of this activity, as well as the specific proposals and reviews being considered, should result in more effective public participation in the Department's regulatory activity. For example, awareness of the dates when notices may be issued seeking public comment should allow appropriate planning and more efficient use of the comment period. By providing the expected date for a decision on whether to issue a final rule, the Department expects that more appropriate planning by those concerned with the regulation will also be possible. This publication in the Federal Register does not impose any binding obligation on the Department, or any of the offices within the Department, with regard to any specific item on the agenda. Regulatory action in addition to the items listed is not precluded. If further information is desired on any of the items listed in the agenda, the public is encouraged to contact the individual listed for the particular item. Additional information concerning the agenda, in general, or the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures may be obtained from Neil R. Eisner, whose address and telephone number appear above.

Issued in Washington, DC on March 31, 1989.

Samuel K. Skinner,

Secretary of Transportation.
